TAPE TRANSCRIPTS — White House employees yesterday loaded transcripts of edited versions of President Nixon's Watergate conversations into a station wagon to be transported to Capitol Hill for use by House impeachment investigators. While announcing he would supply the 1,200 pages of transcripts, Nixon refused to comply with the impeachment panel's subpoena for the actual tapes of 42 of his conversations. (UPI Telephoto)

Sadat Blasts Kissinger's Peace Critics

ALEXANDRIA, Egypt (UPI) — Egyptian President Anwar Sadat today defended Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger's Middle East peace mission and said Arab leaders who oppose the current peace efforts are "sick and juvenile politicians."

Sadat, a strong Kissinger supporter who addresses him as "Henry," took time out from his talks with Kissinger on Syrian-Israeli troop disengagement to address a May Day rally in the industrial Cairo suburb of Helwan. Kissinger and his wife Nancy spent the day sightseeing.

Thousands of May Day marchers paraded through Damascus today calling for the Syrian armed forces to drive the Israelis from the Golan Heights and denouncing Kissinger as a "cheap American, a Jewish conspirator." The crowd chanted, "We reject all peaceful settlements. Territory taken by force can only be regained by force." Syrian Premier Mahmoud Ayyoubi and Information Minister George Saddikni issued statements indicating Syria would not ease its tough stand on disengagement.

Kissinger confers again tonight with Sadat and flies tomorrow to Jerusalem where a top Israeli military leader said chances of Kissinger's success on this mission to the Middle East were "very small...the outcome is still very obscure." He then goes to Damascus.

Another pessimistic report came today from Syria via the Tunisian news agency Tunis Afrique Presse. It quoted Syrian leaders as saying Syria would accept a U.S. proposal that would take into accord the Palestinians' national rights but that they were "not overly optimistic" about Kissinger's chances of success.

Before flying to Egypt Kissinger won a pledge of Soviet and Algerian support for his attempt to get a cease-fire between Israeli and Syria and then turned to Sadat, his principal supporter in the Arab world.

"Sick and juvenile politicians...consider a Kissinger visit to Moscow and Peking a good thing, but regard a visit by Kissinger to Cairo, Damascus and Algiers as treason," Sadat said.

Sadat's remarks appeared aimed primarily at Arab leaders such as Libya's Col. Moammar Khadafy who have voiced strong criticism of his collaboration with Kissinger.

He said the politicians he referred to, but did not name, "consider that investment of American money in the Soviet Union is acceptable, but investment of American money in Egypt is unacceptable.

Explaining Egypt's formerly poor relations with the United States, Sadat said: "Our hostility to America was not a question of principle, but rather a political stand. Our policy has always been be friendly with those who are friendly to us and hostile to those who show hostility toward us."

Police Arrest Seven In 'Zebra' Murders

Suspects Said A Part Of State Death Group

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — In a massive operation, police today arrested seven young black men in San Francisco's "Zebra" slayings. Mayor Joseph Alioto said the suspects were part of a statewide terror organization called the "Death Angels" dedicated to committing racial murders.

More than 100 police officers gathered before dawn today for a series of raids in which the seven, all San Francisco residents, were arrested. All were charged with murder and conspiracy to commit murder.

At a news conference two hours after the last arrest, Alioto said the suspects are members of a previously unknown organization called the "Death Angels." Members receive reputations and promotions on the basis of the number and nature of murders they commit, Alioto said.

Alioto said he believed the group, which used wings as its insignia, was responsible for 80 murders throughout California since 1970.

Alioto said the break in the case, which has terrorized San Francisco for five months, came during a weekend secret meeting he held with an informant.

In the Zebra killings, young black men approached white men or women standing or walking on the street and shot them without saying a word. Eighteen persons were shot, and 12 of them died.

Alioto said the "Death Angel" method of operation included not only shootings but also murders and assaults by heavy-bladed weapons. He said there may still be many victims not yet identified, possibly including hitchhikers who have disappeared.

Alioto said he thought the leader of the "Death Angels" resides outside of California.

He said the "Death Angels" were "dedicated to the murder and mutilation of whites and dissident blacks."

"I an now calling for a concerted drive by local, state and federal law enforcement agen-

Mattson Is Safe For The Moment

Novato Mayor David Price Jones said today that no member of the city council "is going to try to take steps" to have Planning Director Brian W. Mattson removed from his job.

His announcement came in the wake of a citizen's petition campaign to insure that the city retains Mattson. The drive was started after reports that three councilmen, Dorothy P. Young, Fred F. Ruegg and David E. Milano want Mattson fired, reports they neither will confirm or deny.

Jones admitted that some councilmen are not pleased with Mattson's performance and planning philosophy, but said they will make no move to try to unseat him.

The mayor said that Mattson's fate will be in the hands of new City Mgr. Phillip J. Brown, who has responsibility for department heads and the sole power to fire them.

The council "no longer will be involved in the performance of Brian Mattson," and "we are going to leave it up to Phillip Brown" to use his independent judgment, Jones said.

Lawyer Says Nixon Has Told All

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon would not discuss blackmail in the White House "if he had to do it over again," but the President now has disclosed everything he knows—both "the good and the bad"—about Watergate, his chief lawyer said today. (Excerpt of transcriptions of tapes, page 38.)

Attorney James D. St. Clair said that, contrary to some accounts of transcripts of some of Nixon's key Watergate conversations made public yesterday, the President did stop hush payments to the original seven Watergate defendants, particularly E. Howard Hunt, when he told aides on March 21, 1973:

"...in the end, we are going to be bled to death. And in the end, it is all going to come out anyway. Then you get the worst of both worlds. We are going to lose and the people are going to..."

"... and in effect look like a coverup. So that we can't do ..."

Asked by reporters about the "propriety of discussing Hunt's alleged blackmail demands in the White House, St. Clair said: "I'm sure if he had it to do over again, he wouldn't."

St. Clair told reporters that the edited transcripts showed that Hunt, who pleaded guilty as a Watergate conspirator, had threatened to expose activity of former presidential aide John D. Ehrlichman and "national security matters," apparently meaning the break-in of the office of the psychiatrist of Pentagon Papers defendant Daniel Ellsberg.

St. Clair conceded that a $75,000 payment in "hush money" was made to Hunt after the March 21 meeting by Nixon with top aides when the President said he first learned of the Watergate cover-up and that money had been paid to the defendants.

But St. Clair said Nixon had no knowledge of the $75,000 paymet until the middle of April, 1973. The lawyer also said Nixon did not know when the actual payment was made.

"He did not approve of it and was not told of it," St. Clair said.

St. Clair said of the telephone book-size volume of transcripts: "This is the Watergate story as far as the President is concerned—the good and the bad of it."

At another point in explaining why the White House would defy a subpoena by Watergate Special Prosecutor Leon Jaworski for 64 Nixon tape recordings, St. Clair said, "Everything we know is in the book."

He said that as far as the White House is concerned Jaworski has enough evidence to prosecute seven former White House aides and associates of Nixon who are accused of involvement in the coverup of the scandals.

As for why Nixon made the historic decision to make public some of his most intimate, confidential conversations in the White House, St. Clair said it was a difficult decision but that in Nixon's judgment he believed "the existence of the presidency was at stake."

He said that it was the President's decision to bare the whole story of Watergate and that he, as Nixon's lawyer, concurred in it.

He said that Nixon came to the conclusion that "people were getting more and more imbued with the idea that the President had something to hide."

"He felt the presidency was affected, that the facts ought to be known" and he said the President believed that he should "get out the facts."

St. Clair said the House Judiciary Committee should be convinced of the authenticity of the transcripts, provided the committee yesterday, by the very weight of the material delivered and that there would be no reason to suspect that any key conversation was excised.

"That would not be very smart," he said.

Public Can Buy Tape Transcripts

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Copies of President Nixon's Watergate-related tape transcripts were put on sale to the public today at a cost of $12.25 per copy.

The 1,254-page books are available at bookstores run by the Government Printing Office and are identical in content to the copies sent to members of the House Judiciary Committee yesterday.

The soft-cover books are entitled "Submission of Recorded Presidential Conversations to the Committee on the Judiciary of the House of Representatives by President Richard Nixon."

About 5,000 were put on sale the first day.

Longshore Workers On Strike

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — West Coast longshoremen went on strike today in a protest against a cut in pay ordered under wage controls which expired at midnight.

The International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union dispatch hall said the union was "on strike."

Other West Coast ports were also affected by the work stoppage, but military cargoes and passenger vessels were not expected to be tied up.

The union did not indicate whether the walkout would be a 24-hour protest or develop into a battle to regain the contract cuts that resulted from wage controls.

A spokesman for the Pacific Maritime Association employers declared the strike violated its contract with the longshore union. He said the contract provides for "stop work meetings" in grievance cases but "that certainly doesn't cover anything like this."

Dockworkers in San Francisco, Seattle, San Diego, Long Beach and Portland were not dispatched for day shifts, but no pickets were posted at the docks.

Agnew's Baltimore Successor Sentenced

BALTIMORE (UPI) — N. Dale Anderson, who succeeded Spiro T. Agnew as Baltimore County Executive and was convicted of corruption charges developed in the same federal investigation that led to the former vice president's resignation, was sentenced today to five years in prison.

Judge Joseph H. Young did not impose a fine on Anderson, 57, who resigned his office last week.

Open Space Is Bought By County

A 185-acre parcel was added to the county's open space acquisitions yesterday as Marin County supervisors voted unanimously to pay $260,000 for the picturesque ridge above Ignacio. (Other supervisors stories, pages 6, 13.)

Supervisors sitting as the county open space district board, also agreed to a one-year option on 96 acres located near the Indian Valley Colleges campus.

Both parcels are owned by Equity Capital Co. of Delaware. Purchase price on the second site is $130,000, according to Pierre W. Joske, district general manager.

Loma Verde area residents have proposed a $350,000 bond issue to purchase another 150 acres in the same area.

In related action, the board accepted a report from the county grand jury recommending that a listing of open space areas be maintained and made available to the public.

It also recommended costs of patrolling and maintaining open space to charged to the open space district and not the county general fund.

Mill Valley Bond Sale Announced

The Mill Valley City Council last night awarded the sale of its police building bond issue to the Bank of California which will charge the city 5.887433 per cent in interest on the bonds which will raise $545,000.

The net interest cost to the city on the 20-year bonds will be $386,510.

Other bids were Bank of Marin, 5.95824 per cent or $391,158.65 in interest costs; Wells Fargo Bank, 5.9626 per cent or $391,455; Security Pacific National Bank, 6.0235 per cent or $395,443.45; United California Bank, 6.0619 per cent or $397,967, and Bank of America, 6.1237 per cent or $402,022.15.

Law Day Participants Question Growing Trend To Specialization

By PAUL LIBERATORE

Is the practice of law becoming so specialized that it is being taken out of the reach of the people it is intended to serve? (See page 7 for a story on an effort in Marin to keep it within reach.)

That question and others about the legal profession were discussed this morning by a Marin Superior Court judge and a panel of attorneys over KTIM radio, part of today's observance of Law Day.

"The rules of law are becoming so complicated that we have developed an elite in law," said Carl B. Shapiro, a San Anselmo attorney specializing in criminal defense work.

He compared the trend to that of physicians and the dramatic shift away from general practice and into complex and high-priced specialism. "Over-specialization is a trend in the wrong direction," Shapiro said. "We should try to determine which parts of the law can be given back to the people so lawyers aren't so necessary."

Disagreeing were Judge E. Warren McGuire and Richard V. Bettini, a member of the lawyers administrative committee of the State Bar of California and a San Rafael attorney.

Bettini justified specialization as "a matter of competency," with specialists better prepared to serve their clients. He alluded to the English and French systems of barristers, who present a case in court, and solicitors, who perform research and case preparation, and suggested that many court-

Superior Court Post For Marler

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Gov. Ronald Reagan today announced appointment of Senate Republican leader Fred Marler Jr. of Redding to the superior court bench of Sacramento County at a $37,615 annual salary.

Marler, who as GOP floor leader is charged with spearheading passage of the governor's programs in the Senate, was bypassed last week by Reagan for expected appointment to the Third District Court of Appeal.

Reagan instead nominated two Democrats, Superior Court judges Robert K. Puglia and George E. Paras of Sacramento, to the appellate court, an action which enraged some Senate Republicans.

More Commercial Banks Hike Rates

NEW YORK (UPI) — More large commercial banks today joined the parade to the 10¾ per cent interest rate for prime business loans.

Meanwhile, some prominent bankers attending the annual conference of the Financial Analysts Federation predicted that the prime rate would "top out" at around 12 per cent within the next month, then would start falling and probably would drop to 8 or even 7 per cent later in the year.

Confirms Envoy

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Rodger P. Davies of California was confirmed by the Senate today as Ambassador to Cyprus.

Hydrofoil Warship Contract Awarded

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The U.S. Navy yesterday issued a 3.8 million dollar contract for the basic design work for a hydrofil warship for West Germany.

The Pentagon issued the contract to the Boeing Co. of Seattle, Wash., which has been the leader among American firms in work on hydrofoils. The vessel would be a patrol ship equipped with guided missiles.

WIRE NEWS BRIEFS From Everywhere

Close Vote Seen On No-Fault

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Both sides predicted a close vote today when the Senate gives final consideration to an auto insurance bill that would require the states to establish no-fault plans based on mandatory federal standards.

Hruska

Supporters of the bill say it would substantially reduce the number of lawsuits for auto accident damages and injuries, mostly in petty accident cases, and thus lead to a lowering of insurance premiums.

Opponents, led by Sen. Roman Hruska, R-Neb., have argued that it would often deprive the individual of his rights to sue for damages.

Trial lawyers have been the main opponents of no-fault.

A driver would be guaranteed that his own insurance company would pay all his medical costs, up to $15,000 in wage losses, at least $1,000 in funeral expenses, and up to $5,000 in death benefits for his family.

Import Rules

ROME (UPI) — Italy is imposing import restrictions in an effort to keep her trade balance deficit from getting out of hand, the Italian news agency ANSA said last night.

It said measures immediately effective require importers of "certain categories of goods" to deposit 50 per cent of the value of their imports with the Bank of Italy. The deposits will not bear interest.

Farm Prices Drop

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A second consecutive monthly slump in farm prices in April has probably started supermarket food prices down for the first time this year, an Agriculture Department economist said today.

The department's monthly farm price report said average prices for raw farm products, which had declined 4 per cent in the month ending March 15, tumbled another 6 per cent in the four weeks ending April 15. Continuing drops for livestock, feed grains, eggs and a record decline for wheat produced the overall reduction.

Agriculture Department economist Dawson Ahalt said in an interview today that when April retail prices are officially reported in late May, they will probably show a decline — the first time since last September.

251 Reds Killed

SAIGON (UPI) — South Vietnamese troops killed 251 Communists in a two-day tank, air and artillery drive that military sources today said spilled into neighboring Cambodia.

The Saigon command said 20 government soldiers were killed in the fighting in South Vietnam's Duc Hue district, which lies along the Cambodian border 35 miles north of Saigon.

Toy Gun Warning

BELFAST (UPI) — The British army told Northern Ireland parents today to take toy guns away from their children because a youngster with a realistic replica might be "shot by mistake" as a suspected terrorist.

A spokesman said troops on patrol in Londonderry almost opened fire on children carrying toy guns twice in the past week.

"These modern toys are so realistic that there is a very real danger of a child being shot by mistake as a terrorist," an army spokesman said.

The outlawed Irish Republican Army (IRA) has warned children not to go near soldiers because of the danger of being hit by IRA sniper fire.

House Judiciary Studies Several Avenues On Tapes

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House Judiciary Committee is at this point uncertain how to respond to President Nixon's release of transcripts instead of tapes.

Chairman Peter W. Rodino Jr., D-N.J., made it clear after a day of reading the transcripts delivered yesterday morning that he did not consider Nixon in compliance with the committee subpoena as long as the tapes themselves were withheld.

Although several Republicans say they don't consider Nixon's offer to be in compliance with the April 11 subpoena which demanded tapes, they appeared wary of wrangling and ready to accept it.

About the only thing on which these factions were in general agreement yesterday was that both sides want to continue avoiding a partisan vote on the subject of impeachment.

Rep. Robert McClory, R-Ill., said: "We don't want any votes in the committee which would divide us." Rep. William L. Hungate, D-Mo., said: "Our effort here is to preserve the committee's bipartisan unity."

To resolve the issue, Rodino called an unusual evening session of the committee today but did not indicate whether a vote would be taken.

He told UPI yesterday when asked if Nixon's response satisfied him: "The transcripts speak for themselves. The subpoena was for the tapes and we didn't get tapes."

Rep. Charles Rangel, D-N.Y., who proposed that the committee vote Nixon "in noncompliance" with the subpoena, said after a late caucus yesterday of committee Democrats that another alternative would be "to find the witnesses to give us the information he refused to give."

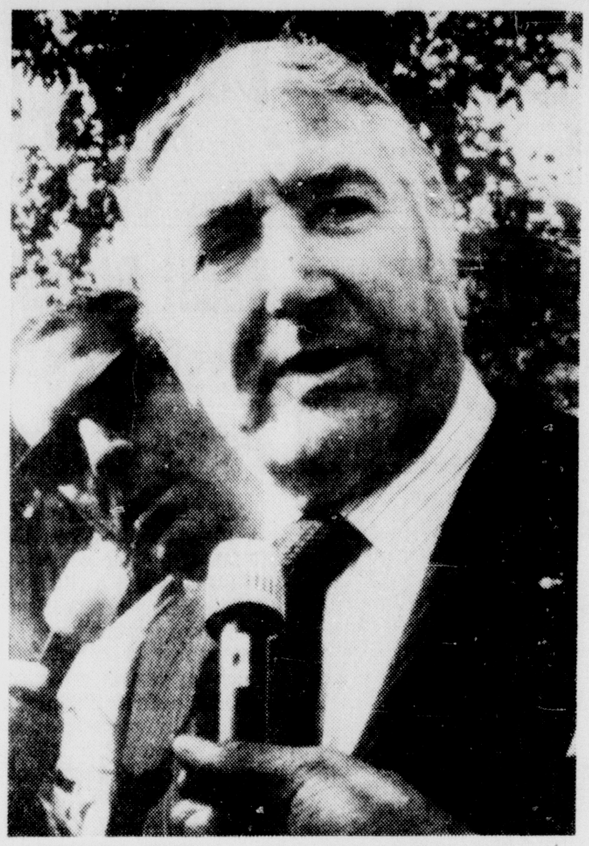
Rangel's reaction indicated that he apparently failed to find enough support among the Democrats for a formal resolution declaring Nixon in noncompliance.

Even those Republicans who expressed dissatisfaction with Nixon's degree of compliance said they would oppose such a vote on noncompliance.

Rep. Tom Railsback, R-Ill., one of a handful of GOP members who thought Nixon should have given more, said: "I won't vote for noncompliance. I don't want to vote for anything that would further aggravate the situation right now."

Observers felt that one of Rodino's reasons for putting off a meeting until tonight might have been to allow the rest of the committee to read the transcripts. The press of other legislative business prevented most of them from doing so yesterday.

Rep. Elizabeth Holtzman, D-N.Y., did and she was irate. "The transcripts make it even more clear that we need the tapes."



DISCUSSES TAPES — Rep. Peter Rodino, D-N. J., chairman of the House Judiciary Committee, talks with newsmen as he leaves the Congressional Hotel in Washington where the committee's staff is making its headquarters during the impeachment inquiry. He made it clear yesterday he did not consider the President in compliance with the tape subpoena. (UPI Telephoto)

Mount Hermon Skirmishes Continue As Talks Begin

By UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

Syrian and Israeli troops fought with artillery and tanks on strategic Mount Hermon today, but beyond the battlefield diplomats worked to separate the opposing Golan Heights armies.

The war of attrition on the northern truce lines went into the 51st day after an all-day battle along Mount Hermon that the Beirut government said spilled over into neighboring Lebanon.

On the diplomatic frot, Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger went into a second day of meetings in Alexandria today to get Egyptian President Anwar Sadat's support in separating Syrian and Israeli forces.

A Damascus military communique reported fresh fighting early today for control of the steep, rocky peaks of 9,232-foot Mount Hermon, which overlooks Syria, Israel and Lebanon.

The Beirut Defense Ministry said an Israeli force took up positions Tuesday on two Lebanese hills near Mount Hermon, clashing for two hours with local troops before pulling back. One Lebanese soldier was reported wounded.

Beirut press reports said the Israeli force occupied points on El Chahar and El Seddana hills to gain a strategic advantage over the Syrians.

Profits Up For More Oil Firms

NEW YORK (UPI) — Three more oil companies have reported sharply higher first quarter profits, joining a long list of big petroleum firms showing drastic leaps in earnings during the energy crisis.

Atlantic Richfield Co., Phillips Petroleum and Cities Service Corp., yesterday reported first quarter incomes ranging from 87 to 150 per cent above the figures for the same period in 1973.

Atlantic Richfield of Los Angeles said its net for the first three months of the year rose 87 per cent over a year ago to $93.9 million, or $1.65 per share.

Phillips Petroleum of Bartlesville, Okla., reported a gain in net income of 150 per cent over last year's first quarter to $108.6 million or $1.43 a share.

Cities Service Corp. had an 87 per cent gain in first quarter net to $68.8 million, or $2.64 a share — despite after-tax write-offs of $7.9 million on startup expenses at its Copperhill, Tenn., chemical plant.

Robert O. Anderson, Atlantic Richfield chairman, said the company's first quarter improvement reflected primarily "substantial gains in foreign petroleum operations and chemical operations."

Northrup Fined For Nixon Gift

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A federal judge fined Northrup Corp. and two of its executives today for illegally contributing $150,000 to President Nixon's 1972 re-election campaign.

A 1940 federal law prohibits political contributions by corporations doing a substantial amount of business with the government, but Chief U. S. District Judge George L. Hart said it has not been enforced and served notice that next time a violation comes before him, "somebody is going to jail."

Northrup as a corporation pleaded guilty to one count of contributing to finance committees of Nixon's re-election effort and was fined $5,000.

Thomas V. Jones, Northrup's chairman and chief executive officer, pleaded guilty to one count of aiding and abetting violation of the law and he, too, was fined $5,000.

James Allen, vice president and assistant to the President, pleaded guilty to a charge of nonwilful violation of the laws and was fined $1,000.

"This law has been openly flouted for more than 20 years," Hart complained during a 20-minute court proceeding. "No attorney general up to this time has seen fit to enforce it."

"If it ever comes before me again, a case involving this law, somebody is going to jail," the judge declared.

The California-based Northrup is one of the leading defense contractors. It built the F5 fighter-jet used in Vietnam, and is a diversified compaay that specializes in aerospace equipment, communications and atomic equipment.

Thomas McBride, Assistant Watergate special prosecutor, said the prosecution task force had investigated whether Northrup had received any government contracts or awards as a result of the contributions and said "no evidence of this" was found.

McBride said that the prosecution reserved the right to prosecute on charges of bribery if any such deals involving Northrup did come to light.

Said Hart: "It's outrageous the way that this particular law has been permitted to be violated over the years."

Actress Agnes Moorehead Dies

ROCHESTER, Minn. (UPI) — Agnes Moorehead, nominated four times for academy awards for film roles but best known as the sharptongued Endora in the television series "Bewitched," died yesterday at Methodist Hospital of an undisclosed illness.

AGNES MOOREHEAD

The 67-year-old character actress was under the care of Mayo Clinic doctors and had been hospitalized since April 9.

Miss Moorehead's first role was in Orson Welles' classic movie "Citizen Kane." In 1942 she was nominated for an academy award for her role in "The Magnicient Amberson." She was nominated again in 1944 for "Mrs. Parkington," in 1948 for "Johnny Belinda," and 1964 for "Hush, Hush, Sweet Charlotte." All her nominations were for best supporting roles.

Her film characterizations were often of drab, frustrated or shrewish women.

Second to acting Miss Moorehead enjoyed her half section of farmland between Zanesville and Cambridge, Ohio. The land was a grant to her great grandparents who came from England.

Miss Moorehead received a master's degree from the University of Wisconsin and then enrolled at the American Academy of Dramatic Arts in New York. She appeared in a succession of Broadway hits and later toured the vaudeville circuit and began a radio career She had a recurring role in Lionel Barrymore's "Mayor of the Town."

While many of her film roles were of shrewish or drab women, such as in "Jane Eyre,""The Magnificent Amberson,""Dark Passage," "Showboat" and "Raintree County," she also could be glamorous, as in "Mrs. Parkington."

Miss Moorehead was born Dec. 6, 1906, in Boston, Mass., daughter of a Presbyterian minister. She was married to actor Jack G. Lee for 21 years before their divorce in 1951. In 1953 she married actor Robert Gist but that marriage was dissolved in 1959.

Water Well Suit Being Considered

I-J Special Report

SANTA ROSA — Sonoma Superior Court Judge John Moskowitz has taken under consideration a suit by a group of rural Southern Sonoma well owners who seek to prevent Rohnert Park from drilling two new wells to supply residents.

The Sonoma County Well Owners Association charges that the city wells will lower the water table, causing salt water intrusion into their own wells and possibly making them run dry.

The city maintains that its water comes from a different geological formation and thus does not affect area private wells.

The well owners filed suit March 29, asking for a permanent injunction against Rohnert Park's drilling. Moskowitz has 90 days to make a decision.

Suspected West Marin Sex Attacker Arrested

An ex-convict who lives in Berkeley was arrested there last night on suspicion of raping and beating two young women hitchhikers earlier in the evening in West Marin.

Sheriff's officers said 24-year-old Steven Michael Brown, who works as a printer in San Francisco, also will be questioned in connection with other recent similar crimes in West Marin.

Last night's assaults occurred within a hour of each other, according to deputy sheriff William Nabers.

The first woman, picked up by a passing motorist was in a state of shock and was unable to give her name or a description of the attacker, he said.

A second woman, a 20-year-old West Marin resident, who walked to the Point Reyes Station sheriff's substation after escaping from the rapist's car, gave a description of him and his auto, Nabers said.

The woman said the man, who gave her a ride toward her home, drove into a remote area, raped her at knifepoint and cut her hand and face and beat her when she tried to escape, but she managed to flee from his car near Point Reyes Station.

After the victim described the attacker's car, Nabers said Brown was stopped in Fairfax but the officer did not have enough information at that time to hold him.

After the woman described her attacker in more detail, Brown was picked up by Berkeley police.

He was booked into Marin County Jail on suspicion of rape, kidnapping and felony assault and was to appear today in Marin Municipal Court.

Column Causes School's Newspaper To Be Seized

The Tamalpais High School District administration has seized the entire press run of the latest edition of the Sir Francis Drake High School student newspaper due to publication of a tasteless column, Supt. Robert D. Torrey said today.

The lengthy column in the Drake Jolly Roger, entitled "Drake Urinal," attacks a Drake student by hinting he is homosexual and, although no name is used, provides enough information for students to identify the subject, Torrey said.

The edition is the school's annual "cub" issue, put out by members of teacher Alan Agol's journalism class who are not regular staff of the paper.

Torrey said the publication may be distributed after the offensive column is removed. He said he did not know how much the issue cost to print.

Rohnert Park Votes Tie With New Sewage Plant

The Rohnert Park City Council has agreed to the city's participating in the $27 million Laguna sewage treatment plant planned for construction during the next three years in Santa Rosa.

After hearing an engineering consultant this week estimate that it would cost the city about $6.7 million to participate, the council voted unanimously to join, according to City Clerk Kathryn P. Logue.

Marvin Lindorf, vice president of the engineering firm of Yoder, Trotter, Orlob and Associates, told the council Rohnert Park would pay about $4.3 million for its share of the plant, plus an estimated $2.4 million to build a 24-inch, 22,000 foot pipeline to Santa Rosa.

The pipeline is expected to be adequate for the city's projected 1995 population of 24,600.

Lindorf said state grants will cover about 87 per cent of the city's costs.

The council decided to use the 24-inch pipeline size rather than a larger one because councilmen were hesitant to commit the city to a more costly project solely on the basis of population projections, Mrs. Logue said.

Councilmen also agreed to continue the city's experimental jitney service another month despite a financial report showing that the system only took in $62.15 in fares its first month while costing $1,512 to operate.

At the request of ABCO Cab Co. owner Gary Sterner, who contracts with the city for the service, weekday service was reduced to the hours of 7:30 a.m. to 3 p.m. During April the jitney ran until 5:30 p.m. The Saturday 11 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. shopper shuttle was completely eliminated by the council.

Sterner reported that passenger loads ranged from 53 the first week to 190 the third, dropping to 130 during the fourth.

LAW

room lawyers in this country have little experience in trial work. Novices in this field clog court calenders and do not fully serve their clients, he said.

McGuire agreed that lawyers are indeed necessary, especially in complex cases, such as antitrust matters.

"The courts don't order child custody cases," McGuire said. "It is the parents who battle over who should have the children."

The judge noted that decisions in this regard are made upon the "best evidence" provided by thorough investigations of the facts by the probation office, department of social services and, in many cases, actual courtroom testimony by witnesses.

"Like Solomon," McGuire said, "we can't cut a child in half. This is a difficult part of the law."

Shapiro, however, questioned if the court is best prepared to make child custody judgments. "It is not a legal question," he said.

He suggested the ruling should be made by someone trained to know what is in the best interest of the child, for example sociologists and psychiatrists, rather than leaving it to a judge to digest reports from such professionals and then make the ultimate decision.

All the panelists, which also included Robert E. Praetzel, president of the Marin County Bar Association and attorney Dorothy P. Young, a Novato city councilman, agreed that improvements are needed in methods by lawyers for setting fees and informing their client about what those fees will be.

Praetzel explained that some fees are calculated on an hourly basis and some by percentage, such as in personal injury cases; that lawyers receive between $40 and $50 an hour, and that it is wise for a person to shop around for an attorney because some are better than others and some are cheaper.

"The law profession has a PR (public relations) problem," said Mrs. Young. "Many times, especially when a client has a great deal of money, rather than settling an attorney will run up bills."

Shapiro added that a lawyer can very often estimate how much his services will be, and that estimate should be given to the client at the onset of the client-attorney relationship.

"To pay a lawyer $40 or $50 an hour, which amounts to between $100,000 and $120,000 a year, is a frightening prospect for someone earning wages of between $3 and $8 an hour," Shapiro remarked.

Estimates are easily given in domestic and criminal cases, for example, he said. "Lawyers are very derelict in not being required to do the same thing a garage mechanic is required to do — give an estimate," Shapiro added.

Mitchell Denies Pot Case Guilt

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (UPI) — William (Chad) Mitchell, 36, founder of the once popular "Chad Mitchell Trio," pleaded unnocent in federal court Monday to a charge he conspired to possess 400 pound) of marijuana.

U.S. District Judge Adrian Spears set a May 31 pretrial hearing on a defense motion to supress evidence in the case.

Mitchell, president of Devonshire Music Corp., of Chicago, was arrested by federal narcotics agents Oct. 21 at a San Antonio motel as he got into a pickup camper in which the marijuana allegedly was found.

Dam Impact Statement Challenged

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Serpentine is the state rock of California but it is one of the "worst" rocks from an engineering standpoint, a geological engineer said yesterday.

Dr. Richard E. Goodman of the University of California, Berkeley, testified in a federal court suit aimed at delaying construction of the Warm Springs Dam in Sonoma County until an environmental impact statement has been made "more adequate."

Ecologists, who have already delayed start of construction of the $114 million rolled earth dam, contended that the statement which has already been filed does not conform with the law and asked that further studies be made into possible effects of an earthquake on the 319-foot dam on Dry Creek, 14 miles from Healdsburg.

They maintained that the dam is to be built on the Dry Creek fault, which may still be active despite the impact statement to the contrary. They also said the dam is too close to the Healdsburg fault which is known to be active.

Goodman testified for the plaintiffs prior to the hearing's being suspended until May 14. It was estimated that, when the hearing is resumed, there will be seven more days of court testimony before U.S. District Judge Spencer Williams.

Goodman said that 35 per cent of the Warm Springs Dam is on serpentine and sheared shale. Landslides are very common in serpentine, he said.

"Not many dams are built on serpentine," Goodman said, "because usually if you have serpentine you look for another site."

Environmental impact statements said safeguards have been built into the dam design to take care of both the serpentine problem and probable earthquake damage.

Purse Taken As Students Watch

BERKELEY (UPI) — A visiting teacher who was robbed in the school cafeteria says some 300 University of California students failed to come to her aid, it was disclosed yesterday.

Mrs. Elena Herr said she was eating lunch in the cafeteria when a man snatched the wallet from her purse.

Mrs. Herr said she cried for help and tried to detain the thief but none would come to her aid.

Employees Win Counsel Rights

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — California's Supreme Court ruled yesterday that public employees facing discipline for union-related activities have the right to a union representative at hearings.

The ruling threw out three-day suspensions ordered for seven Alameda County welfare department employes who refused to attend hearings unless union agents were present.

They had been cited for improper use of county cars to attend a union rally.

Chemical Tank Is Almost Sealed

CHICAGO (UPI) — Police said today the ruptured chemical storage tank which spewed an acid mist over the city's South Side Friday and has left the area in limbo for over five days, was "all but sealed."

Workers fed a concrete and chemical mixture into the tank in efforts to neutralize the silicone tetrachloride still remaining in the 740,000-gallon tank.

Officials of the Illino s Attorney General's office and Cook County States' Attorney's office, agitated by the accident which sent 109 persons to hospitals for treatment, requested an investigation yesterday into any possible criminal negligence by the firm which maintained the tank, Bulk Terminal Co.

cies to shatter this organization," Alioto said.

Alioto said he and police are of the opinion "that the ring leaders who perpetrated the wave of terror in San Francisco are now behind bars."

Alioto called the group "a kind of reverse Ku Klux Klan" and said it "is based on muddled aberrations clearly outside the mainstream of Islamic religions."

The suspects were identified by police as J.C. Simon, 29; Larry Green, 22; Dwight Stallings; Thomas Manney, 31; Edgar D. Burton, Clarence Jamison, 27, and Manuel Moore. Police said Manney had been an all-city football player in high school.

All were believed to live in San Francisco. All were arrested separately. Police would give no further details of the arrests.

Simon, Green and Stallings were charged with murder. All seven were charged with conspiracy to commit murder and other charges involved in the shootings.

Assistant District Attorney Walter Giubbini said the suspects would be arraigned tomorrow.

Alioto also said Monday police were seeking four suspects and hinted arrests were imminent.

The terror killings began last Nov. 25 when grocer Saleem Erakat was killed near the San Francisco Civic Center. Through the month of December there were seven more of the shootings in which a black assailant would approach white men or women on the street and shoot them with a pistol without speaking.

After a month's break, the frightening killings resumed on the night of Jan. 28 when two black men cruising in a car killed four persons and wounded a fifth victim in a two-hour period.

Five more shooting incidents took place during April when two persons were killed. The last killing attributed to the "Zebra" murderers took place April 17.

Alioto said the San Francisco killings had been linked to 80 similar street murders throughout California in the past three years, but he was disputed by state Attorney General Evelle J. Younger who said there was no evidence that the Zebra murders were connected with killings in any other city.

The case was given the code name "Zebra" by police because "Z" was the letter of the police radio frequency being used in the investigation, which grew into the largest manhunt in San Francisco history.

MATTSON

mission gave Mattson a 6-1 vote of confidence Monday night with commissioner George E. McDaniel dissenting because he believed it was a personnel matter that should be discussed by the city council in closed session.

(The Independent-Journal erroneously reported yesterday, based on a staff report, that the vote was 5-1 with commissioner Albert Solnit absent. Solnit was present for the confidence vote, but absent for the rest of the meeting.)

The commission described Mattson as a "highly competent professional urban planner," who has been "fair minded and proper" and who has "scrupulously carried out the planning policies of the city."

The reported move to have Mattson fired also is to be discussed at a meeting of the North Marin Federation of Homeowners at 8 p.m. today at the Home Savings and Loan Association office, 1450 Grant Avenue.

Peter C. Meyer, Marin County elections officer, is scheduled to speak to federation members as part of his campaign for county clerk.

Lord Snowdon Loves His Wife

ISTANBUL, Turkey (UPI) — Britain's Lord Snowdon, said Monday he loves his wife, Princess Margaret, "and only her."

"Although there are rumors about my marriage, I love my wife and only her," the newspaper Hurriyet quoted Snowdon as saying.

Snowdon was in Istanbul working as director of photography for a film version of Agatha Christie's "Murder on the Orient Express."

Judge Dismisses Laughing Charge

HAIFA, Israel (UPI) — Traffic court Judge Ram Savir granted Monat Thierry, 25, the last laugh by dismissing charges against her of "laughing in a loud voice" aboard a bus.

An off-duty policewoman testified that Miss Monat refused to stop what she called "a wild laugh" last September that could be interpreted as disorderly behavior. The judge said the case was "ridiculous and the charges have no foundation."

Caps For Bald Swimmers Eyed

BERLIN (UPI) — East Berlin is considering making bald men wear bathing caps in municipal swimming pools. Men with hair already have to wear them for reasons of hygiene and to keep hair from blocking pool filters.

These reasons don't apply to men without hair. But a spokesman for the city athletics department said men with hair often cause rows by refusing to wear a cap, giving as their excuse the presence in the pool of bald men without caps.

Burglar's Finger Leads To Capture

ROME (UPI) — Police investigating an attempted break-in in a suburban apartment said Giovanni Jannulli's own finger pointed at him.

The apartment's superintendent told police he found a human finger with a gold ring on his balcony. Police theorized a would-be thief broke the finger while trying to climb the balcony and when Jannulli showed up in hospital minus his little finger, they charged him with attempted burglary.

McGovern's '73 Income Is Told

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. George S. McGovern, D-S.D., disclosed today that he and his wife Eleanor had an adjusted gross income of $86,107.91 and paid income and self-employment taxes of $26,342.81 in 1973.

McGovern voluntarily made public information from his returns, prepared by Robert M. Ellis of the Internal Revnue Service.

McGovern's Senate salary of $42,500 was supplemented by $29,210.40 earned in lectures. Mrs. McGovern earned $11,766.66 speaking and writing. The rest of the income included interest from savings and a blind trust and $79 in dividends.

Blood Pressure Month Opened

WASHINGTON (UPI) — HEW Secretary Caspar W. Weinberger rolled up the left sleeve of his pin-striped shirt yesterday and had his blood pressure checked to kick off National High Blood Pressure Month during May.

The reading, "126-over-84," was described by Dr. Theodore Cooper of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare as being "in the normal range."

Hypertension (high blood pressure) and hypertensive heart disease kill some 60,000 Americans each year, said Weinberger.

U.N. Considers Big Aid Program

UNITED NATIONS (UPI) — A special General Assembly session considered today an American proposal for creation of a $4 billion U.N.-monitored assistance program for the world's poorest countries over the next 18 months.

The plan would include a moratorium or cancelation of debt payments by needy countries, assistance in the form of fertilizer, food shipments, and loans.

U.S. spokesman Courtney Shedon said Washington was confident that the $4 billion in aid could be raised.

Religion Wasn't Object Of Hunt

CHAPEL EN LE FRITH, England (UPI) — Lay preacher Mary Henderson thought she had a powerful sermon when a group of people burst into the Methodist Church and cried, "Praise ye the Lord!"

But then the visitors confessed they were automobile club members on a treasure hunt and one of the clues was the inscription on the pulpit, "Praise ye the Lord!"

Humphrey Found In Good Health

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, D-Minn., who was treated late last year for a "pinhead" tumor on his bladder, today was given a clean bill of health.

A spokesman for Humphrey said results of a biopsy taken last weekend were negative.

Boat Owners Protest Rule

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Boat owners from across the country are complaining loudly to the U.S. Coast Guard about new rules designed to stop them from dumping sewage into the oceans, lakes and streams.

The antipollution proposal is in its final stages of action, with a public hearing today and an additional period of public comment running to May 14 before the final standards will be issued — probably sometime this summer.

Even after that it will be two years before the first sections of the rules go into effect and up to five years before they are fully implemented. But the Coast Guard has already received hundreds of letters, mostly from boat owners and yacht clubs, urging it to modify its proposals, especially where sewage holding tanks are involved.

If the final rules as presently proposed take effect next June 1, to pick a date, here is what would happen: All existing boats equipped with toilets would have to be fitted with Coast-Guard-approved devices that grind up and chlorinate sewage, and discharge it into the water, by June 1, 1977. Those deviews can continue in use as long as they operate properly.

If the boat owner waits until after June 1, 1977, to install such a device, but does so before June 1, 1979, he can use the device only until June 1, 1982. After that date a no-discharge system, such as a holding tank or recirculating toilet, must be installed.

New boats, defined as those on which construction began after the rules went into effect, must have holding tanks or other no-discharge devices if sold after June 1, 1976.

The June 1 date is theoretical since there is no decision yet when the Coast Guard will start the rules up. The rules will apply only to vessels equipped with heads — not rowboats, canoes or other small boats.

The most common complaint to the Coast Guard from boat owners is that pump-out facilities do not exist for holding tanks. Many apparently fear they would eventually be forced to go to holding tanks if the devices they install initially stop working and parts become hard to get.

The San Francisco Yacht Club, writing on behalf of its 798 members, said some of them "spent time at sea where no access to pumpout facilities exist." It warned of "hazards to health and safety" with holding tanks.

Opposition also came from the Shipping Federation of Canada which warned that foreign trading vessels might be kept from doing business in the Great Lakes if they could not meet discharge standards.

The State of Maryland's Environmental Health Administration, however, told the Coast Guard it is "unalterably opposed to any regulation which allows sewage discharge from any vessel other than perhaps ocean going vessels."

Trial Date For Crowe Announced

Former Fairfax town administrator Robert D. Crowe will stand trial the week of June 6 in Marin Superior Court on a felony charge arising from a post-election brawl March 6.

Crowe, 37, is accused of hitting 19-year-old Kenneth Mark Davidson with an axe during an argument in a city street.

Crowe pleaded innocent before Superior Judge Charles Read Best who set a pretrial conference — an attempt to settle the case before it goes to trial — for May 29.

Davidson, charged with disturbing the peace for his part in the fight, is due for a pretrial conference himself in municipal court May 29.

Singing Telegram Being Abolished

ALBANY, N.Y. (UPI) — The singing telegram, which was begun as a service of Western Union in 1933, but has been abandoned in 45 states, will end in New York State as of Monday.

Western Union Telegraph Co. said demand has dropped to only about five singing telegrams a day. The company also said it was getting harder and harder to find volunteers.

Hospital's Mental Health Unit Told By Board To Tighten Belt

The Marin Hospital District board last night told the hospital's mental health unit to try to tighten its belt.

Administrator Ray K. Bolinger said the economy move is necessary because the county of Marin has allocated a $315,000 budget for the hospital's Short-Doyle/Medi-Cal mental health program for fiscal 1974-75.

"We think it's an unrealistic budget, but we are going to attempt to live with it," he said. "I'm just not sure whether or not that can be done."

The administrator said that maintaining the current level of service to patients who are hospitalized and those who come to the center for follow-up care after being discharged would cost about $440,000 next year.

The hospital board put Dr. John Moody, director of the Community Mental Health Center's Unit A, in charge of cutting costs.

Moody will determine if some patients are being hospitalized for longer periods than necessary, according to Bolinger. Moody and a committee also will examine medical records to find out if some patients who are hospitalized don't need to be.

In addition, Moody will try to find alternatives to hospitalization at the center for those who don't need intensive care but still are not ready to go home. The center personnel could send such patients to halfway houses, convalescent or state hospitals, Bolinger said.

"The county says it will give us only $315,000, no matter how many patients we have next year," the administrator added. "We'll do what we can, but when the money is used up, we will have to refer the patients we can't care for to the county's crisis unit for disposition."

Once the fiscal year begins, Moody will keep a close watch on the inpatient and followup programs to assure that "No more than one twelfth of the county's allocation is used in any one month," according to a hospital spokesman.

Vacationers Told To Think Energy

CHICAGO (UPI) — Federal Energy Administrator John C. Sawhill says Americans should take "energy-conscious vacations" this summer although they should have no problems getting gasoline.

"We want people to take vacations," Sawhill said yesterday.

"But we want them to keep in mind the energy shortage has not disappeared. We want them to remain energy-conscious and to take shorter and fewer trips."

The Marin Hospital District board also:

ALCOHOLISM UNIT — Declared that the county of Marin must obtain a state license by July 1 for its "inebriation recovery unit" in a section of the Community Mental Health Center.

GIFT — Accepted an $8,500 gift from the Marin General Hospital Foundation for equipment.

MASTER PLAN — Was told by its architect that the first part of the hospital's proposed expansion of its outpatient facilities, emergency room, laboratories, X-ray lab and physical therapy center will cost $8.67 million.

RESIGNATION — Accepted the resignation of Harold Riede who has been the board's counsel since 1952 and temporarily appointed his son, Richard S. Riede, to the attorney's job.

TRAINING — Signed an agreement with the College of Marin to train emergency technicians in the hospital emergency room.

Billie Jean King New Bank Director

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Billie Jean King, player-coach of the Philadelphia Freedoms of World Team Tennis, was elected yesterday to the board of directors of Lincoln Bank as a special consultant on women's services.

Board chairman Norman D. Denny said she agreed to serve on the board after learning of the bank's plans to formulate equal lending policies for women.

Protesters On Campus Evicted

BOULDER, Colo. (UPI) — Nine demonstrators who took over a University of Colorado administration building, were evicted by campus police yesterday and issued summons for burning university records.

A spokesman for the campus police, said the demonstrators who were seeking a $345,000 university-sponsored day care center, were ordered removed from the office of the director of the University Development Foundation by university president Frederick Thieme.

He said the protesters offered no resistance and accepted the summons which charged them with interference with faculty staff or students of an educational institution.

Trowbridge Seeks End To Marriage

San Rafael investor Gardiner Trowbridge II, accused by his wife of wasting nearly half a million dollars in the last five months, yesterday asked a dissolution of his marriage.

In a petition filed in Marin Superior Court, Trowbridge said he separated from his wife, Marianna, on April 2.

Last month Mrs. Trowbridge won at least a temporary conservatorship by an accountant and a bank for her husband's property after telling the court he spent $461,000 without getting anything in return for it. She said persons with access to his affairs had taken advantage of him. Trowbridge is president of Bridgehaven International Corp., an investment firm.

In Trowbridge's petition, he said that the family home at 230 Summit Avenue in the Country Club section is his personal property as is a 50 per cent interest in Ferguson Farms and a life interest in various trusts.

Listed as community property were five autos, an unspecified number of race horses, Maragar Stables, jewelry, and bank accounts.

The Trowbridges, who have three children, were married in Connecticut in 1956.

San Quentin Stab Victim Recovering

A San Quentin inmate was reported in good condition today at the prison hospital with a minor stab wound received yesterday when he was attacked by a group of three inmates.

John Adams, 25, was walking in the prison's upper yard yesterday morning when three assailants rushed upon him, according to a prison spokesman.

Guards fired a shot in the air and seized the attackers, who are now locked up in a special security section of the prison, the spokesman said.

Adams is serving concurrent terms from one year to life for grand theft and armed robbery. He has been at the prison since September, 1973.

Park Land Foundation Explored

A group of about 25 Marin residents who want to form an advisory committee to help state park officials with programs at park lands in Marin held an organizational meeting last night in Belvedere.

Marin Area State Parks Mgr. Jack Hesemeyer said that the group talked about helping with nature and historical programs, forming a docent group and doing fund raising for parks.

The group agreed to begin filing with the state to form a foundation.

Hesemeyer said that the group probably would focus on Angel Island at first but then might expand its interest to other Marin areas.

Present at the meeting were representatives of environmental and youth groups and other clubs.

Consultant's Fee A Mind Boggler

An $18,000 bill from a consulting firm working with the county grand jury prompted anger and dismay yesterday from several Marin County supervisors.

"I'm absolutely freaked out by this," Supervisor Gary T. Giacomini told his colleagues as they reviewed the bill from Peat, Marwick and Mitchell of San Francisco.

Giacomini said the bill charged the county up to $65 per hour for "those idiots that purport to be consultants."

The amount is the highest hourly rate every paid consultants by the County of Marin. The firm's payment request also asks for $8 per hour for typing.

Even Supervisor Robert A. Roumiguiere, who supported the grand jury's hiring of the firm, said he was taken aback by the consulting costs — which ranged from $30 to $65 per hour. (By comparison, the county's economic consultants, Baxter, McDonald and Smart, charged fees ranging up to $40 per hour.)

The firm was hired by the grand jury, armed with a court order from Superior Court Judge E. Warren McGuire, over the objections of county supervisors.

The grand jury maintained that it needed the firm's services to study county management procedures.

Chairman Michael Wornum said yesterday he spent "an hour telling them about county government when they were supposed to be telling me."

"I'm surprised the two that talked with me are getting more than the minimum wage," Giacomini said. "This is the greatest misuse of funds I've seen . . . It's almost criminal."

Supervisor Arnold M. Baptiste, who said he was surprised at the hourly charges, urged the board not to prejudge the firm's report, which is nearing completion.

Students will read original poems to a background of mimes, dancers, instrumentalists, sound effects and choral chants by other students interpreting the poetry.

Brightly painted murals of American Indian art, African mythology, imaginary worlds and the African countryside have been done on the school's courtyard walls by fourth through eight-grade students.

Rock Member Has One Count Reduced

LEWISBORO, N.Y. (UPI) — Jerry Wayne LaCroix, 31, of the Blood, Sweat and Tears rock group, has been fined $50 on a reduced charge of driving "while ability is impaired."

LaCroix was arrested Saturday in Bedford, N.Y., by state police who said he was clocked at speeds of 134 m.p.h. in a 55-mile-an-hour zone on Interstate 684.

North San Pedro Road Design Wins Approval Of Supervisors

Marin County supervisors yesterday unanimously approved design plans for long-sought improvement of North San Pedro Road near Civic Center.

The estimated cost, including a separate bicycle path along the one-mile stretch, is $1 million.

A group of residents from the area, including a number of school children, urged the board to proceed with the project as quickly as possible. They also supported the separate bike path.

As designed, the project would be built over three or four years. However, Supervisor Peter R. Arrigoni Jr. urged the public works department to consider construction in one year to minimize disruption of the Santa Venetia area.

Right-of-way acquisition has already been started and future funding for the project will be discussed during June budget hearings.

The Marin County Board of Supervisors also:

CAPITAL COSTS — Deferred indefinitely discussion of the county administrator's proposed $4 million capital improvement program for fiscal 1974-75. The matter was dropped when Barrows told the board the preliminary budget is being printed, too late for changes that might result from discussions of the improvement program.

ESCALATOR — Agreed with the Marin Association of Public Employees' request that the escalator in the Administration Building be switched back on. It was turned off to conserve energy.

CRIMINAL JUSTICE — Heard a report from Anthony Palumbo, executive director of the state office of criminal justice planning, that there was no misuse of funds by the North Bay Criminal Justice Planning agency. The charge was made by Superior Court Judge Charles Read Best, a member of the regional board.

RETIREMENT — Accepted an actuarial report on the county's retirement system and increased the county contribution from 10.95 per cent to 11.02 per cent.

APPEAL — Rejected the appeal of Peter Kagel, who objected to having to prepare an environmental impact report in order to build a home adjacent to Paper Mill Creek near Inverness.

GENERAL PLAN — Adopted the Novato General Plan. Adoption by the county carries no legal weight but amounts to a promise of cooperation in future planning with the city.

CONFERENCE — Authorized Supervisor Gary T. Giacomini to represent Marin at a growth control conference being sponsored later this month in Virginia by the National Association of Counties. Cost of the three day conference — including travel — is estimated at $500.

BID — Awarded a $29,300 contract to Ghilotti Brothers of San Rafael to repair slide damage and do shoreline work at Paradise Beach Park near Tiburon.

STAFF — Agreed to hire an "office manager" to coordinate the activities of various county service areas and voted 3 to 2 (Baptiste and Roumiguiere dissenting) to finance the new position out of the general fund for one year.

BIKE POLICY — Adopted a county policy aimed at promoting construction of bicycle paths as part of road projects, among other things. The policy also calls for uniform standards of construction and encouragement of bicycle safety programs.

Solzhenitsyn's Idea Dismissed

MOSCOW (UPI) — The weekly Literaturnaya Gazeta today dismissed exiled author Alexander I. Solzhenitsyn's proposals for returning to Czarist traditions as "absurdities."

It compared the idea to a suggestion that Great Britain regain possession of its lost North American colony, the United States.

The commentary was the first Soviet press analysis of a letter the Nobel Prize-winning author sent last September to the Soviet leadership.

Solzhenitsyn urged the Kremlin to abandon Marxist ideology and to model the state on Czarist authoritarianism supported by Russian orthodox traditions.

Hess Again Seeks Prison Freedom

MUNICH, Germany (UPI) — Former Nazi deputy fuehrer Rudolf Hess, serving a life sentence for World War II war crimes, again has appealed to the three Western allies and the Soviet Union for his freedom.

Hess' lawyer, Alfred Seidl, said he asked for the old Nazi's release for humanitarian and juridical reasons.

Hess turned 80 April 26 in the Spandau war crimes prison in West Berlin where he is serving a life term.

NOT FOR MONEY

Legal Aid Force Represents Poor

By GEORGE NEVIN

Though it may not be apparent to the casual visitor viewing Marin's well-kept communities for the first time, the county does have its share of poor people.

The 1970 census says 13,090 residents, or 6.6 per cent of Marin's population, have incomes below the official federal poverty level.

Like their wealthier neighbors, the poor have disputes with their landlords, marital troubles, conflicts with the state over disability and unemployment benefits, and other legal needs.

But there's one big difference — a drugstore clerk earning $3 an hour and supporting two children can't afford to pay up to $100 an hour to hire an attorney.

It is for these residents that the Legal Aid Society of Marin was formed in 1958 by the Marin County Bar Association.

The pleasant, carpeted offices of the society at 710 C Street provide working space for four attorneys, volunteer workers and four college students who represent a new trend in the legal profession — paralegals.

George D. Ford is one of the full-time attorneys. He said he's worried the society's slim budget reduces its effectiveness.

"We just don't have the money to prepare for involved cases. In a sense, we're handcuffed," he said.

For example, the society helped Joaquin Gallardo prepare his legal challenge to San Rafael's redevelopment agency, but it didn't have the resources to do the most complete job possible.

Another Legal Aid attorney, Richard Hirsch, said the society, with a projected budget of $129,063 for the 12 months starting April 1, really needs $200,000 per year.

This would permit hiring another attorney to take part of the caseload of the four the society now employs. It also would allow hiring consultants and expert witnesses, said Hirsch.

But despite this scarcity of funds, Ford, a staff member for two years, said the Legal Aid Society is one of the more successful and effective free legal institutions in California.

CRLA (California Rural Legal Assistance) has a reputation as being very good," he said. "We are approaching the brand of legal services that CRLA offers, and we're better than most small programs of this type in the state."

One way to judge the effectiveness of a legal aid program, said Hirsch, is by looking at the number of "impact cases" its lawyers have won.

These cases, he explained, go beyond satisfying the needs of the individual client and can be applied to others in the same circumstances.

In recent months, said Hirsch, the society has won cases for a waitress who was denied maternity leave, and a young girl who needed Medi-Cal to have a baby but didn't want to tell her parents.

As a result, the society's image has been improving in legal circles — a valuable result, according to Hirsch.

"Some lawyers don't take legal aid lawyers seriously," he explained. "So they won't negotiate with us to settle cases. They think they'll have no trouble beating us in court."

"But we've been building up a winning reputation, an aura of respect. We're trying to do high-quality service so that even though our clients are poor and a lot of time considered second-class citizens, they're not getting second-rate legal services."

With the society's attorneys paid $12,000 per year, a fraction of what can be earned in private practice, it's clear they aren't Legal Aid lawyers for the money.

The lawyers' salaries fall well below the Franchise Tax Board's computation that the average adjusted gross income in Marin was $15,090 for 1971, the last year for which figures are available. But it is largely idealism that draws the lawyers in and keeps them there.

The Legal Aid attorneys have long backgrounds of working in other poverty law fields. Some have represented poor people in Eastern slums, or Indian reservations and through other government programs such as VISTA and CRLA.

"If we weren't here, a lot of people wouldn't be getting legal help. They'd be getting evicted, getting civil judgments against them and not getting their dissolutions (of marriage)," said Ford.

The society's funds come from the federal Office of Economic Opportunity (projected to contribute $67,000 this fiscal year), Marin County ($25,000), the United Bay Area Crusade ($10,000) the Marin County Bar Association ($7,500), an $18,625 federal grant and miscellaneous donations.

Nuts and bolts cases handled by the society are dissolutions of marriages, landlord-tenant disputes, consumer cases and appeals of denials by state boards for unemployment, disability and welfare.

No criminal case is handled, nor is any lawsuit in which the client might win a money judgment. The society refers the former to the public defender and the latter to private attorneys.

The no-money-judgment case rule was made by the OEO under pressure from private attorneys, who didn't want a federally-supported law program to cut into their business. But Hirsch said anyone with a good damage suit usually has little trouble finding an attorney to take it on speculation.

Hirsch estimated between 12 and 20 per cent of Marin's residents are eligible for the society's services. Anyone below the official poverty level qualifies, as do those on fixed incomes, usually senior citizens who have been turned down three times by private lawyers due to lack of money.

Besides the San Rafael office, the society has an office at the Harriett Tubbman house near the Manzanita Center in Marin City on Mondays and Wednesdays, run by attorney L. Naomi Wilkes. She is studying poverty law in Marin on a fellowship.

Much of the preliminary casework — interviewing of clients and doing legal research and paperwork — is being handled by volunteers who work as paralegal aides.

These aides also represent clients in hearings before state boards on welfare, unemployment and disability appeals.

THE LAW IN MOTION — Several thousand times a year, attorneys for the Legal Aid Society of Marin interview clients unable to afford private legal advice. Here, L. Naomi Wilkes discusses a landlord-tenant dispute with a client. Such tenant cases, along with family disputes, welfare and disability questions and appeals of unemployment compensation decisions make up the bulk of the society's workload.

Swim Program At Novato To Open Saturday

The Novato Parks and Recreation Department will open its municipal swimming program Saturday at the Novato High School pool.

The pool will be open from 1 to 5 p.m. Saturdays and Sundays until June 17, when the summer schedule will begin. The pool will be open for swimmers of all ages except noon to 1 p.m. Sundays, when it is reserved for adults and children under 6 years of age.

There will be resident and nonresident fees and all swimmers without a swim pin will pay the higher nonresident fees, the department reported.

The resident fees are 25 cents for children 12 and under, 35 cents for those 13 to 18 yeras of age and 50 cents for adults. Nonresidents fees are 50 cents, 75 cents and 90 cents respectively.

Persons who bring proof of residence to the pool between noon and 3 p.m. on weekends can obtain swim pins, which must be worn on the swimmer's bathing suit.

Proscription On Advertising Denies Free Speech

A three-judge federal court in Richmond, Va., has ruled that a Virginia law prohibiting advertising of prescription prices is an unconstitutional abridgement of the right of free speech.

The ruling has interesting implications.

IN CALIFORNIA, the State Board of Pharmacy — set up ostensibly to protect consumers — for many years forbade comparative price advertising of prescription drugs and brought pressure on any druggist who refused to accept this censorship. Under a new law which took effect this year, California pharmacies are required to post in their stores the prices of a specified list of most-used prescription drugs. But the state board continues to discourage the same kind of listing in advertisements.

The Virginia ruling came in a case in which the state's board of pharmacy raised all the stock arguments against advertising. The court rejected them all.

Its decision was on simple and logical grounds: A vendor's right of free speech includes the right to let the public know how much he is charging. As a corollary, the public benefits from this information.

In our state, regulatory boards set up by the state itself or by professional or trade associations forbid advertising in many other fields.

For example, doctors are forbidden to advertise at all. Not only are they precluded from publicly announcing their standard fees for appendectomies, delivery of babies, removal of warts — or even how much they charge for house and office calls; they cannot even advertise their specialties so that a person in search of a doctor can readily find out which ones specialize in the illness he suffers or the type of treatment he seeks.

Similarly dentists are not allowed to advertise their prices for extractions, false teeth, or other services — or their specialties.

Even the veterinarians, through their own organization, have forbidden price advertising.

Engineers and architects, under the pretense of "professional ethics," proscribe bidding on jobs. Architects are forbidden to advertise their services (although they are noted for seeking free publicity).

ATTORNEYS — who of all the professions owe most to free speech and should be most diligent to protect it — have their own censorship rules. An attorney cannot advertise how successful he has been, what kind of law is his specialty, or anything else.

All of these are restrictions on free speech. Under the inescapable logic of the federal court in Virginia, all are unconstitutional. And the public would be better off if they all were abandoned forthwith.

If Results Do Not Please, Change The Rules Accordingly

WASHINGTON — You may not discern right off what it is that goal posts on the end line, gas mileage figures on a Detroit monster, A's and B's on a report card, and monthly statistics on the cost of living have in common. It takes a moment to explain.

In the National Football League, the goal posts henceforth will be behind the end zone rather than on the goal line, which will make it harder to kick field goals. That is just one of the rules the league owners decreed to make things tougher for the defense and promote more offensive action.

WHAT MAKES THE CHANGES more important than they would be standing alone, and thus gets to me, is that they fall so neatly into a pattern we in this country are becoming habitual about. Instead of changing our style of play or politics or life to conform to the rules, nowadays we hasten to change the rules instead, to fit the way we prefer to do things.

Thus boys and girls in the '60s figured out that striving to make good grades required more effort than merely showing up for class occasionally, and in some schools the authorities accommodated them and instituted the pass-fail system. Grades are inconvenient, so they did away with grades.

Thus the Environmental Protection Agency has a laboratory program for testing how many miles the cars on the U.S. market get to a gallon of gasoline on a typical stop-and-go drive. That agency published its figures, down to the last decimal point, and in almost all cases they showed fewer m.p.g. than the automobile manufacturers had been claiming. This was bad for all car companies, but for the Detroit mind-benders who gradually have accustomed customers to thinking of gadget-loaded dreadnoughts as "standard," it was an especially appropriate punt in the pants.

So, to go along with the long-overdue scramble back to automobiles of reasonable size and operating economy, there is the accompanying campaign to change the way the mileage is computed, and by whom. The EPA clearly is too consumer oriented; the White House is about to turn the testing over to Commerce or Transportation or someone similarly sympathetic to Detroit's problem.

THUS AGAIN, when Mr. Nixon was approaching the re-election campaign of 1972, the consumer price index compiled by the Bureau of Labor Statistics kept going up, month after month. As we have seen elsewhere, the administration was impatient with arms of the bureaucracy that did not brighten its political prospects. So the White House moved political appointees into key spots in the BLS, hoping to tone down its embarrassing impartiality.

The economic news has persisted in its previous direction, however. Now there is a move to redo the formula by which the BLS figures the monthly index, and the labor unions are incensed that it will reduce wage escalations keyed by contract to the cost of living. My expert friends assure me that this time the reason for change is valid and statistical, rather than political, but, considering all that has gone before, suspicion will not away.

By now it seems natural to assume whenever there is a little doubt that the government is probably rigging the rules to make itself look better. And when something really revolutionalry comes along, like moving the goal posts back and kicking off from the 35-yard line, too many blase Americans are inclined to shrug it off as just another revolution like all revolutions.

There ought to be a rule.

ROSCOE DRUMMOND

Open Letter To Party Chairmen Calls For Higher Standards

Mr. Robert Strauss, Democratic National Chairman

Mr. George Bush, Republican National Chairman

Washington, D.C.

Gentlemen:

You will not be surprised, I trust, that I am addressing you jointly. We in the press know that you are not on each other's "enemy lists" because you don't work that way. You are political opponents who regard each other as friends. You can talk together comfortably about the state of American politics.

Naturally you are busy getting ready to help defeat the other's political party in the elections this fall and in 1976. That's good. That's a high priority.

BUT THERE IS SOMETHING you can do together. It has even a higher priority. It is even more important than winning an election. You can work together to win back the credibility, confidence and respect of American voters in their political institutions, including the political parties.

The need is great.

The opportunity is within your reach.

The stake is reclaiming the integrity of the political process in America.

No two national party chairmen have ever confronted such an urgent need. It cuts across all partisanship.

OF COURSE IT WILL help if you act separately, but I am convinced that you will greatly increase your effectiveness by acting together.

By appearing jointly, by speaking jointly, by aligning yourselves jointly behind a common goal, you can do much to demonstrate to voters that the leadership of the political parties has grasped the mood of the nation and is determined to cleanse the democratic process of everything that has sullied it in recent times — and no party has had a monopoly on what has sullied it.

Let the word go out from your joint leadership:

That tainted campaign money is unwelcome and will be rejected.

That every dollar received will be independently accounted for.

That congressional candidates bearing the banner of either the Democratic or Republican parties will stand on one plank above others: "Not what selfish politics can do for me, but what I can do for worthy government."

That decency and rectitude in government are more important than ideology.

That "campaign oratory" will be kept within reasonable bounds and campaign promises will be viewed as a mandatory, moral obligation to be fulfilled.

I KNOW, Mr. Bush and Mr. Strauss, that you can't with a facile handout or a single stirring speech prove to a politically disillusioned nation that reform is ablaze in the land.

But you can help light it. You can begin to raise up a standard to which many will be eager to repair.

Undoubtedly you have been thinking about this. You will render the nation an incalculable service if you decide to act together and speak out together to the same end.

Respectfully,
Roscoe Drummond

Stull Bill Gives Parents Voice On Pupil Records

By RUS WALTON

Let's suppose your Marvin, or Myrtle, attends a California public school. Let's take Marin for example.

Since the day he started kindergarten, the school system has been keeping a file on him. Test scores, class grades, health data — and more: "soft data" such as opinions and observations of teachers, school psychologists, principals and counselors, and the like.

Marvin's file is cumulative. It will grow year by year and follow him through all his school days. New teachers will use it to check back to see what former teachers had to say about old Marv-boy.

Some of that material could be damaging to Marvin — if not now, in days and years to come. Some derogatory comments might be the effusion of an overworked and harassed teacher or an evaluation made by someone not competent to pass such judgments.

STATE LAW MANDATES that those records —all of them — must be available to the child's parents, shown to them on request. Any school official who refuses to do so, or who knowingly withholds any part of the file, can be taken to task or to court.

What can you do if you review Marvin's file and find that it contains an item that seems unfair, unfounded or improper? Can you demand that it be removed? Or, that it be amended by rebuttal?

Nope, not now. But State Sen. John Stull, R-Encinitas, is working on that. For the second year, Stull has introduced legislation that would provide a way for parents to cleanse their child's record of derogatory remarks found to be inaccurate or improper.

ENACTMENT OF STULL'S SB 1845 would establish this procedure:

— If a parent finds in his child's file any material he considers "inaccurate" or "non-factual," he can appeal to the school district superintendent and ask that the material be removed. The superintendent must then consider the matter and decide whether the information should remain in the file.

— If the superintendent decides the material should be kept, the parent can (a) submit an "objection" statement that would be made a permanent part of the file or (b) appeal to the district board of education.

The board then must hold a closed meeting with the superintendent, the parents and the teacher involved. If the board decides for the parent, the report is removed from the file. If the board agrees with the teacher and the superintendent, the report stays. However, the parent can, at that point, submit a rebuttal statement that becomes part of the child's report.

SB 1845 RECEIVED favorable hearing in the Senate Education Committee and was held over so that some proposed amendments could be refined.

The California Teachers Assn. has recommended an amendment:

Whenever a teacher, or credentialed person, plans to place anecdotal material in a student's file, the parents of the child must be notified that such material is being placed in the record and that it might be considered negative or damaging. The parent would be urged to review the material with the teacher before it is made part of the record.

THE PEOPLE'S SCHOOLS: Law In The School

By BRYCE W. ANDERSON

A frequent citizen complaint is that school personnel make too little effort to enforce order in classrooms and on campuses.

A frequent teacher complaint is that teachers who try to enforce order receive too little backing from school administrators.

A frequent administrators' complaint is that "our hands are tied by the law" in dealing with unruly pupils.

THE CALIFORNIA attorney general's office, in the belief that better understanding of the law may reduce such complaints, has just issued a paperback book called "Law in the School."

The book, prepared by Deputy Atty. Gen. Joel S. Moskowitz, sets forth, citing many examples, what school personnel are required to do in upholding law and order on school property, what they may safely do in dealing with suspicions of infractions, and what they are not allowed to do.

A preface says: "This book has two theses. The first is that the operation of the criminal law does not stop at the schoolyard gate. . . The second thesis is that. . . neither students nor teachers shed their constitutional rights at the schoolhouse gate."

MANY TEACHERS, principals and superintendents may be surprised at the powers they have, as outlined in "Law in the School."

For example, school officials may search a student if they have reason to suspect him of a crime or even an infraction of school rules. And they may make the search forcibly. (An appellate court decision is cited.)

Also, school officials may search a student's locker if they have reason to suspect it contains stolen goods or contraband. They need no search warrant. (Again, an appellate court decision is cited.)

"It is clear," says the book, "that school officials have the right to conduct searches and seize contraband under circumstances in which law enforcement officers would not be allowed to search or seize."

Moreover, teachers and principals have authority over students in enforcing district regulations — not just laws. They can mete out their own punishment, which may consist of suspension or expulsion (though, for the latter, only after a hearing), for rule infractions which violate no law.

Further, the book points out, school disciplinary actions have no bearing on criminal prosecution where a law violation is involved. The school need not wait until the law acts — and vice versa.

THE STUDENTS' constitutional right most frequently cited is that of free speech. But, "Law in the Schools" points out, this is not an absolute. The same degree of freedom of speech that prevails in a public park or on a public street does not prevail in the classroom.

The book cites federal court decisions — including several by the U.S. Supreme Court — which give considerable latitude to student publications, permit pamphleteering on the school grounds, and even allow outside agitators to enter the campus to harangue the students.

However, it also points out that the schools are obligated to protect the pupils, and to do so may make their own rules.

THIS OBLIGATION places a responsibility on school personnel, for shirking which they may be answerable in court. To fulfill the obligation, school officials from teachers to superintendents and trustees are given wide powers. "Law in the School" quotes from a California Supreme Court decision in Dailey vs. Los Angeles Unified School District:

"California law has long imposed on school authorities a duty to supervise at all times the conduct of children on the school grounds and to enforce those rules and regulations necessary to their protection."

Moreover, this obligation includes calling on police — and not merely as a last resort. "If a fire hydrant located on the school grounds were to burst, the teachers would not try to repair it themselves," writes Deputy Attorney General Moskowitz. "They would call a professional. Likewise, it is the province of professional law enforcement to deal with crime and disorder."

Atty. Gen. Evelle J. Younger is distributing "Law in the School" to school districts throughout the state. If superintendents see to it that all faculty members read the book, the complaints cited at the beginning of this column should be heard less frequently.

"The birth and fertility rates hit a new ... again. But we can always remove their tonsils and adenoids."

WILL ROGERS SAYS . . .

"Say, what's this May Day thing? We used to look on it as a beautiful spring day when we had a picnic and fastened ribbons to the top of poles and danced around and sang and played. We had no mass production (only in children). We had no Federal Reserve or Farm Relief. Everybody was just poor and ignorant enough to be happy.

"But now, May Day with all our modern accomplishments, is for the dissatisfied. He arises early so he can denounce longer, prints an obituary notice on a banner of everybody that has tried to make him earn his living during the year, and he just has one of the best times of his life.

CAPITOL QUIPS

By PHIL DESSAUER

President Nixon is a proud man who asks only one favor: Have his next popularity poll taken among Daughters of the American Revolution.

A news employes' strike against the Washington Post has ended. It was a bitter blow for Nixon, who hoped it would go on forever.

Disregard for long-held truths may force us to shave them a little. How about "Honesty Is The Second-Best Policy"?

WHAT OUR READERS SAY

Would Set Letter Postage By Distance

Why do we have to pay 10 cents to mail a local letter and can send mail for 10 cents anywhere in U.S.? I think it should be as the phone company does, 10-cent local calls and goes up the farther away it gets.

I feel I'm paying for everyone else's letter, seeing as how I don't have any relatives or friends outside of the Bay Area.

Local letters should be no more than five cents and go on up according to location being sent to.

This would also increase income and maybe allow more help and get better service.

Mrs. SHIRLEY FRANSON
San Rafael.

(Originally the United States Post Office charged varying rates for carrying letters, depending on the distance. Early in the last century, the charge for a single-sheet letter ranged from six cents within 100 miles to 25 cents over 400 miles. Competition by express companies, which carried letters at lower prices, forced reduction of rates in 1845, with the letter rate pegged at five cents regardless of distance. When parcel post was introduced, varying rates were set for different zones, depending on distance the parcel was to be carried — a system which continues to prevail. — Editor)

Advice For Councilman Who Refused Salute

Reference: "Sausalito Council Flap on Flag Salute," I-J, April 25:

Bouquets to Councilman Sally Stanford, citizens Phyllis Robertson, Inez Hiscock and Robert Herr.

Your remarks, directed against Councilman (newly elected) Violeta Autumn, a naturalized citizen, were well stated. Probably more so than what was made public.

To Councilman Violeta Autumn, please let me say: You are now a citizen of the greatest nation in the world. Our flag, "Old Glory," is America. Your refusal to recognize it in our simple Pledge of Allegiance ceremony does not speak well for your hard-earned citizenship. However, in this respect you have lots of company. Regrettably, some American citizens are now taking your stand. But in your case you have the privilege of renouncing your hard-earned citizenship and returning to South America. However don't blow it so easily. Try another way. When in Rome, do as the Romans do.

Marin Coalition On Water Board Election

Marin Coalition would like to commend the Independent-Journal for its endorsement of candidates for the water board. The selection of those candidates who stand for just regulation through the duly empowered agencies is certainly a step in the right direction toward better government.

Marin Coalition's concern for the proper pursuits of the governing body is reflected in a statement from the Declaration of Independence, "Prudence, indeed, will dictate that governments long established should not be changed for transient causes."

With this in mind, Marin Coalition feels that the MMWD should engage in only those activities which are under its jurisdiction.

THE MIND I LIVE IN

Strange Brain Malady Robs Legislators' Sense

By ROB TREICHLER

A recent questionnaire from a state legislator posed the question, "Should motorists be required by law to wear seat belts?"

I have very strong reasons for using seat belts, and personally feel everyone else should. I've heard most of the arguments against their use, and none of them makes any sense when objectively analyzed.

But I am emphatically against any law making it illegal to drive a car without buckling up.

One apparent hazard of legislative office is a type of brain disfunction that affects a lawmaker's common sense soon after election. The affliction is possibly latent in all of us, and surfaces when lubricated by splendid terms such as "the majesty of the law", "the will of the people", "our God-given rights," and like that. This condition leads to perceptual difficulties and results in confusion between the passage of a law and the elimination of a problem.

AS A RESULT, a law maker, moved by exposure to some social injustice, man's inhumanity to man, or his brother-in-law's tax problems, will compose a law. I am amazed that this legislative rationale has not yet resulted in regulations outlawing the common cold, houseflies and post-nasal drip.

Having outlawed the problem, they move on to the next pressing item of business, confident of a niche in lawmaking history alongside Jefferson, Moses and Disraeli, while the law-abiding public picks gingerly through the spoor of yet another ponderous legislative session. Common sense, had the lawmakers any, would time and again leave ample evidence that there is more to the elimination of a problem than outlawing it.

BASIC TO THE PASSAGE of any new law should be consideration of its eventual enforcement. If a law is on face value unenforceable, it should receive no further consideration.

Consideration also should be given to the important facts of whom the law restrains, and who will be benefitted by its passage.

Let's assume that a law requiring seat belt fastening were enacted. How would this law be enforced? By policemen riding in tall cars peering over window ledges? By spotters on overpasses with binoculars and two-way radios? By sophisticated electronic interlock devices that trigger a blue roof-mounted light when belts are unfastened?

Who would benefit from the passage of such a law, besides the makers of tall-law enforcement vehicles, binoculars, two-way radios, electronic interlock devices and blue roof-top lights, and an entire force of government seat belt spotters?

THOSE WHO WORE belts before the passage of the law would continue to wear them; those who did not, in the main, would still not use them. There would be fines, true, but the cost of enforcement would be far in excess of the revenue. And we would still kill 50-60,000 people per year in auto accidents, many of whom would die sitting on top of electronically bypassed belts.

And in the end, we would all be the losers, as every poor law abrades and erodes respect for the law in general, and without law, the human race would soon be at an end.

SACRAMENTO ROUNDUP

'No-Knock' Action Dies In Assembly

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — The author of a bill which substantially changes California's "no-knock" laws says the measure appears dead for the current session of the Legislature.

"It appears that the measure is dead for this session," Assemblyman Robert McLennan said yesterday after the Assembly Criminal Justice Committee decided to withhold action on the bill for two weeks. The committee earlier killed the measure but voted to reconsider it yesterday.

The Downey Republican's bill (AB2779) would give law enforcement officers the right to enter a home without knocking if they have a judge's warrant authorizing the action.

McLennan earlier said his legislation would permit officers to catch persons before they flushed narcotics down a toilet or pulled out a gun.

Currently, officers can only enter domiciles without knocking under very limited circumstances if they have a warrant.

POT BILL

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — An Assembly-passed bill reducing the possible penalty for first-time conviction of marijuana possession from a felony to a misdemeanor has reached the Senate floor.

The bill (AB2758) by Assemblyman Alan Sieroty, D-Los Angeles, cleared the Senate Judiciary Committee yesterday on a 7-3 vote.

The measure would apply to persons convicted of possessing two ounces of marijuana or persons caught in their homes with four ounces or less.

It was opposed by spokesmen for California law enforcement agencies. Gov. Ronald Reagan has said he is against changing the law which allows court discretion on whether first-time marijuana offenses should be treated as misdemeanors or felonies.

If enacted, the bill probably would have little practical effect. Both supporters and opponents noted that virtually none of the first-time marijuana offenses are prosecuted.

A felony is punishable by up to 10 years in jail while a misdemeanor carries a maximum penalty of six months in county jail and a fine of $500.

New Treasury Boss Confirmed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — William E. Simon has been confirmed as President Nixon's fourth Secretary of the Treasury.

There was no debate yesterday as the Senate assented to the nomination on a voice vote.

Simon, former head of the Federal Energy Office, succeeds George P. Shultz, who announced his resignation earlier to return to private life sometime next month.

Shultz will remain at his post until Simon is sworn in by President Nixon. No date has been set for the swearing-in ceremony.

Organist To Play

Organist Bill McCoy of San Francisco will be the guest performer at the public recital sponsored by the Petaluma Organ Club to be held Monday at 8 p.m. in Sonoma Joe's restaurant. McCoy, who sells organs and gives lessons in San Francisco, is a regular weekend performer at the Pizza Pub in San Rafael.

Energy Plan Brings Resignation

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Chafing at Gov. Ronald Reagan's support of a compromise Democratic-sponsored energy bill, state Energy Coordinator Wesley G. Bruer has abruptly resigned to return to private business.

"I don't want to be a part of saddling this state with a powerful, independent commission which indirectly but effectively can control future growth and development," Bruer said in an interview.

"A guy has to sleep at night," he said half-jokingly.

Bruer resigned yesterday from his $28,548 a year job. A spokesman for Reagan said the governor accepted the resignation "reluctantly." Bruer's departure from state government was effective immediately.

His dispute with the governor involved legislation (AB1575) by Assemblyman Charles Warren, D-Los Angeles. It creates a five-member commission to deal with energy problems and nuclear power plant siting.

The bill would also impose a $16 million annual tax on electricity users of finance energy research and development.

Clyde Walthall, the governor's press secretary, said Reagan "isn't all that enamored with the Warren bill."

"But it is a compromise," Walthall stated, "and it just comes down to the fact that California cannot afford to do nothing and let the brownouts and blackouts occur because of a lack of energy."

Reagan veoted a similar bill last year, but the latest proposal was worked out with legislators over a period of weeks.

In Tennessee Valley

An item in Monday's residential burglary roundup incorrectly stated the Gary H. Greene apartment in Tiburon was burglarized. Actually, Green's apartment is on Tennessee Valley Road in Tennessee Valley.

Bruer declared the measure "seems to embody a concept which flies directly in the face of what the governor's position has been.

"I had indicated earlier if the administration continued to support this bill I would have to disassociate myself."

Bruer was appointed to his post only five months ago. Prior to that he was head of the state Division of Mines and Geology.

He said he would return to "private practice" as a consultant in the earth sciences field. Bruer managed an independent oil and gas exploration company before joining the Reagan administration.

WHAT'S IN STORE.....

OFF WITH CONTROLS!

Most are aware that federal controls on food prices were ended on April 15. There is some concern that this will mean an immediate increase in the weekly grocery bill, which is already straining the budgets of many homemakers.

We want to assure Alpha Beta customers that although these controls have been lifted, our stores will continue the policy of always offering the finest quality products at the lowest possible prices.

For some time Alpha Beta has felt that the forces of supply and demand and the competitive "give and take" of the marketplace are more effective in bringing the best food buys to the consumer than any type of artificially imposed controls.

It's asparagus season, time to take advantage of the good prices on the succulent spring vegetable. You might like to try a favorite Oriental dish.

ASPARAGUS BEEF
1 lb. top round steak
½ tsp. garlic salt
1 tsp. cornstarch
soy sauce
2 lbs. fresh asparagus
2 medium onions
½ tsp. salt
salad oil
3 tbsp. golden mushroom soup (undiluted)
½ tsp. sugar

Prepare all ingredients ahead of time. Cooking is done at last minute. Cut steak into ⅛" strips (2½" long). Put into bowl with garlic salt, cornstarch, and 2 tsp. soy sauce. Wash and trim asparagus, then cut on the sharp diagonal into strips ¼" x 2". Cut onions into ¼" slices.

Cooking: Heat frying pan or wok to highest heat. Add ¼ cup salad oil. Sear meat quickly, then remove meat and juices from skillet to bowl. Add 3 tbsp. salad oil to skillet. Add onions and cook until just clear. Add soup, asparagus, 1 tbsp. soy sauce, salt and sugar. Cover. Stir occasionally, cook until asparagus is tender. Add meat at last minute and heat through. Serve with rice. Serves 6.

This design by Thomas R. McClure of Oakland has been selected for the national medal for the centennial of the San Francisco cable car. Compromise With Economic Consultants

A contract dispute between Marin County supervisors and their economic consultant erupted briefly yesterday but faded quickly as both sides agreed to compromise on disputed items. (Another supervisors story, page 1.)

The dispute arose when the county counsel's office released an opinion that the firm of Baxter, McDonald and Smart had not fulfilled its contract obligations.

It said the firm should be required to print 200 copies of a "technical report" in addition to the 200 copies of its "summary report" already delivered on the "economic impact" of the county general plan.

Additionally, the county consel's office said, a film made by the firm as part of the study must be given to Marin and the consultants required to attend a number of public meetings on their report.

County Counsel Douglas J. Maloney based his opinion on a memorandum sent the county by consultant Angus N. McDonald, outlining what his firm would do for the $82,000 fee. That memo was made a part of the contract.

In a bitter response yesterday, McDonald said the cost of the economic study totaled $106,500, but that his firm had not attempted to bill the county for the overrun.

"We have already made a substantial gift to the county of Marin. We think that, in fairness and equity, not to mention the limitations of our obligation by the contract itself, the county should forego an effort to extract additional gifts. . . .," he said.

He said his firm was willing to give yp the film, which it had earlier offered for sale at $2,000, but objected to supplying the 200 technical reports.

He said the contract was fulfilled when 200 copies of the "summary report", which does not contain the extensive detail of the technical report, were delivered to the county.

He lashed out at the county for not paying its bills on time and said specific provisions were included in the contract "because of a previous consulting relationship with the county staff."

While chairman Michael Wornum attempted to keep the lid from blowing off, supervisor Robert A. Roumiguiere said he took exception to McDonald's attitude that the county exploited you. I resent that."

Roumiguiere said the firm had entered into the agreement with eyes open and if it had a cost overrun, that was its problem and shouldn't be considered "a gift" to the county.

The matter was handed over to County Administrator John F. Barrows to resolve after supervisors Michael Wornum and Arnold M. Baptiste said the firm should not be forced to provide the additional reports or staff time at public meetings.

The agreement hammered out by Barrows and McDonald leaves the $1,337 cost of printing the reports to the county and the $160 cost of binding them to the firm.

Also, the film will be given to the county and the firm will attend four of six future meetings free of cost. The county will pay for the other two.

Additionally, the consultants were promised a total of 40 hours more work with the county, not to exceed $1,600, for follow-up consultation on their report.

Court Orders Death Sentences

BEIRUT (UPI) — An Iraqi revolutionary court sentenced to death last night five members of a group accused of trying to stage bomb attacks on a Baghdad cinema and at Baghdad airport, the Iraqi News Agency said.

The agency said the defendants confessed that they were recruited by Kurdish leader Mullah Mustafa Barzani and other "foreign elements" to stage sabotage activities.

The state-run agency said Baghdad Television had shown the confessions of the "hireling clique," which it said tried to stage sabotage activities Sunday by "throwing sticks of explosives in the Atlas cinema in Baghdad and in the toilet at Baghdad International airport."

Superior Ratings Given Singers

A combined chorus from Del Mar and Reedland Woods schools in Tiburon and the Reedland Woods Choral Ensemble were among four groups awarded superior ratings at the Clifornia Music Educators Association festival in Santa Rosa Saturday.

They were chosen from among 22 entries.

Mountain Play Association Wins Last Minute Permit

Overruling the county administrator's office, Marin County supervisors yesterday issued a permit to the Mountain Play Association, but urged a careful watch be kept on parking at this year's annual event.

Richard M. Sims Jr., president of the association, appealed to supervisors after his request for a "carnival permit" was denied late Monday by the county administrator.

The denial was based on concern that "a monumental traffic jam" might occur at Pan Toll because of inadequate parking on the mountain.

The association's parking problems resulted when the Marin Municipal Water District board banned use of Rock Springs Meadow near the theater. The meadow had been used for parking for more than 30 years.

Sims told supervisors this group had found enough parking sites within one mile of the theater to handle about 340 autos.

He added that shuttle buses would be used for other patrons and hiking would be encouraged.

"The Mountain Play is Marin County," Supervisor Robert A. Roumiguirere said in moving swiftly to grant the permit.

"It's traditional," agreed Chairman Michael Wornum.

This year's performance, "Rough and Ready," is slated this Sunday and May 11 and 12.

Scouts Scotch Bunny Patrol

ATLANTA (UPI) — The Rabbit Patrol or the Bunny Patrol might have been acceptable. But the Atlanta Area Council of the Boy Scouts of America decided yesterday that a Playboy Patrol was going a little too far.

A group of boys in Troop 61 of suburban Smyrna named themselves the Playboy Patrol last week, rejecting traditional patrol names like the Owl Patrol or the Mole Patrol as boring.

A presentation of bunny patches and flags was to have been made to the troop tomorrow from a personal emissary from Playboy head Hugh Hefner and four shapely bunnies from the local Playboy Club.

But the Atlanta Area Council of the Boy Scouts of America called a halt to the planned activities yesterday, saying the presentation, or any further activities involving the Playboy organization, would not be permitted.

Seat Belt Fines

BONN (UPI) — By June 1975 all West German motorists must wear their safety belts or face heavy fines. Transport Minister Lauritz Lauritzen said he had figures to prove that a belted driver has a 600 per cent better chance of surviving an accident than a driver not wearing a safety belt.

1,500 Pupils See "Tom Sawyer"

By PAUL CANE

Huck Finn, Becky Thatcher, Injun Joe and all the characters of Mark Twain's "Tom Sawyer" came to life yesterday for more than 1,500 Marin schoolchildren at the Veterans' Memorial Building.

It was the last in a series of about 20 cultural affairs presented this year by the Youth in Arts program.

Before the play yesterday morning, a loquacious group of four enthusiastic fifth graders from Laurel Dell Intermediate School in San Rafael talked about what they expected the show to be like.

"It can't be like the movie," confided Scott Menges, 11, "because in the movie Injun Joe catches fire and falls off a cliff in the end. They wouldn't do something like that here, would they?"

"They," the San Francisco State University Repertory Theater Company, did not set Injun Joe afire, but the group did do a remarkable job of adapting Twain's 165-page novel to a lively 75-minute play for the youngsters. Kenneth Caviezel, a senior at the university, played the part of Tom Sawyer. He said the company has been working on the play for three months, and that it is now completing a 40-performance tour of Bay Area schools.

"We only get a chance to perform five shows a year at State, and this gives us a good chance to get more experience," he said.

The book was adapted for the stage by business manager Geri Silk, and Caviezel said the script is good for all ages. "Young kids can sit back and follow the story line by watching the movement, and for older kids there are some subtleties in the script that are enjoyable.

One of these subtleties that drew a few chuckles from teachers in the audience was a political jibe tossed in when Tom asserted in anger, "You won't have Tom Sawyer to kick around anymore!"

The Youth-in-Arts program has been in existence only for three years, and is designed to present at low cost cultural programs not ordinarily available to a great number of students. Events in the school year range from symphony to modern music to ballet to plays.

Youngsters, generally, were delighted by yesterday's event and became quite wrapped up in the plot.

Scott Miller, 11, was delighted with Tom Sawyer's skill used in conning his friends into whitewashing a fence for him.

Jack Feller, 11, approved of how Tom handled girlfriend Becky Thatcher, particularly in telling her of a previous romance. "If I was in his place, I'd have told Becky about the other girl. You've got to be honest," he said.

Does Jack himself have a girlfriend?

OH, THE PAIN — Tom Sawyer (Kenneth Caviezel) writhes in pseudo-agony, complaining of a toe infection that he hopes will keep him out of school for the day, as Sid (Benett Bolek) looks on sympathetically. The San Francisco State University Repertory Theater Company performed "Tom Sawyer" before more than 1,500 appreciative schoolchildren yesterday at the Veterans' Memorial Building.

"Not yet — but I'm working on it," he said with a laugh.

But the youngsters were not so involved with the story that they couldn't step back and study the lesson taught by the play. Referring to a courtroom scene where Tom risks his life by implicating Injun Joe in a murder, 10-year-old Tracy Boyce said discerningly, "You learn that, no matter what, you just have to tell the truth."

Although the Youth in Arts program receives some county financial assistance, expenses run high. The Veterans Memorial Building currently rents for $175 per day for the nonprofit group, according to Nyna Koppich of San Rafael, director of the program. Youth in Arts also pays some money for expenses of the current theater company (which performed twice the previous week to difierent audiences) even though the actors themselves get no money. Admission is also charged for the students themselves, 40 cents per person.

Group Household Penalty Pondered

Possible penalties for group households in which more than two unrelated persons occupy a single dwelling unit will be discussed by the Tiburon planning commission today at 8 p.m. at city hall.

Also on the agenda is a request from city planning director Robert E. Fosnot that the commission approve a new housing policy for the general plan.

Plenty Of People

SWEET AND sour cream sauce dresses up the dish of green beans for the barbecue. Other vegetables take well also to sauce such as herb-and-butter or butter with lemon juice, Worcestershire and touch of prepared mustard.

Sweet, Sour Dairy Cream Sauce Does Wonders For Green Beans

With a few basic dairy products on hand you can turn fresh or frozen vegetables into some interesting go alongs for whatever it is you're barbecuing on the grill or spit. Quite often this is the part of the menu that stumps the cook.

A simple butter and herb sauce can do wonders for any hot cooked vegetable. Or try whipping butter and blending in lemon juice, rosemary and tarragon leaves. Deviled butter is another lively one made by mixing melted butter with lemon juice, Worcestershire sauce and a bit of prepared mustard. The combinations are limitless.

This outstanding topping was developed for green beans. It's a quick tasty idea that can be a last minute thought. Cook the green beans until they are barely tender and they retain their crisp texture and optimum flavor. The sweet and sour topping is made with sauteed onions and dairy sour cream and is indeed a delicious addition to fresh or frozen green beans. Hot baking powder biscuits dipped in grated parmesan cheese before baking is another easy to do quickie that goes over big on a barbecue menu.

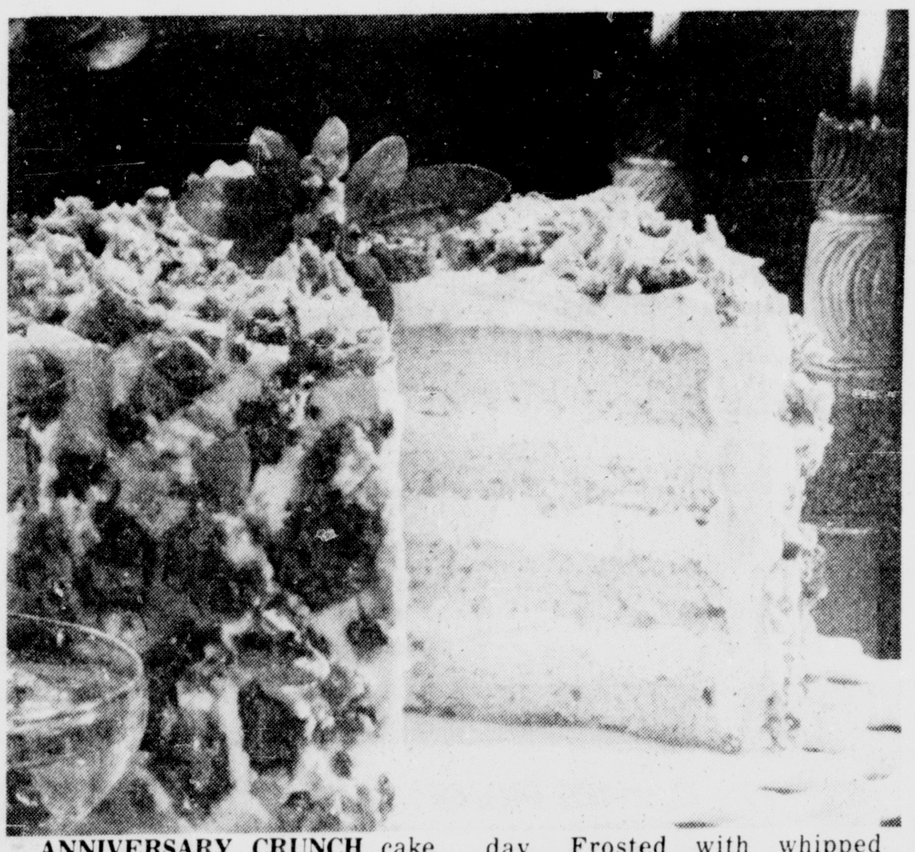
SOUR CREAM BEANS FOR BARBECUE

1 (10-ounce) package frozen cut green beans
½ cut water
1 medium onion, chopped
2 Tbsp. butter
1 Tbsp. flour
1 tsp. sugar
1 tsp. vinegar
2 Tbsp. minced parsley
½ tsp. salt
⅛ tsp. pepper
½ cup dairy sour cream

Cook green beans in water, covered, until tender crisp. Drain liquid into measuring cup and add water if necessary to measure half cup liquid. Saute onion in butter. Stir in flour, sugar, vinegar, parsley, salt, pepper and bean liquid.

Cook, stirring, until mixture thickens and comes to boil. Stir in sour cream. Serve over green beans. Sprinkle with additional minced parsley if desired.

Makes four servings.



ANNIVERSARY CRUNCH cake is for the special occasion and is best if made and eaten the same day. Frosted with whipped cream, it must be refrigerated until served.

A Novice Can Assemble This Layered Crunch Cake

A novice baker can easily duplicate the butter cake layers and whipped cream frosting. The coffee crunch topping sprinkled over the top and sides of the frosted cake is the only tricky thing to do. Even this becomes an uncomplicated venture if you follow the directions closely. It can be done ahead of time and keeps its appealing crunchy texture if stored in an airtight container.

Plan it for an occasion when you'll be serving the entire cake. It makes an impressive dessert for a dinner party or for other times like birthdays, graduation or anniversary parties when refreshments are traditionally centered around a festive cake.

Because anniversary crunch cake is put together and frosted with whipped cream it must be kept under refrigeration after assembling. To be at its prime, make and serve this cake the same day.

ANNIVERSARY CRUNCH CAKE

Sugar
3 eggs, separated
Vanilla
3 cups sifted cake flour
3 tsp. baking powder
½ tsp. salt
¾ cup milk
2 cups whipping cream
Coffee crunch

Beat butter with one and three-quarter cups sugar until fluffy. Beat in egg yolks and 1 teaspoon vanilla. Sift flour with baking powder and salt. Beat into butter mixture alternately with milk, mixing just until smooth. Fold in stiffly beaten egg whites. Pour batter into two greased and floured nine-inch round cake pans.

Bake in 350-degree oven 35 minutes or until cake springs back when lightly touched in center. Cool 10 minutes in pans then invert and cool on wire racks. Split each layer in half. Whip cream with half cup sugar and one teaspoon vanilla. Spread between cake layers, stacking them up. Spread cream on tops and sides. Press Coffee Crunch into whipped cream. Makes one (nine-inch) cake.

GOURMET COOKING

Tasty Dishes For Bay Outings

Just as the 1974 yachting season is getting underway, a specialized cook book, "Gourmets Afloat and Ashore" is ready to provide helpful suggestions for the boating life from Marinites who know.

Women whose husbands sail the 30-foot Knarr-class sloops on the bay share their own tested recipes in the compact collection packaged in a clear pliofilm casing to keep it dry aboard a yacht. Their purpose in publishing the cook book is to help provide funds for the International Knarr Championship Regatta, which will be hosted by San Francisco Yacht Club in Belvedere Aug. 31 to Sept. 7.

Categories include easy meals after a yacht race, regatta parties, provisioning suggestions, cocktail hour tidbits, barbecue ideas, luncheon menus for day sailing, supper for a sunset cruise, hearty soups for cold days on the bay, and cookies to provide quick energy for a hard-working crew.

Mrs. A. Robert Fisher of Belvedere edited the book, assisted by Mmes. Robert York and Rodney Friedman of Belvedere, Philip Salz of Sausalito, Fred Applegate of Tiburon, Ted McKown and Robert Geering of Mill Valley.

Saloma Fisher and some of the other wives of Knarr fleet members have attended classes at the California Cooking School in San Francisco, an interest which has led to the inclusion of favorite foreign dishes. Mrs. Fisher has taken advanced French cooking classes, and instruction in Italian and Oriental cuisine. She is now enrolled in a course based on Middle Eastern cookery.

Last week the committee made the work of collating pages and binding the book an occasion for a buffet dinner for Knarr sailors, their wives and friends at San Francisco Yacht Club in Belvedere. For the menu they selected eggplant caponata, lasagne Al Forno, and herb French bread. The recipes are all included in the cook book.

The eggplant side dish was ontributed by Bobbi Geering.

BOBBI'S EGGPLANT CAPONATA

2 pounds eggplant, peeled and cut into ½ inch cubes
½ cup olive oil
Salt and pepper to taste
½ cup chopped green pepper
½ cup chopped celery
¾ cup finely chopped onion
⅓ cup wine vinegar mixed with 2 tablespoons sugar
3 cups drained coarsely chopped Italian plum tomatoes
6 large green olives, pitted, slivered and rinsed
2 tbsp. capers
4 flat anchovy fillets, rinsed and pounded smooth
2 tbsp. pine nuts

Sprinkle eggplant cubes with salt and let stand 30 minutes in colander. Pat dry, squeezing out excess moisture. Heat oil in heavy skillet and saute eggplant till soft and lightly browned. Remove from pan with slotted spoon and drain off as much oil as possible. Use oil to cook onions until soft, then add celery and green pepper and cook eight to 10 minutes.

Return eggplant to pan and stir in vinegar and sugar, tomatoes, green olives, capers, anchovies and salt and pepper to taste. Bring to boil, reduce heat and simmer uncovered, stirring occasionally to prevent sticking, for 20 minutes. Stir in the pine nuts. Transfer to bowl and refrigerate.

Mrs. Fisher added the hearty lasagne recipe.

LASAGNE "AL FORNO"

1 pound lasagne pasta
2 Italian sausages, hot variety
2 Tbsp. olive oil

Marinara Sauce

3 Tbsp. olive oil
½ onion, minced
1 clove garlic, minced
2 cups chopped canned plum tomatoes
Salt and pepper to taste
Pinch of sugar

Cheese Mixture

2 pounds ricotta cheese
½ pound mozzarella cheese, grated
2 eggs
½ tsp. ground pepper
½ tsp. nutmeg
2 Tbsp. chopped parsley

Prepare marinara sauce. Saute onion and garlic in oil until soft. Add tomatoes and seasoning. Simmer for 30 to 40 minutes.

Cook lasagne pasta according to directions on the package.

Coat baking pan with olive oil. Spread a layer of the Marinara sauce, followed by a layer of lasagne. Add sausage and then the cheese mixture. Repeat layers.

HERB FRENCH BREAD

1 long loaf of brown and serve French bread
¼ pound of butter or margarine
1 Tbsp. fines herbes
1 Tbsp. chopped chives, fresh or freeze dried.

Mix herbes and chives into softened butter. Slice loaf into one-half inch slices. Spread butter mixture on both sides of each slice. Reassemble the loaf and wrap in aluminum foil. Bake according to directions on wrapper, adding five minutes to baking time. Serve hot.

Artichoke Season Arrives In State

The artichoke is a thistle-like perennial. The globe artichoke is the unopened flower bud whose edible portion consists of the tender leaf-like parts or "scales" which make up the bud.

In the U.S., only California produces artichokes with the peak of the year-round crop in April and May.

To Freeze Cheese

Time was when the homemaker was advised not to freeze cheese, but now you can freeze it under the following circumstances: if the cheese is kept in its original wrapper or if it is double-wrapped tightly in freezer wrap. When thawing, let the cheese defrost, slowly, in its wrappings in the refrigerator.

For Best Results

Artichokes should not be stored long. For best results, store them in the refrigerator in a moisture-proof bag or container, and use them as soon as possible.

Homemade Bread Is Rediscovered

An increasing number of Americans are rediscovering the joys of baking bread, not the least of which is that delicious aroma that permeates the house on baking day.

Once addicted to baking, home bread bakers often set out to expand their repertoire beyond basic yeast breads and rolls.

Baked Boston brown bread is a first cousin to steamed Boston brown bread, the traditional partner of the Saturday night bean pot. This baked version is unique in that it gets off to a quick start with a corn muffin mix, and includes a surprise ingredient, unsweetened cocoa. Filled with raisins and chopped nuts, this excellent quick bread is especially delicious served hot or toasted, with butter or cream cheese.

BAKED BOSTON BROWN BREAD

- 1 box (about 12 ounces) corn muffin mix
- ⅓ cup unsweetened cocoa
- 3 tablespoons all-purpose flour
- 2 tablespoons brown sugar, packed
- 1¼ cups milk
- 1 egg, beaten
- ¼ cup dark corn syrup
- ¾ cup raisins
- ¾ cup chopped nuts

Grease four one-pound cans (about three inches in diameter); set aside. Thoroughly combine corn muffin mix, cocoa, flour and brown sugar in a large bowl. Add milk, stirring until all dry ingredients are moistened; allow to stand five minutes. Blend in remaining ingredients; pour batter into prepared cans. Bake at 350 degrees for 35 to 40 minutes or until cake tester comes out clean when inserted in center. Allow breads to cool in cans five minutes. Remove from cans; slice and serve warm with butter or cream cheese. Makes four loaves.

Note: For muffins, fill greased muffin cups (2½-inches in diameter(two-thirds full. Bake at 350 degrees for about 15 minutes or until cake tester comes out clean. Cool in pans five minutes; serve warm. About 22 muffins. For gem muffins (1¾-inches in diameter), bake about 10 minutes. Makes about 40 muffins.

Almond Lamb Via New Zealand

Malai Korma (lamb with almond cream sauce) is an adaptation of a recipe from India that appeared in a New Zealand cookbook.

MALAI KORMA
(Lamb with Almond Cream Sauce)

- 2 lbs. lamb stew meat, cut in cubes
- 2 Tbsp. butter or margarine
- ⅓ to ½ cup slivered almonds
- 1 cup finely chopped onions
- 1 tsp. salt
- 2 tsp. turmeric
- ¼ tsp. ground ginger
- ¼ tsp. chili powder
- 1 small bay leaf
- 1 cup red table wine
- ½ cup sour cream

Trim excess fat from lamb. In a heavy frying pan or top-of-the-stove casserole, melt butter or margarine; add slivered almonds and roast, stirring frequently, until lightly browned; lift out and set aside. In same pan, cook onions just until browned; spoon out and reserve. Put lamb into frying pan and cook turning, until well browned. Spoon off any excess lamb fat and discard. Season the lamb with salt and add the browned onions.

Mix the spices and bay leaf into the wine and pour over the browned lamb. Simmer over low heat until lamb is tender. Just before time to serve, mix about half of roasted almonds into the sour cream and add to stew. Mix well and heat to simmering. Sprinkle remaining almonds over stew. Serve with hot steamed rice.

Makes four to six servings.

Toasting Stick

If the children want to toast marshmallows over your outdoor fire, improvise a toasting stick and wrap the end in aluminum foil.

A Different Twist For Beef Patties

CHINESE BEEF PATTIES

- 1 pound ground beef
- ¼ cup soy sauce
- 2 tablespoons Worchestershire sauce
- 1 tablespoon corn oil
- 1 green pepper, cut into thin strips
- ½ cup green onion slices (1-inch)
- ⅓ cup pimiento strips
- 1 can (16 ounces) bean sprouts, drained
- 2 cups beef broth
- 1 can (5 ounces) water chestnuts, sliced
- ½ cup water
- ¼ cup corn starch

Mix together beef, two tablespoons soy sauce and one tablespoon of the Worcestershire sauce. Form into one-inch patties. Heat corn oil in skillet over medium heat. Add patties; cook until browned, turning once. Remove from skillet. Place pepper, onion and pimiento in skillet. Cover and cook five minutes.

Add bean sprouts, broth, water chestnuts, meat patties, remaining soy sauce and Worcestershire sauce. Heat just until boiling. Mix water and corn starch until smooth; stir into mixture. Heat, stirring constantly, until mixture comes to a boil and boils 1 minutes.

Makes four to six servings.

CAKE

bined one and a half cups sugar, quarter cup coffee and quarter cup light corn syrup. Boil to 310 degrees or hard crack stage on candy thermometer. Remove from heat. Quickly stir in three teaspoons sifted baking soda. Stir vigorously just until mixture thickens and pulls away from sides of pan. Pour foamy mass into shallow metal pan. Let stand without moving until cool. Crush with rolling pin between sheets of waxed paper. Store in airtight container.

Opening Festivities For Small Boats Set

By MOLLY MARIN

Opening festivities of the 1974 small boat racing season on Belvedere Lagoon will begin with a dinner dance on Friday evening at Treasure Island's officers club. Some 120 Belvedere Sailing Society members and their guests will leave from San Francisco Yacht Club in Belvedere at 6:30 p.m., by power boats and chartered bus, for the Admiral Nimitz Officers Club.

The yachts will be provided by Dr. Benton Mathews, John Neerhout, Capt. (ret.) Shepard Jenks, W. B. Clum and Paul Duggan.

The evening will begin with cocktails at 7:30 p.m. followed at 8:30 p.m. by dinner in the officers club main ballroom.

The next day homeowners on Belvedere Lagoon will decorate their houses and prepare for guests who will be invited to see Sunday's parade of decorated boats. Saturday at 2 p.m. the first handicapped race will be held on the lagoon.

On Sunday 50 boats will follow a band on a motorized raft at 2 p.m. in a parade around all the lagoon areas.

Prizes for boat and house decorations will be presented at a post-parade party at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Findlay of Belvedere Lagoon, where the 1974 new officers of the Belvedere Sailing Society will be introduced. They are Dr. Tom Wynn, commodore; Dr. Gerald Struver, vice commodore; Dean Stiles, rear commodore; Chuck Findlay, juniors; Tom Perot, treasurer; Anna Wynn, secretary; Dr. Sam Mann, port captain; and Mrs. Charles Findlay, social chairman.

Handy was a resident of Marin City from 1961 to 1972, where he made his home with his daughter, Mrs. Lincoln D. Simpson. He has another daughter, Mrs. Jennie Allen of Oakland, and three sons, Isaac Handy Jr., George Handy and Louis Handy, all of Boston, Mass.

The 92-year-old man spent most of his life in Savannah, Ga., where he worked in his family's bakery business, and later was a painting contractor.

He has eight grandchildren, 21 great grandchildren and two great great grandchildren. He is a first cousin of the late W. C. Handy, the famous musician best remembered as the composer of "St. Louis Blues."

The staff of the hospital and other patients were included in the birthday party at the request of the honoree.

Also the president of the sponsoring Planned Parenthood Auxiliary, Mrs. Paul Juliet and her husband and the party chairmen Mmes. Norman Bouton and Richard Bradshaw with their husbands.

Other guests will be Dr. and Mrs. Leo Wagner, Messrs. and Mmes. Philip Crane Jr., Robert Clark, Charles Bowman, David Howard, Peter McKenney, Peter Van Alyea, Robert Settle, and Mrs. Winifred Cress. A bluegrass group will entertain at the 7 p.m. party.

The Stitchery Faire will be held Friday through Sunday at the Outdoor Art Club as a benefit for Planned Parenthood of Marin.

JOY FESMIRE Geisler and Norman Todhunter were married at an outdoor ceremony on the hill near the Community Congregational Church in Tiburon on Saturday.

The bride wrote the marriage ceremony. The bridegroom, an artist, decorated the church with his oil paintings. Two hundred guests returned to the church social hall for a reception.

Judy Foreman of San Jose was the maid of honor, and Helen Zunic of Los Angeles, the bridesmaid. Jeff Todhunter of Glen Ellen, the bridegroom's cousin, was the best man. George D. Vaughn of San Rafael; Capt. Thomas Fesmire of Washington, D.C., and Robert Fesmire of Los Angeles, the bride's two brothers, were the ushers.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. Arol Fesmire of Huntington Valley, Pa. The bridegroom is the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Francis Todhunter.

Both have been married previously. Todhunter's children, Keith Mac Lean Todhunter and Stuart Jordan Todhunter of Darien, Conn., attended the wedding.

Joy was graduated from Wheaton College, Wheaton, Ill., and received the master's degree in English at Northern Illinois University. She is a writer and professor of writing and literature at Solano College.

Todhunter was graduated from the California School of Fine Arts in San Francisco, and had a long career as a free lance artist in New York. He was commissioned to design 16 United States postage stamps, and was art adviser during the terms of Presidents John F. Kennedy and Lyndon B. Johnson. He has been an instructor at the College of Arts and Crafts in Oakland, and the Famous Artists School at Westport, Conn. He is now teaching art for adult classes for the Tiburon-Belvedere Recreation program.

The couple will live in Mill Valley.

Because of the many out of town guests and family members, the newlyweds hosted a brunch at the Alta Mira Hotel in Sausalito Sunday.

LARRY AND Shelley Bonham will participate in the stitchery-in-action demonstrations at the fourth annual Stitchery Faire Friday through Sunday from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. at the Outdoor Art Club in Mill Valley. Bonham learned quiltmaking techniques from his grandmother and taught his wife.

HELEN HELP US!

By HELEN BOTTEL

Understanding Body Language Causes A Personality Change

DEAR HELEN:

You've said, in your book, "To Teens. . ." and in your column, that the way a person walks offers a key to his or her personality. Since then, I've watched myself in store windows and have made myself switch from a pigeon-toed shuffle to a carefree stride. You know something? It works! I feel more confident. My posture is better, my head is up, I smile more — and people notice me more — in fact, I have a brand new approach to life. Changing my walk was the first step.

Lately I've been watching other "keys" to personality: a woman who is forever putting her hands to her lower face in a cover-up motion often dislikes her looks and (or) is shy; therefore hides. Habitually clenched fists in an otherwise relaxed easy-going person, could show fear, aggression, strong ambition, or hostility which he is trying to suppress. Poor eye contact more often means shyness than deceit.

Several books have been written about this body language, but I didn't realize how important it is until I practiced changing a few things, like my walk, my eye contact, my stand-offishness. . .I now listen as if I'm interested, not as if it was a chore, and people respond. So I respond to them!

Any more hints? — WON BY A WALK

DEAR WBW:

Only this: You can not only change yourself by "rewriting" your body language, you can also "read" others if you're sensitive to what their actions say.

Consider, for example, the way people put on and remove their glasses.

My educated guess is that if he (or she) takes them off with both hands firmly planted on the bows, he's methodical, careful, cautious.

If glasses are yanked off with one hand, and to the side, he's probably careless, impulsive, one who doesn't follow orders very well. (Doctors warn against this practice as it puts the frames out of adjustment.)

What if he (or she) wears them perched above the forehead? Carefree, a bit of a grandstander, I'd say.

He who holds his glasses by one bow, with the other bow tapping the corner of his mouth, may be a thinker bidding for time before he speaks. If he chews on the bow, he's a nervous thinker. And if he rubs the bridge of his nose after removing his glasses, he's trying mightily for the right thought.

Finally, if she wears them on a chain around her neck, she's probably absent-minded. If he does, he's not much interested in what people think about him.

Okay? — H.

DEAR HELEN:

Why is it, after a perfect evening with your mate —perfect understanding, a wonderful, satisfying, loving night, with closeness you wouldn't believe — the next day you have a fight at the breakfast table?

Does this happen only to us? We get along fine after an ordinary night, but following one of those rare, electrified, super-occasions, we battle. — CAN'T UNDERSTAND

DEAR C.U.:

Psychologists tell me it happens often: after a particularly electrifying night, leftover sparks can start the wrong kind of fire. Perhaps this is because utter closeness generates a human need to draw away; be your own person again.

Also there's a tendency to grow a little depressed after a perfect happening, whether it's love or some other kind of triumph: You subconsciously fear you may never reach that pinnacle again . . . So you want reassurance, but what you get is the off-to-work rush. You feel let down and somehow used — for the romance seems gone. And you end up fighting.

. . . Or maybe you're both just tired.

Whatever, talk it over with your mate. When you understand why, you can work on prevention. — H.

Got a problem? An adult subject for discussion? You can talk it over in her column if you write to Helen Bottel, c/o the Independent-Journal, PO Box 330, 1040 B St., San Rafael, Ca. 94902.

PARENT AND CHILD

Don't Sell 'Togetherness' Short

By CYNTHIA PARSONS
The Christian Science Monitor
News Service

Somehow "togetherness" has come to be a bad word. Used today to refer to United States families, it often evokes a smirk rather than a smile. But family unity, understanding, support — yes, togetherness — shouldn't be taken lightly.

Clannishness, selfishness, false pride. These undesirable qualities of togetherness, of course, should be dropped. Families should be careful not to fall into such traps.

But there's everything right about supporting, caring, sharing, understanding and forgiving. And this is what family togetherness means.

We're not talking here just about those members of a tight family circle such as the parents and the children. The "togetherness" we're talking about includes all those a family welcomes and for whom they accept responsibility.

SOCIAL WORKERS, juvenile judges, truant officers, police officials, teachers — all will tell you that generally the boy or girl who gets into serious trouble is the one without a family. Oh, yes, they say, there may be a physical family. But it's not a family that cares enough to understand and forgive. Or who cares enough to learn what fears and confusions cause the deviant behavior.

But for every youngster who comes to the attention of civil authorities — due to a lack of family love and care — there are two or even three times as many who suffer neglect silently taking with them into their adult lives and into their own sense of family a personal feeling of failure.

Hence, as adults, they perpetuate what was the worst part of their childhood and further erode any true sense of family unity and understanding.

Often a mother does a careful job when the children and the marriage are young. She encourages her husband, the father, not to become so absorbed outside the home that he doesn't respect or love what his wife and children bring to the enrichment of his life.

But research shows that as marriage and family move out of the beginning stages, both parents often begin to seek outside adult relationships and, according to their income level, provide their children with their own age group companions.

HENCE WE have young girls who have never talked with their fathers frankly and openly about relationships with boys and standards for pre-marital relationships, being given the time and freedom to spend with young men and boys. These same girls may grow to adulthood without having their own parents' guidance — and with the feeling that their parents don't care about them.

In this very basic matter of relations between the sexes and family size, those closest and dearest to the children have never cared enough to discuss problems and outlooks.

Young boys, too, often are neglected by both parents. The general belief is that most boys are spoiled by most mothers. But what does this "spoiling" mean? Does it include the sharing of essential insights on adult thinking perhaps denied the girls in the family?

Generally not. What it consists of is more freedom with less restraints and an emphasis within the family of making sure that the boy or boys get good schooling and good jobs as adults.

But the strength which supports such a boy into adulthood, based on a strong family relationship, is missing. And so while the young male may find a good job to start, he may lack the depth of character to outgrow his own false pride which came from his spoiling.

What's the answer? It's in parental responsibility — it's in listening to one another. It's in caring and sharing. It's in noticing when little faults have been corrected. It's in forgiving mistakes and making sure that "home" is never a place that doesn't welcome every member.

A wise father, giving advice to the mother of an adopted son, once said, "Be sure he knows that no matter what, there is no end to your love."

Use Correct Dusting Cloth

The right cloth is important when you dust and polish furniture. Old diapers, terry toweling, cotton knitwear or flannel cloths are good choices, according to a wax polish manufacturer. Cheesecloth usually contains a starch sizing material and is not recommended unless it has been laundered several times and the sizing has been removed.

Oiled or treated dust cloths should never be used on a waxed surface because oil softens the wax and the surface can become sticky or smeary.

Other types of cloths to avoid are coarse material, fabrics which may be linty, old clothing with buttons, snaps or trimming to scratch the finish and synthetic fabrics which do not absorb moisture.

Tradition Wins The Battle When It Comes To Wedding

By GAY PAULEY

NEW YORK (UPI) — She wears dungarees on dates. But when the romance flowers and he proposes, she turns traditional and looks for a romantic white bridal gown just as her women before her did.

No matter how they try innovation in styles, the bridal dress industry finds the changes very slow in acceptance when a girl is preparing for one of the happiest days of her life.

"No matter how hippie they might be otherwise, tradition still holds for weddings," said Lee Johnson, of the sales department of Priscilla of Boston.

"EVEN THE girl who wwears dungarees the rest of the time wants the most formal gown you've ever seen," said Paul Diamond, sales manager for Pandora, one of the industry's oldest firms. "It is difficult to change styles."

Industry source said that even the informality some couples select for the wedding scene — a beach or a sylvan setting instead of church or home — has had little effect on styles.

"You mean the barefoot bride?" said Diamond. "She'll still buy a long dress but it might be an inexpensive eyelet she found in some other store department. But I figure only about one-tenth of one per cent of the weddings includes these girls."

Another firm, Piccione, does note that some of the contemporary brides and bridesmaids are selecting current styles — separates or coordinates that can "move into their lifestyle after the wedding."

Some subtle changes are showing, too, in silhouette and fabrics. And in veils.

PRISCILLA REPORTED a "gradual change in body shapes and necklines."

"We notice also some sleeve changes," she said. "Not all are long and tapered to the wrist. Some are bonnets — puffed at the shoulders."

"The high neck, long sleeve is our most popular," said Diamond. "We've tried the brief, cap sleeve and it isn't going over. The capelet is fair — it's good on small girls only."

Bridal veils have changed too, said industry sources.

Pandora reported the tiered veil, one layer at fingertip, the other a little longer. Today's brides, with their long straight hair, have caused the industry to add extra length also.

The same firm reported the handkerchief veil popular — this one is little more than a square of material draped over the head — and the hooded headdress, almost like a monk's head covering. Some brides select jersey turbans to go with jersey gowns — more a fall and winter style than summer. And the lace mantilla is a perennial favorite.

In materials, there is a big revival of chiffon for summer, although organza still is the mainstay. Some manufacturers are using a dull white, satinized jersey. English net is a year-round fabric and the peau de soies and stains are more popular for fall and winter.

PLAIN TALK ABOUT GROUND BEEF

TYPE	FAT CONTENT OBJECTIVE
Ground Beef	Approx. 25%
Extra Lean Ground Beef	Approx. 16%

Even with the most modern equipment and technology now available it is not possible to guarantee that every package will be at the fat content objective. Despite our best efforts, variances of up to five percentage points may well occur.

Our objective is that a pound of Ground Beef contain approximately 12.0 ounces of lean meat, and that a pound of Extra Lean Ground Beef contain approximately 13.4 ounces of lean meat. Tastes differ respecting the desired degree of leanness, and taste may well determine which type you select. The cost-concious shopper should remember that the cost per ounce of lean meat is lower in Ground Beef than in Extra Lean Ground Beef.

Lucky ground beef -- like all meat at Lucky -- carries Lucky's Bond. Lucky Bonded means guaranteed customer satisfaction. If you are not fully satisfied, we will refund your money promptly.

End Is Seen To Smallpox In Next Year

GENEVA, Switzerland (AP) — The head of the World Health Organization predicted yesterday that smallpox, mankind's most-dread killer disease, will be eradicated next year.

Director General Halfdan Mahler thus confirmed optimistic progress reports from a worldwide campaign launched in 1967 against the disease that killed more people in the past 3,000 years than all wars, according to health historians.

Health workers and a simple needle that costs less than a penny are credited with achieving what Dr. Mahler called the "first miracle of public health."

Though conceding "certain tasks have still to be accomplished," in several countries, including Bangladesh, Pakistan and Ethiopia, he said he is confident that 1975 will see the "last new case of smallpox in the world."

Mahler also said his confidence was not shaken by "epidemics in India, Pakistan and Bangladesh. The world total of new cases soared from 65,000 in 1972 to 130,000 in 1973. When the campaign started seven years ago, the total had been 2½ million.

When the smallpox campaign started, the disease was considered endemic in about 30 countries. Smallpox mortality was highest in Asia, up to about 30 per cent; and it was out of control on the Indian subcontinent and in Indonesia.

The biggest breakthrough came in 1968 with the introduction of the bifurcated needle, which is dipped into the vaccine and used to prick the skin about 15 times. Trained vaccinators can process up to 1,500 persons a day.

The needle has been used on hundreds of million people and has been described by health experts as "infallible even if badly misused."

The health organization's latest weekly report, issued last Friday, listed 2,123 cases in India and Bangladesh. The death total for India was not given. For Bangladesh it was 79.

Mrs. Agnew Fine After Surgery

TOWSON, Md. (UPI) — Judy Agnew, the wife of the former vice president, is listed in good condition today at St. Joseph Hospital where she underwent a hysterectomy yesterday.

Dr. Charles Doeller said Mrs. Agnew is "doing well" following the 75-minute operation, and he said the surgery was performed without any complications.

TAM PROTESTS

San Marin Track Win

It was one of the closest track and field meets ever held in Marin. It wasn't decided until well after the final race was run — and, officially, it hasn't been decided yet.

San Marin High School defeated Tamalpais yesterday, 69-67, on some last-minute heroics by Terry Kom, but Tam coach Clyde Krusinski said he would protest the result.

It allowed to stand, the victory would virtually assure San Marin (5-0) its second straight MCAL title. Tam is 5-1.

Krusinski said he would contract MCAL commissioner George Corson today to protest the outcome of the 120-yard high hurdles race, in which Tam's Fred Adams was disqualified because his trailing leg hit San Marin runner Kom.

Krusinski claimed Adams was forced to run in an unusually narrow lane. He said Adams' lane measured two feet, 10 inches, while two others were 3-5 and one was 4-1.

Adams ran second to Tam's Geoff Webster in the event, with Kom third, giving San Marin just one team point out of nine. Adams' disqualification moved Kom to second and San Marin's Jon Jaques to third, giving San Marin five points.

Kom, also a jumper, turned in an outstanding clutch performance when he finished second in the high jump and first in the pole vault.

Both events were still going on after the rest of the meet was finished. Kom was the only Mustang left in either, and San Marin would have lost the meet if he had placed lower in either.

SPORTS CLUB SPEECH

Davidson Eyes WFL Expansion

By RALPH CHATOIAN
I-J Sports Editor

SAN FRANCISCO — Gary Davidson, president of the new World Football League, isn't even thinking about merger with the established National Football League. He's already talking about expansion of the WFL.

Davidson was guest speaker at last night's dinner of the American Sports Club of San Francisco at Hyatt Hotel on Union Square. Prior to the dinner Davidson held a press conference —actually a question and answer session— and outlined some of the plans of the fledgling league.

He said there would be 12 WFL teams playing this year but by the time the 1974 season rolls around there would probably be three more. Two of the new teams would probably be located in Japan or Mexico and the other in the U.S. With a franchise already solid in Hawaii, Davidson wants to make the WFL a truly global venture.

Davidson said he expected the first few years of the league to be non-profitable but predicted three franchises — Jacksonville, Fla., Birmingham, Ala., and Anaheim, Calif., would make money the first year out. "The other teams will lose money the first year."

He said money to build each of the franchises has been up to the individual teams and denied rumors that Howard Hughes money was behind the WFL. "I have never met Hughes," said Davidson. "He doesn't have any money in the league."

He was very confident about the success of the new league. "We already have 18,000 season tickets sold in Jacksonville and 15,000 in Birmingham," he said.

Applications for jobs? "We had more than 3,000 applications for jobs as officials and 500 for people wanting administration jobs."

Davidson, when asked what his reaction would be if the NFL tried to expand into Hawaii, a location in which there is already a WFL franchise, said: "We would take legal action. But I don't think they would come in. They realize we would have a strong case."

He is the same man who organized the formation of the American Basketball Association and the World Hockey Association. He said, "We needed major league football players and that was the mistake we made in the ABA. We went after college players. In football if we are going to be major league we have to sign the major league players." Those will be all the established NFL stars who will join the WFL for the 1975 season.

Phillies' Skipper Shows Emotions

But last night, after his Phillies snapped a six-game losing streak with a 6-5 decision over the San Francisco Giants, Ozark unwound a bit.

He went around his clubhouse and made sure to congratulate every man who had a part in the victory. He also had a pat on the back for each and then, standing in the middle of the dressing room, he munched on a thick hamburger.

"You can't believe how good it feels to win a game like this," he said. "It never feels good to lose but some of the games we dropped during our streak were unbelievable."

The Philadelphia heroes last night included Dick Ruthven, who pitched six good innings before giving ground in the seventh when the Giants tied the score at 4-4, Dave Cash with four hits, Mike Schmidt and Bill Robinson with three hits each and key ninth inning rbis and Frank Linzy, who shut San Francisco out in the eighth but had to leave in the ninth when he stopped a line drive by Garry Maddox on his left shin.

Lost in the flush of victory, but not by Ozark, was a first inning two-run homer by little Larry Bowa, only his second big league homer in five seasons but enough to get the Phillies off on the right foot.

"He really hit it, didn't he," Ozark asked. "As far as I'm concerned, that was as big a hit as the ones by Schmidt and Robinson in the ninth."

Greg Luzinski added a sacrifice fly after Bowa's homer and a dropped fly ball by Maddox on a smash by Schmidt as the Phils took a 3-0 lead on starter Mike Caldwell. A single by Luzinski in the seventh increased the lead to 4- 1 but then the Giants tied the score on a walk, a double by Gary Matthews, a single by Chris Arnold and a double by Maddox.

Randy Moffitt, the last of four San Francisco pitchers, took the loss. He came on to pitch the top of the ninth but was ineffective. A single by Cash, a sacrifice and Schmidt's double snapped the 4-4 tie and then Robinson scored Schmidt with a single for what proved to be the winning run.

Change Of Tactics Helps As Bucks Defeat Celtics

MILWAUKEE (UPI) — There were a lot of doubters hanging around the Milwaukee Arena who conceded the National Basketball Association title to Boston on the basis of the Celtics' 98-83 win in the first game of the championship series against the Bucks.

They heard Larry Costello, the Milwaukee coach, talk about doing something to counter the Boston pressure defense. Costello talked about making a "minor adjustment" and many experts scoffed at the idea.

But game two opened last night and Costello's "adjustment" was unveiled.

It resulted in a 105-96 Milwaukee overtime win to even the best-of-seven series at one game each.

The adjustment itself consisted of getting the ball to Oscar Robertson, then sending the other four players up court and letting Robertson bring the ball up by himself.

"That was a good move," Robertson said. "It enabled us to get into our patterns quicker."

"That adjustment was the key to the ball game," Bucks assistant coach Hubie Brown said. "A lot of people said you can't make an adjustment to beat the press but I guess we showed them."

The end result of the Costello move was to enable the Bucks to build a big enough lead so that Milwaukee could stand off the most furious Celtics rally. The big margin was needed, too, as Boston came back to force an overtime.

With 11 seconds left and the score 90-90, Dave Cowens had the ball at the top of the free throw circle. He drove to the basket to his right and leaped in the air, the ball held high in his right hand.

He released a little hook shot from only three feet away and the ball headed toward the basket. But Kareem AbdulJabbar soared well into the rafters of the Milwaukee Arena to gently tap the ball to the floor where Ron Williams picked it up and the game went into overtime.

In the extra period, with the score 98-96, Cornell Warner became a hero.

The Bucks took the ball inbounds from midcourt and were set to run a play for Robertson.

But Warner took the pass, noticed the lane was open and sped down the center of it, skied high above the basket and dunked the ball. He was fouled by Dave Cowens and made the free throw, giving the Bucks a five-point lead with only 34 seconds left.

"I saw the lane clear and just headed for it with everything I had."

WIN OVER A'S

Yankee Trades Pay Off

NEW YORK (AP) — The New York Yankees, enjoying the best of two worlds, are benefiting from a trade they made and one they didn't.

Chris Chambliss, the new arrival from Cleveland, and Roy White, the veteran who never left, slugged successive homers last night to give the Yanks a 4-3 victory over the Oakland Athletics.

Chambliss, a young first baseman who led New York to ship four pitchers to the Indians last Friday in a seven-player deal, said the eighth-inning homer at Shea Stadium was nothing unusual.

"I swing the best way I can and if it goes out, it goes out," Chambliss explained after hitting his first season home run. "I didn't really think I hit this one high enough to go out."

A two-run homer by left fielder Roy White, who has often been the subject of trade speculation and rumors, had given the Yanks a 3-2 edge before Chambliss connected.

"I felt all along I'd be playing some place," White said. "But I wanted to stay in New York and be part of this team."

The biggest Yankee contributor so far this season, Graig Nettles, collected just one single in four trips and failed in a bid to set a major league record for home runs in April. Nettles, a third baseman, tied the mark Sunday with his 11th homer.

Oakland lefty Vida Blue, still winless, picked up his third defeat while New York ace Mel Stottlemyre boosted his record to 5-1 with last-out relief help from Sparky Lyle.

Homers by Reggie Jackson — No. 10 — in the fourth inning and Gene Tenace — No. 3 — in the ninth, helped the A's. Jackson, playing with a pinched nerve in his right hip, was expected to serve as Oakland's designated hitter for at least the rest of this week.

SACRAMENTO — College of Marin's tennis team swept past Butte College of Durham yesterday, 6-0, in the first Northern California Dual Team Championships at Cosumnes River College.

The victory moved the Tars into the semi-finals next Tuesday against Foothill (Los Altos) at a neutral site to be determined.

The tournament involves six conference champions from Northern California, plus two at-large teams, one of which was Marin. Butte won the Golden Valley Conference.

Yesterday's first singles match was won by Marin's Mark Rodnick over Rick McQuown, 6-1, 6-2.

Rodnick and the other Tars also are preparing to play in the Camino Norte Conference championships tomorrow through Saturday at West Valley College in Saratoga.

BOATING

By STAN DAVIES

Let's Keep That Boat Shipshape

The fuel crisis has put only a minor damper on boating activity, and it's on the upswing all across the country now that summer is near.

New Jersey has made the most definitive survey by any state of the intentions and feelings of its boat owners. Ninety-five per cent say they are renewing their boat registrations for this season. Only five per cent were pessimistic about fuel supplies, and may not use their boats in 1974.

So it's a time to make sure that your boat, its power plant and all of its gadgetry and safety equipment are in good shape. There's no point in wasting the good weather ahead with repair work.

Check such things as fuel tanks carefully, making certain that all of the dirt is out. If your propeller has nicks, remove them now. If your engine or outboard motor needs new sparkplugs, or any kind of a minor or major overhaul, now's the time to do the sevicing.

Getting everything shipshape for summer fun is a big job and a topic of concern, and the questions we have been asked leave no doubt about that:

Q. My inboard cruiser is dry as a bone while berthed, but leaks badly under way. What gives?

A. Sounds like the "stuffing box" — where the prop shaft leaves the hull. It could also be the water connections to the muffler or maybe the muffler itself.

Q. I've redesigned my engine compartment, and I'm told that the ventilation is inadequate. Where can I find out all about ventilation?

A. Write for "Ventilation Systems for Small Craft" (CG-395): a booklet that is available from the Commandant (CAS-2), U.S. Coast Guard, Washington, D.C. 20591.

Q. Is it practical to enamel my inboard engine white?

A. Yes, and easy, too. Clean the engine thoroughly, and then get heat resisting enamel in a light color from a marine paint dealer. The final coat may be the white or off-white aerosol paint used on outboard motors. It's very fast and economical to use.

Q. I'm considering wrapping a rubber sheet around my distributor to guard against spray. My neighbor says that it's bad practice to do so. Is it?

A. It could be, unless you allow good ventilation. The rubber may retain humid air, and you'll get condensation under the cover. If the cover is really necessary, arrange it so that it allows air circulation underneath.

Q. I put new zinc plates on my bronze rudder and propeller strut during the winter. But even after only a couple of weeks in the water, I can see electrolysis damage on the rudder. What's the explanation?

A. This is baffling unless the zinc is painted over and isn't "naked." Maybe there is poor contact between the zinc and the bronze. Don't wait, get this fixed immediately.

Q. I'm rigging a water ski boat. Is a rear-view mirror a worthwhile investment?

A. Very worthwhile. But, you may still be required to have an observer in your boat as well. Check your state law. In most states — an observer is required whether the driver has a rear view mirror or not.

HOCKEY ROUNDUP

Bruins Vault Into Finals

By Associated Press

And then there were three.

The Boston Bruins, behind a tie-breaking goal by young Gregg Sheppard in the final two minutes last night, defeated the Chicago Black Hawks, 4-2, won their Stanley Cup semi-final series four games to two and advanced to the National Hockey League championships.

Meanwhile, the Philadelphia Flyers moved a giant step closer to filling the other berth in the championship set by beating the New York Rangers, 4-1, and taking a 3-2 lead in their semifinal.

Sheppard broke a 2-2 tie with just 1:49 left in the game with his ninth playoff goal, taking a pass from Dallas Smith and beating Hawks goalie Tony Esposito. Phil Esposito wrapped it up with an empty net tally 33 seconds later.

Pete Stemkowski scored the only goal of the first period at 6:16 to give New York a 1-0 lead. The Flyers tied it in the middle period, then Rick MacLeish put Philadelphia ahead with a long shot past gaolie Ed Giacomin.

In the World Hockey Association, Guy Trottier scored three goals and Gilles Gratton came through with some pressure relief goaltending, helping the Toronto Toros to a 7-6 decision over the Chicago Cougars and a 2-2 tie in their semi-final playoffs. The fifth game will be played tonight in Toronto.

Houston will try to wrap up the other WHA semi-final series tonight against the Minnesota Fighting Saints at Minneapolis. The Aeros lead that best-of-seven semi-final 3-2.

Rancho Cotate Golfers Break Course Record

Rancho Cotate High School was hot and Petaluma was cold, but both of them easily won their golf matches yesterday.

The Cougars set a new Rohnert Park Municipal Golf Course five-man team record with a 375-414 Sonoma County League victory over Piner (Santa Rosa).

Petaluma (8-0) recorded its worst score in weeks, but the Trojans still had enough for a 318-331 North Bay League victory over host Napa.

Rancho Cotate (3-2) had three golfers break 75, with Don Springer shooting a 72, Todd Peterson a 73 and Ray Freitas a 74. Ken Maring and Scott Wlodarczyk had 78s.

Petaluma, Rancho Lose Net Matches

Petaluma and Rancho Cotate high schools suffered losses yesterday in league tennis matches.

Petaluma (3-4) fell to host Napa, 4-3, in a North Bay League match despite John Van Der Werff's 6-0, 7-6 victory over Brent Bird in first singles. Rancho (0-4) lost a Sonoma County League match to host Sonoma, 4-1.

Belvedere Tennis Player Won Title

The name of Craig Patterson of Belvedere was omitted from Monday's Independent-Journal story on Marinites who won championships in the Modesto Swim and Racquet Club junior tennis tournament.

Patterson captured the boys 12 title with a 6-2, 7-5 victory over Mark McKeen.

ON BASEBALL

By GARY HUGHES

Where Have They Gone?

"Where have you gone Joe DiMaggio?
"Our nation turns its loving eyes to you."

These words, from the Simon and Garfunkel song, "Mrs. Robinson," have been running through my head these past few days. The New York Mets were in town, you see, and Willie Mays isn't going to be playing with them this year.

Baseball without Willie Mays? To a 33-year-old ex-Topps Bubblegum Card collector this doesn't seem right. Seeing him in the batting cage this weekend brought it home. The excitement he brought to the game is still burning within him.

Anyone who saw Willie at the end of last year could only feel sad. It had become almost impossible for him to bring out the old skills. Unfortunately, he was the last to realize it.

The Mets now play Don Hahn or Dave Schneck in centerfield. The Giants, as we know, have replaced Willie with young Gary Maddox. Maddox is an outstanding player. He can run, hit, throw, field and hit with power. Some say he'll be another Mays. There will never be another Willie Mays. Say hey!

EX-GIANT, HAL LANIER spent spring training living in Bobby Bonds' motel room trying to latch on to a major league job. Nobody would give him the opportunity he hoped for. The minor league Tulsa team did offer a job and so Lanier will toil in the shadows of the Oklahoma oil derricks, waiting for a call that may never come.

Still another ex-Giant, Orlando Cepeda, was dropped this spring. The Boston Red Sox, under new manager Darrell Johnson, want a running ball club. Cepeda, with his bad knee, hopelessly clogged up the base paths last year. I'm surprised no other American League team has picked him up. Charlie Finley has been known to bring back ex-employees. It could happen, but Orlando Cepeda still waits in an apartment in Puerto Rico.

Other players we have followed and enjoyed for years are no longer playing.

Frank Howard is the biggest man ever to play the game. He is an extremely warm individual. He is also an extremely proud one. He is proudest, I think, of the fact that he always gave his best. Frank was released at the end of last year by the Detroit Tigers. He is spending this season playing in Japan. I'll miss seeing that huge body sprinting on and off the diamond. Sayonara, big guy.

GARY NOLAN was a pitching phenom just a few years back. He was the number one pitcher on Cincinnati's Big Red Machine. Then his arm went bad. He tried to come back last year with very little success. This past winter he returned to his hometown of Oroville and it was his first-off-season away from the big cities. He was preparing for the worst. Gary Nolan went to this year's training camp hoping for a miracle. He didn't get it. He was sent back to Oroville to try and work out his arm problem. Maybe they have a miracle worker in Oroville.

The career of a major league player never lasts long enough. Whether 20 years or three it is difficult to accept the finish.

The plight of the minor league player who receives his release is even more common. On Monday night, May 8, as our nation turned its loving eyes to Atlanta and Henry Aaron, there were 93 young men heading home from the minor league spring camp of the Pittsburgh Pirates. Think of it: 93! They had been released but at least they'd had a chance. Maybe not much of a chance, maybe not even a fair chance. Nonetheless, they had a chance.

"What's that you say Mrs. Robinson?

GIANTS

hits (the Giants had 10 last night)", said Manager Charlie Fox, "but we can't seem to get a big hit."

The loss was San Francisco's third in a row and dropped the Giants under .500 for the first time this season at 11-12.

EMERGENCY — Red Sox second baseman Doug Griffin was unconscious at home plate last night in Boston after being struck in the head by a fast ball from California pitcher Nolan Ryan in the first inning. A stretcher was readied (left) as trainer Buddy LeRoux held Griffin's head. He suffered a severe concussion and was kept in intensive care overnight. (UPI Telephoto)

Tigers' Lolich Ends His Losing Streak

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

The hard-hitting Kansas City Royals normally would look forward to facing a pitcher who's winless in four decisions and has allowed 5½ runs a game. But not when his name is Mickey Lolich.

"I hate to catch a guy who is 0-4 like Lolich was," said Kansas City Manager Jack McKeon. "You know that a good pitcher's going to win sooner or later. You just know it . . ."

If McKeon was worried before the game, he was convinced afterwards. Lolich, working mostly with off-speed pitches, scattered eight hits as Detroit dumped the Royals 7-2. Aurelio Rodriguez keyed the Tiger attack with two singles, a double and two runs batted in.

Elsewhere in the American League, the California Angels blasted the Boston Red Sox 16-6; the Cleveland Indians downed the Minnesota Twins 8-3; the Texas Rangers outlasted the Milwaukee Brewers 12-10; the New York Yankees edged the Oakland Athletics 4-3, and the Chicago White Sox shaded the Baltimore Orioles 2-1.

"I'm 33 so I throw a lot of sliders and a lot of knuckleballs. I had a good curve ball tonight but the velocity wasn't good," he said.

Angels 16, Red Sox 6

Fire-baller Nolan Ryan struck out a season-high 15 batters but his performance was marred by a fastball that got away in the first inning and hit Boston second baseman Doug Griffin just about the left ear. Griffin was carried unconscious from the field and hospitalized with a severe concussion.

Indians 8, Twins 3

Charlie Spikes stroke a two-run single to extend his hitting streak to 19 games as Cleveland won its fifth straight. Fritz Peterson and Fred Beene, both acquired from the Yankees last week, combined on an eight-hitter. Bobby Darwin homered twice for Minnesota.

Rangers 12, Brewers 10

White Sox 2, Orioles 1

Ron Santo's first American League homer, a two-run shot, accounted for Chicago's victory. Stan Bahnsen tossed a seven-hitter for the White Sox, besting Jim Palmer. Bobby Grich singled home the lone Baltimore run.

NATIONAL LEAGUE

It Starts Out As Laugher But Ends Up A Thriller

By UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

What started out as a laugher for the New York Mets turned out to be a down-to-the wire thriller in Los Angeles.

The Mets jumped off to a 6-0 lead in the first two innings but managed to blow the lead before John Milner doubled home two runs in the top of the ninth inning to put New York in front last night as the Mets broke a Los Angeles win streak at seven games by beating the Dodgers 8-7.

The game was surprisingly reminiscent of Monday's frenzied game in which the Dodgers surged ahead 8-0 and barely hung on to win 8-7. Dodger Manager Walter Alston didn't quite know what to make of the scheme of things and said, "8-7 just seems to be the magic number."

Magic or no magic, Cleon Jones, who paced the Met attack with a double and single to knock in two runs, said "if we had lost this game, it would have been like dying."

Milner almost became the goat of the game when he dropped a throw at first from third baseman Wayne Garrett in the ninth inning that allowed Bill Russell, who had tripled, to score. But after Bill Buckner's single, Ron Cey ended the zaniness with a fly out to end the game.

Bob Miller, who picked up the win in relief, said in disbelief, "we just never seem to do things the easy way."

Steve Garvey's three-run homer with two out in the eighth allowed the Dodgers to tie the score at 6-6. Garvey's fifth homer continued a jinx that has seen southpaw Jerry Koosman fail to win in Los Angeles since April 11, 1968.

Koosman's wildness cost him in the eighth. He walked Dave Lopes and Cey to set up Garvey's homer. The blast got Dodger starter Tommy John, 5-0, off the hook and kept him unbeaten in his last 10 decisions.

In other games, Philadelphia edged San Francisco 6-5, St. Louis defeated Atlanta 5-2, San Diego downed Montreal 2-1, Houston stopped Chicago 4-2

Padres 2, Expos 1

Derrel Thomas doubled home Enzo Hernandez with the tie-breaking run after Hernandez had singled to lead off the sixth inning, moved to second on a balk and stolen third, to lift San Diego over the Expos.

Cards 5, Braves 2

Lou Brock singled, tripled and hit a two-run homer to lead a 13-hit St. Louis attack but Lynn McGlothen's shutout bid was ruined by Hank Aaron's 720th career homer and seventh of the season.

Astros 4, Cubs 2

Mike Kelleher made a good impression playing in his first big league game of the year as he got two run-scoring singles to lead the Astros over Chicago.

Bill Aimed At Halting Water Cuts

I-J Special Report

SACRAMENTO — A bill to prevent a cutoff of water to customers outside Marin Municipal Water District has been introduced by an East Bay legislator.

According to district directors, present law requires them to cut such water service because of their declaration that the district is threatened with a water shortage.

The cutoff, set July 1, faces Muir Woods National Monument, the Army forts in Southern Marin and homeowners atop Wolfback Ridge.

Director Jack R. Felson had the bill (AB 3859) introduced by Assemblyman Jack T. Knox, D-Richmond, after the Marin County Board of Supervisors refused to endorse it. Marin's state legislators declined to introduce the bill without such an endorsement.

The legislation would authorize the district, despite its declared shortage, to continue supplying customers who were getting water at the time the declaration was made. An urgency statute, it would become law immediately upon passage and signature by the governor.

Today is Wednesday, May 1, the 121st day of 1974 with 244 to follow. This is "May Day."

The moon is between its first quarter and full phase. The morning stars are Mercury, Venus and Jupiter. The evening stars are Mars and Saturn.

Also on this day in history:

In 1873, penny post cards went on sale for the first time.

In 1931, the Empire State Building was dedicated in New York City, 102 floors, rising 1,250 feet.

In 1964, President Lyndon Baines Johnson predicted the day will come when the United States has a woman chief executive.

A thought for the day: American humorist James Thurber said: "You might as well fall flat on your face as lean over too far backward."

HOW TO PLAY

WINNING BRIDGE

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

A Finesse Could Pay Off In Third Position Action

If you live long enough, somebody is sure to tell you the old, old story: Don't finesse against your partner. He wants you to play high in third position. Pay no attention to this advice. It's often correct to finesse in third position.

PLAYS LOW

This is a typical case. West opens the seven of spades, and East must decide what to do when dummy plays low.

If East listens to the ancient advice, he will play the ace of spades at the first trick. That will be the end of him.

East cannot continue the attack on spades without sacrificing a trick. If East returns a low spade, dummy's jack will win; if East returns the queen of spades, South takes the king and draws trumps, and his jack of spades will win a trick later.

East is forced to shift to a trump at the second trick. South draws trumps and goes after the diamonds. The defenders can get only one spade and one diamond.

SHOULD FINESSE

East should finesse with the nine of spades at the first trick. The idea is to force out the king and thus set up the rest of the spades.

South's best play is to win the first trick with the king of spades. He draws three rounds of trumps and then tries the diamond finesse. East takes the king of diamonds and can then win tricks with the ace, queen and ten of spades.

WHEN TO FINESSE

It would be wroug for East to finesse with the nine of spades at the frist trick if West's lead indicated length. South might then win a trick with a singleton king. It's correct to finesse in this position when partner's lead is from a short holding.

Ford Reports Profit Drop

DETROIT (UPI) — The Ford Motor Co. yesterday reported first-quarter profits of $124 million, off 65.7 per cent from last year's record level. It was the latest indication of how severely the auto industry was hit by the energy crisis.

It was Ford's lowest profit since the first quarter of 1967 when the No. 2 automaker earned $120.6 million. Ford's first-quarter earnings this year topped those of General Motors by nearly $4 million.

In sharp contrast to oil company profits, the "Big Three" automaker reported earnings of $245.6 million in the first quarter, a sharp 80.6 per cent decline from last year's record profits of nearly $1.27 billion in the period.

General Motors profits were off 85 per cent and Chrysler Corp. was down 98.2 per cent.

Ford's worldwide sales in the first quarter were $5.5 billion, down 11 per cent from sales of $6.1 billion in the first quarter of 1973. Earnings amounted to $124 million, or $1.31 a share, in this year's first quarter, compared to $361 million, or $3.59 a share, in the first three months of 1973.

Ford chairman Henry Ford II said the company's lowest profits since the first quarter of 1967 resulted primarily from substantially lower volumes in the United States and Europe and from continued rapid increases in labor and material costs.

"We expect car sales to continue to improve in the second half of the year based on our expectation that economic growth will resume and that adequate supplies of gasoline will be available," Ford said in a financial statement to shareholders.

While complaining that labor and material cost increases in the last six months have exceeded by nearly 100 per cent the cost increases projected by the company in late 1973, Ford made no mention of any future price hikes.

Chrysler Monday said it was boosting the manufacturer's suggested ratail prices of its cars and trucks an average of $99 as of today because it had been unable to recover all of its higher costs.

Ford, GM and American Motors pledged in December to hold the line on price hikes until the start of the 1975 model year in exchange for the lifting of price and wage controls last December.

Chrysler was not a party to that agreement and was criticized as "irresponsible" by the Cost of Living Council for the latest price boost.

Return On Stocks Can Be Increased

By ROGER E. SPEAR

Q. I have recently inherited the enclosed list of stocks and bonds. My health is poor and I need as much income as possible for my family. What would you suggest I do with this portfolio? — W.A.

A. Your holdings have a current value in excess of $100,000 but produce a modest 5.5 per cent yield, returning only $5,600 annually. While I would not recommend making all the following changes immediately, five low-yield issues could be replaced to increase your return. The five sales are: Getty Oil (NYSE), Campbell Soup (NYSE), General Electric (NYSE), Shell Oil (NYSE) and Shell Oil of Canada (OTC). The remaining size holdings yield 6.1 per cent to 8.4 per cent and should be retained for income and appreciation.

The $49,000 which would be realized from these sales should be invested in good-quality bonds and preferred issues. Under current market conditions, a return of 8.5 per cent should be obtainable, with well-assured capital protection. This, in addition to the balance of your holdings, would produce a monthly income of $650 or a 7.7 per cent yield.

Q. What is meant by dual or multiple listing of a stock? — G.S.

A. In addition to the country's two largest stock exchanges — the New York Stock Exchange and American Stock Exchange — there is the National Exchange and the unlisted NASDAQ or OTC market. Moreover, the regional exchanges across the country provide effective trading facilities for the stocks of local corporations. Regional exchanges also list shares of many companies which trade on the Big Board and Amex exchanges. Two examples of multiple listing are: American Telephone (NYSE), which is also listed on five regional exchanges, coast-to-coast; and Shell Oil (NYSE), also quoted on six local U.S. exchanges plus two Canadian boards. Dual listing takes some of the load off the major exchanges, plus allowing an investor in the eastern part of the country to gain a trading advantage from the later closing hour of a western exchange.

Many On Sideline In Trading

NEW YORK (UPI) — With traders sidelined by rising interest rates and new Watergate uncertainties, stock prices inched higher in light trading on the New York Stock Exchange today.

There was little in the news to stimulate traders. A number of analysts have said the market is unlikely to show much life until interest rates and inflation show some concrete signs of easing. The 10¾ per cent prime lending rate —that charged on loans to best business borrowers —continued to spread among the nation's banks.

In addition, Wall Street still has questions about the Watergate affair. Investors were on the sidelines, waiting for Congress to make its move in light of President Nixon's release of edited tape transcripts.

Several glamor issues attracted bargain hunting. Texas Instruments rose 2 ⅜, Polaroid 1 ⅞, Corning Glass 1 ¼, Fairchild Camera a point.

Stamping Grows

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Metal stamping, an industry that has faced severe competition in recent years from plastics, nevertheless grew by 15 per cent to a volume of $2.6 billion a year in 1972 as compared with 1967.

$1,000 PRIZE — Muriel (Mickey) Plotkin of San Rafael, a salesperson at Marin Surplus Store, won the $1,000 grand prize at last Sunday's annual spring Auto Show held at Strawberry Town and Country Village. She will be able to use the prize in purchasing a vehicle of her choice from any Marin dealer who participated in the Auto Show.

An estimated 15,000 persons jammed the shopping center to get a closeup view of the latest model cars, trucks and recreational vehicles. Sponsors of the Auto Show were the Independent-Journal and the Strawberry Town and Country Village. Jim Webb, manager of the shopping center, was in charge of the show layout, and John Rudolph handled promotion.

EDEN indoor plant shop at 1331 Fourth Street in San Rafael is now under the sole ownership of David and Sande Bonaiuto of San Francisco, who bought out former partner Marc Sloper.

Mrs. Bonaiuto, who manages the shop, said she just received a big shipment of plants. "We now have probably the largest selection of indoor plants in Northern and Southern California," she announced. She said Eden not only sells plants but helps in arranging hanging and floor plants within a home.

Petaluma's Growth Issue Explored In TV Special

By ERNEST MURPHY

A San Francisco television station last night described Petaluma as a town fighting for "the right to remain small" despite a court decision obligating it to grow.

The program was Channel 5's "Sixty Minutes: San Francisco," and the focus was on Petaluma's blighted attempt to limit its growth to 500 housing units a year.

The city was described as a former poultry production center which, "until recently, was one of the few communities in the Bay Area where a home could be purchased for under $30,000."

As the camera dramatically panned from the old carpenter's Gothic residences on the West side to the closely packed tract homes east of Highway 101, viewers were told by a slightly malapropian reporter for KPIX that Petaluma has become "just another bedroom community" of the "San Francisco megalopolis (sic)."

Planning director Frank B. Gray explained that the city's growth limiting ordinance reflected Petaluma's inability to supply water and sewer service to the tract homes, which by 1971 were proliferating at the rate of 900 a year.

Since Petaluma expects to have all the water it needs by 1977, when the Cotati-Russian River Aquaduct is to be completed, Gray said that the growth ban was a short-term solution, "a strategy to get Petaluma from 1971 to 1977 when greater growth could take place."

Attorney Malcolm Misuraca, who in January obtained for several construction companies and developers a U.S. District Court order over-ruling the growth limit, noted the decision did not accept shortages of municipal services as an excuse to limit construction.

Misuraca said that the Petaluma decision by Federal District Judge Lloyd H. Burke established that it is the city's duty to ration services if necessary rather than to "build a wall" around itself.

He charged that, by shifting the influx of new residents to surrounding towns in the northern Bay Area, Petaluma was inviting retaliation in the form of growth limits elsewhere.

City Mgr. Robert H. Meyer said he believed most of Petaluma's newer residents favor the growth ban because they settled in Southern Sonoma in hopes of having a rural environment close at hand.

He forecast darkly that Burke's decision, which the city is expected to appeal, will result in such density that there will be "house next to house from down past Salinas up to the Oregon border" in another decade or two.

This morning Gray said he thought the program did a good job of presenting both sides of the issue.

Meyer, though, didn't see himself on the screen because he got involved in a movie, "QB VII," on another channel.

When the city council meets at 7:30 p.m. Monday, it is expected to make a decision to appeal Burke's ruling. Both the city and the builders who sued to open it up expect their case to be a legal landmark which may reach the U.S. Supreme Court before it is settled.

Excerpts Of Transcript From President's Tapes

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Excerpts from the edited transcripts of the March 21, 1973 meeting between President Nixon, John Dean and H.R. Haldeman. Nixon is designated P, Dean D, and Haldeman H.

D. Let me give you my overall first.

P. In other words, your judgment as to where it stands, and where we will go.

D. I think that there is no doubt about the seriousness of the problem we've got. We have a cancer within, close to the presidency, that is growing. It is growing daily. It's compounded, growing geometrically now, because it compounds itself. That will be clear if I, you know, explain some of the details of why it is. Basically, it is because (1) we are being blackmailed; (2) people are going to start perjuring themselves very quickly that have not had to perjure themselves to protect other people in the line. And there is no assurance

P. That that won't bust?

D. That that won't bust...

D. ...Here is what is happening right now. What sort of brings matters to the (unintelligible). One, this is going to be a continual blackmail operation by Hunt and Liddy and the Cubans. No doubt about it. And McCord, who is another one involved. McCord has asked for nothing....And as you know Colso has talked indirectly to Hunt about commutation. All of these things are bad, in that they are problems, they are promises, they are commitments. They are the very sort of thing that the Senate is going to be looking most for. I don't think they can find them, frankly.

P. Pretty hard.

P. Pretty hard I mean as far as the witnesses are concerned.

D. All right, now, the blackmail is continuing. Hunt called one of the lawyers from the Re-Election Committee on last Friday to leave it with him over the weekend. The guy came in to see me to give a message directly to me. From Hunt to me .... Hunt now is demanding another $72,000 for his own personal expenses; another $50,000 to pay attorneys fees; $120,000....He said, "I am going to be sentenced on Friday, and I've got to get my financial affairs in order."

Hunt has now made a direct threat against Ehrlichman. As a result of this, this is his blackmail. He says, "I will bring John Ehrlichman down to his knees and put him in jail. I have done enough seamy things for he and Krogh. They'll never survive it."

P. Was he talking about Ellsberg?

D. Ellsberg, and apparently some other things. I don't know the full extent of it.

P. I don't know about anything else.

D. Well, first of all, there is the problem of the continued blackmail which will not only go on now, but it will go on while these people are in prison, and it will compound the obstruction of justice situation. It will cost money. It is dangerous. People around here are not pros at this sort of thing. This is the sort of thing Mafia people can do: washing money, getting clean money, and things like that. We just don't know about those things, because we are not criminals and not used to dealing in that business.

P. That's right.

D. It is a tough thing to know how to do.

P. Maybe it takes a gang to do that.

D. That's right. There is a real problem as to whether we could even do it. Plus there is a real problem in raising money. Mitchell has been working on raising some money. He is one of the onee with the most to lose. But there is no denying the fact that the White House, in Ehrlichman, Haldeman and Dean, are involved in some of the early money decisions.

P. How much money do you need?

D. I would say these people are going to cost a million dollars over the next two years.

P. We could get that. On the money, if you need the money you could get that. You could get a million dollars. You could get it in cash. I know where it could be gotten. It is not easy, but it could be done. But the question is who the hell would handle it? Any ideas on that?

D. That's right. Well, I think that is something that Mitchell ought to be charged with.

P. I would think so too.

D. Let me continue a little bit right here now. When I say this is a growing cancer, I say it for reasons like this. Bud Krogh, in his testimony before the grand jury, was forced to perjure himself....

P. What did he perjure himself on, John?

D. Did he know the Cubans? He did.

P. He said he didn't?

D. That is right. They didn't press him hard.

P. He might be able to —I am just trying to think. Perjury is an awful hard rap to prove. If he could just say that I — well, go ahead.

D. Well, so that is one perjury. Mitchell and Magruder are potential perjurers. There is always the possibility of any one of these individuals blowing. Hunt. Liddy. Liddy is in jail right now, serving his time and having a good time right now. I think Liddy in his own bizarre way the strongest of all of them. So there is that possibility.

P. Your major guy to keep under control is Hunt?

D. That is right.

P. I think. Does he know a lot?

D. He knows so much. He could sink Chuck Colson....

P. Just looking at the immediate problem, don't you think you have to handle Hunt's financial situation damn soon?

D. I think that is —I talked with Mitchell about that last night and —

P. It seems to me we have to keep the cap on the bottle that much, or we don't have any options.

D. I am coming down to what I really think, is that Bob and John and John Mitchell and I can sit down and spend a day, or however long, to figure out one, how this can be carved away from you, so that it does not damage you or the presidency. It just can't! You are not involved in it and it is something you shouldn't

P. That is true!

D. I know, sir. I can just tell from our conversation that these are things that you have no knowledge of.

P. You certainly can! Buggings, etc!

P. I know you have a problem here. You have the problem with Hunt and his clemency.

D. That's right. And you are going to have a clemency problem with the others. They all are going to expect to be out, and that may put you in a position that is just untenable at some point. You know, the Watergate hearings just over, Hunt now demanding clemency or he is going to blow. And politically, it's impossible for you to do it. You know, after everybody —

P. That's right!

D. I am not sure that you will ever be able to deliver on the clemency. It may be just too hot.

P. You can't do it politically until after the '74 elections, that's for sure. Your point is that even then you couldn't do it.

D. That's right. It may further involve you in a way you should not be involved in this.

P. No —it is wrong; that's for sure.

P. He (Hunt) is playing hard ball with regard to Ehrlichman for example, and that sort of thing. He knows what he's got.

H. What's he planning on, money?

D. Money and—

H. Really?

P. It's about $120,000. That's what, Bob. That would be easy. It is not easy to deliver, but it is easy to get. Now —

H. If the case is just that way, then the thing to do if the thing cranks out —

P. If, for example, you say look we are not going to continue to — let's say, frankly, on the assumption that if we continue to cut our losses, we are not going to win. But in the end, we are going to be bled to death. And in the end, it is all going to come out anyway. Then you get the worst of both worlds. We are going to lose, and people are going to —

H. And look like dopes!

P. And in effect, look like a coverup. So that we can't do. Now the other line, however, if you take that line, that we are not going to continue to cut our losses, that means then we have to look square in the eye as to what the hell those losses are, and see which people can —so we can avoid criminal liability. Right?

D. Right.

P. Another way to do it then Bob, and John realizes this, is to continue to try to cut our losses. Now we have to take a look at that course of action. First it is going to require approximately a million dollars to take care of the jackasses who are in jail. That can be arranged. That could be arranged. But you realize that after we are gone, and assuming we can expend this money, then they are going to crack and it would be an unseemly story.... And the second thing is, we are not going to be able to deliver on any of a clemency thing...

P. John Ehrlichman, of course, has raised the point of another grand jury. I just don't know how you could do it. On what basis. I could call for it, but

D. That would be out of the question.

P. I hate to leave with differences in view of all this stripped land. I could understand this, but I think I want another grand jury proceeding and we will have the White House appear before them. Is that right John?

D. Uh-huh.

P. That is the point, see. Of course! That would make the difference. I want everybody in the White House called. And that gives you a reason not to have to go before the Ervin and Baker Committee. It puts it in an executive session, in a sense.

D. You can take the 5th Amendment.

P. That's right.

H. You can say you have forgotten too, can't you?

D. Sure, but you are chancing a very high risk for perjury situation.

P. But you can say I don't remember. You can say I can't recall. I can't give any answer to that that I can recall.

H. You have the same perjury thing on the Hill don't you?

D. That's right.

P. Oh hell, yes.

H. And the Ervin Committee is a hell of a lot worse to deal with.

D. That's right.

P. The grand jury thing has its in view of this thing. Suppose we have a grand jury thing. What would that do to the Ervin Committee? Would it go right ahead?

D. Probably. Probably.

D. They're going to stonewall it, as it now stands. Excepting Hunt. That's why his threat.

H. It's Hunt's opportunity.

P. That's why for your immediate things you have no choice but to come up with the $120,000, or whatever it is. Right?

D. That's right.

P. Would you agree that that's the prime thing that you damn well better get that done?

D. Obviously he ought to be given some signal anyway.

P. (Expletive deleted), get it. —

H. That is the thing that we thought Mitchell ought to be able to know how to find somebody who would know how to do all that sort of thing, because none of us know how to.

D. That's right. You have to wash the money. You can get a $100,000 out of a bank, and it all comes in serialized bills.

P. I understand.

D. And that means you have to go to Vegas with it or a bookmaker in New York City. I have learned all these things after the fact. I will be in great shape for the next time around.

H. (Expletive deleted)

P. And my point is that I think it is good, frankly, to consider these various options. And then, once you decide on the right plan, you say, "John," you say, "No doubts about the right plan before the election. You handled it just right. You contained it. And now after the election we have to have another plan. Because we can't for four years have this thing eating away." We can't do it.

H. We should change that a little bit. John's point is exactly right. The erosion here now is going to you, and that is the thing that we have to turn off at whatever cost. We have to turn it off at the lowest cost we can, but at whatever cost it takes.

D. That's what we have to do.

P. Well, the erosion is inevitably going to come here, apart from anything and all the people saying well the Watergate isn't a major issue. It isn't. But it will be. It's bound to. (Unintelligible) has to go out. Delaying is the great danger to the White House area. We don't, I say that the White House can't do it. Right?

D. Yes, sir.

Pot Valued At $350,000 Seized

OAKLAND (UPI) — A raid on an Oakland home netted $335,000 worth of marijuana and four suspects, according to police.

Frank P. White, 32; Nabb P. Manning, 23; Philip Fiegler, 26; and Carolyn Crane, 23, were arrested yesterday for investigation of narcotics sale.

Officers said White was wanted in San Mateo County on similar charges.

Target Of Bombing Is Quite A Puzzle

SAVONA, Italy (UPI) — Police said they were convinced it was a political bombing but could only try to guess what the target was as there were several options.

The building where the bomb went off houses the office of a Christian Democratic senator on the third floor. A Communist party office is next door. Also next door is a movie house showing a film about the last days of Benito Mussolini.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

Ban On DMSO Doesn't Appear To Be Based On Solid Reasons

"You can't fight city hall" is an expression all of us have used at once time or another. Pharmaceutical companies, researchers and physicians could paraphrase this with "you can't fight the Food and Drug Administration (FDA)." There are examples galore and although I am not a lawyer, I often wonder why bureaucrats are immune to certain legal actions.

For 10 years, the controversial chemical, dimethyl sulfoxide (DMSO), has received the cold shoulder from the FDA for questionable reasons. I've discussed this private little war in an earlier column. DMSO probably never will become a wonder drug, but it has intrigued me. First, it has the ability to pass through the skin and take with it other drugs. Secondly, as a solvent, it offers a different ways to bring medicines or vaccines into the body.

IN A RECENT meeting on DMSO, there were 50 papers suggesting that the drug may act as a solvent in carrying antiviral agents into the body to enhance the effectiveness of anticancer drugs. DMSO also makes the skin warm via mechanical irritation or because it causes the capillaries to dilate. As a result, it is said to relive the distress resulting from a variety of rheumatic conditions, including bursitis, myalgia, and muscle injury. To date, DMSO's best results have been in scleroderma, a condition in which the skin thickens.

However, since several studies have shown that it is safe to use, even though given in amounts from 3 to 100 times the human therapeutic dose, the FDA may give it a second look. Perhaps, the most encouraging of all DMSO reports are those that say the drugs tends to improve language and motor skills of mentally retarded children.

WHEN GIVEN the drug, children with Down's syndrome (mongolism) show a greater receptiveness to outside stimuli. This, in turn, beings about greater interest in their environment. In the studies on mental retardation, DMSO was given orally, alone or in combination with amino acids. More time and research are needed before the results of these studies can be confirmed and properly evaluated.

DMSO also is used in agriculture and in veterinary medicine, but its main usage is as an industrial solvent and as a byproduct of wood pulp and paper making.

Dr. Van Dellen welcomes reader questions. While he cannot reply to them individually, he will answer those of general interest in his column. Write to Dr. Van Dellen, c/o the Independent-Journal, PO Box 330, 1040 B St., San Rafael, Ca. 94902.

PERFORATED ULCER

R. B. writes: What is a ruptured stomach?

REPLY

I assume you refer to a perforated peptic ulcer. This occurs when an ulcer enlarges and erodes through the wall of the stomach or duodenum. The contents of the gastric pouch escape into the abdominal cavity and produce a severe chemical peritonitis. The ensuing pain has been likened to being kicked in the abdomen by a horse. Immediate surgery is needed.

DEVIATED SEPTUM

REPLY

Some people are born with a deviated septum. Others develop the condition as a result of injury to the nose. In many instances, the injury is too trivial to be remembered. Plastic surgery is advisable if the deviation interferes with breathing.

HEART MURMUR

Mrs. V. writes: I'm 52 and have a slight heart murmur. The doctor tells me I could live to be 80. Is this possible?

REPLY

Yes, but don't throw all caution to the wind now that you realize you may have many more years to go. Many murmurs are innocent and do not influence longevity.

BABY'S GLANDS

M. L. writes: Is it true that the salivary and tear glands of a newborn do not work until the baby is 6 weeks old?

REPLY

This is more or less true, as the tear glands do not go into full production until three to four months of age; the salivary glands at three to six months. Time is needed for the development of these structures.

HIVES AFTER BATH

L. R. writes: Every time I take a bath, I'm covered with hives that itch like crazy and last about an hour. I've tried different kinds of colors of soaps, as well as oils and water softeners, but nothing has helped. Have you any suggestions?

REPLY

This may be a physical allergy to heat or cold or sensitivity to an ingredient in the soap or bath towel. Since you have not been successful in finding the cause, skin tests are needed to uncover the culprit. If not, apply calamine lotion or a cream or spray containing an antihistamine or steroid.

INHERITED BALDNESS

REPLY

This is questionable. Many baldheaded fathers have sons with the same fringes and open spots. We are also seeing more women who are balding after the menopausal years.

BULGING EYEBALLS

S.D.T. writes: Is there some disease or deficiency connected with oversized eyeballs? My husband has protruding eyeballs and our 4-year-old son has large eyes.

REPLY

The commonest cause of this condition is an overactive thyroid gland. However, now and then, the condition is hereditary and is not related to disease. In such individuals, prominent eyeballs are handed down from generation to generation.

CAULIFLOWER EAR

REPLY

This is an unusual cause, but there is no reason why a plstic surgeon should not be consulted. If frostbite has affected the circulation, the healing process might be delayed.

Colorless oxidants, brownish nitrogen dioxide and smoke particles aggravate respiratory diseases. Carbon monoxide causes dizziness, headaches and slows reflexes. Smoke particles come largely from industrial sources but the other three come primarily from motor vehicles.

Lucky Drive Off Ramp Proposal Draws Protests

Faced with losing their nearest access to Highway 101, six businessmen appeared last night before the Corte Madera Planning Commission to protest the portion of the town's proposed general plan governing traffic circulation.

Elizabeth Long, planning commission secretary, said the six who have businesses near the Lucky Drive interchange objected to a part of the plan which calls for eliminating all freeway on and off ramps from Sir Francis Drake Boulevard to Tamalpais Drive.

Commissioners were considering the circulation element for the second time and again delayed passing or changing it, Mrs. Long said. Last week they directed town staff to meet with Larkspur officials to find out what access changes they propose for the freeway near Lucky Drive.

Elimination of the Lucky Drive off ramp was included in the plan because of the severe weaving as motorists dodge in and out of freeway lanes either entering or leaving the highway.

The circulation element will be up for further study when the commission next meets May 13 at 7:30 p.m. in town hall.

CHICAGO (UPI) — A 10-year-old girl didn't know how to use Karate or Judo when a man tried to rape her so she used the best available weapons; A cooking fork, a hammer and a pot of boiling water.

Police said the girl, who was not identified, was baby-sitting with the children of Clifford Rome when the assailant burst into the apartment, forced her into a bedroom and tried to rape her.

Rome, the girl's brother-in-law, returned yesterday just as struggle was taking place, and came to the girl's rescue.

Homicide investigator Thomas Quinn said the girl ran to the kitchen, picked up a hammer and began hitting the suspect. At Rome's suggestion, she also picked up a fork and stabbed her assailant repeatedly, and finally, she tossed scalding water on him.

The assailant, Charles Joyner, 29, was hospitalized with stab wounds, cuts, burns, and broken teeth. He was charged with burglary and taking indecent liberties with a child.

TELEVISION REVIEW

Viewer Response Surprise To Eaton Board Chairman

By JAY SHARBUTT

NEW YORK (AP) — It's rare for a major company to invite viewer comments on a show it sponsors. It's even rarer for the company's board chairman to go on TV to help out with the corporate invitations.

But in the case of E. M. deWindt and his firm, the Eaton Corp., it's resulted in what the company says is more than 10,000 viewer letters on just two hour-long programs.

The shows were the opening salvos in CBS' "The American Parade," a 13-part series of historical programs the network will air through 1976 to help celebrate the American bicentennial.

The first show, "We, the Women," narrated by Mary Tyler Moore, aired March 17. The second, "Power and the Presidency," narrated by George C. Scott, was broadcast last Wednesday.

At the end of each, deWindt appeared on camera, made a brief speech about the show and asked viewers to share their thoughts about the show with the series' sponsor, Eaton Corp.

Then an off-camera announcer gave the address of the Cleveland-based company, which manufacturers truck, auto and industrial vehicle components.

The mail response to "We, the Women" was nearly 10,000 letters, according to an Eaton spokesman who said the second show drew more than 500 letters over the weekend "and the mail is still coming in."

DeWindt, who estimated that 50 per cent of the mail was addressed to him personally, said the idea of going on camera initially surprised him when it was brought up.

"I don't think I'd thought very much about it because this whole package was really tied to the bicentennial celebration," he said.

He got in the act, he added, because "I think we were trying to personalize it and get people involved in the spirit of the bicentennial. And I think we were particularly anxious to find out if we were hitting the mark."

Does he feel more top business executives should appear on television as spokesmen for shows their companies are sponsoring?

"Well, I don't advocate it, but I'm not against it," deWindt said. "It depends on what the company may be trying to accomplish."

Sausalito Plans Study Of Traffic

Sausalito will spend $16,900 to study its traffic, the city council decided last night.

Councilmen voted 3-1 to pay the money to the TJKM company of Walnut Creek.

The firm of traffic consultants and planners will analyze vehicle and pedestrian counts around the city, levels of use of intersections and timing of traffic through the existing street system.

The study will include evaluations of new streets under construction and of transit alternatives, such as a northern parking facility and shuttle service from there to the downtown.

The consultants also will determine how much traffic would be generated by various kinds of land uses proposed for Sausalito's waterfront.

Councilman Sally Stanford voted against the study. "I don't need a study to tell me what I can see with the naked eye," she said. "I won't spend a dime of the taxpayers' money on this kind of thing."

Herb Case, the city's planning director, said the study conceivably could be financed through redevelopment.

Case, who last night outlined a proposal to bring redevelopment to Sausalito, said the city could obtain approximately $90,000 annually in revenues from a redevelopment project.

The city council declared itself a city redevelopment agency in November of 1972, but has done nothing about redevelopment since then.

A redevelopment agency is empowered to freeze the current assessed valuation of property within its area as far as the various taxing agencies are concerned. As the value of the property increases, the agency can use the funds generated by the increase to finance improvements.

Case recommended that the city not withhold funds from the school districts in Sausalito, but give them all the money which they normally would accrue. Most council members seemed to agree with that plan.

The planning director said it would cost the average homeowner in Sausalito $3 a year if the redevelopment agency returned tax moneys to the school districts.

"Taxpayers throughout the county would subsidize the kind of redevelopment projects the city feels are desirable," Case said.

He reported that the money could be used for the traffic study, for parks, property acquisition, bicycle and pedestrian paths, parking lot improvements, sidewalks, landscaping, traffic control systems and city hall and Bridgeway improvements.

The planning director proposed that the city designate the Marina Vista subdivision, the residential part of the proposed Whiskey Springs development, the new city hall site and the downtown business district as a redevelopment project.

The council will discuss the matter further next Tuesday.

Batik And Oil Show Planned

A display of batik and oil paintings by three San Francisco artists will be at the Novato branch library, 1720 Novato Boulevard, starting Saturday.

Exhibiting artists will be Raymond Takahashi, a native of Honolulu, Ramsay Ong from Malaysia, and Ow Yeong Hong Leong of Malaysia.

Exhibit hours are 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. Mondays through Thursdays and 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. Fridays and Saturdays. The display is to continue through May.

Assessment Appeals Law Drafted

I-J Special Report

SACRAMENTO — A bill to have assessment appeals heard by a state hearing officer instead of by county supervisors has been drafted by Assemblyman William T. Bagley, R-San Rafael.

The present practice is to have property owners appeal assessments to county supervisors sitting as boards of equalization. Since supervisors have a vested interest in county revenue, the taxpayer often feels he gets an unfair hearing from the supervisors, a spokesman for Bagley said.

The measure was requested by the California State Bar.

It also would allow courts reviewing appeals to go into the evidence presented to the supervisors. Current law limits court review in such cases to the official record.

Bill Carries More Controls Over Lots

I-J Special Report

SACRAMENTO — Legislation to more than double the size of lots falling under the jurisdiction of local governments was introduced yesterday by Sen. Peter H. Behr, R-San Rafael.

The measure, asked by the Marin County Board of Supervisors, increases from 60 to 125 acres the size of lots governed by the Subdivision Map Act.

The supervisors asked for the bill after a West Marin ranch was divided into a series of long, narrow lots just large enough to evade the 60-acre control by the county. Both the Marin Property Owners Association and Marin Builders Exchange protested the supervisors' request for the bill.

Behr also introduced five other bills yesterday, three of them asked by the Marin supervisors. One would increase superior court filing fees from the present $10.50 to $18 for actions involving more than $1,000 and to $12 for smaller actions. The increased fee revenue will finance salary hikes for court reporters.

Another would permit the salary of court commissioners to be set jointly by the supervisors and judges instead of the state.

The last Marin bill would give more time to call an election to fill vacancies on special district governing boards. Present special district law gives only 30 days, while conflicting provisions in the Elections Code require 67 days plus a period for candidates to file.

Marin Municipal Water District asked for the bill when it ran into the conflicting codes last month after the resignation of director Jordan L. Martinelli Jr.

Martinelli was not running for reelection anyway, and the board has indicated it will appoint the top vote getter in the June primary to the vacancy. If no candidate in the Division 3 race wins a majority, a runoff will be held in November. The election is to a term beginning next January.

Behr also introduced bills appropriating about $2.5 million for outdoor environmental education, a measure asked by the Department of Education, and allowing general plans to include an element to protect sites and structures of historical, architectural, archaeological or cultural significance.

Density Controls Asked For Guardians Of Bay

Critics of mushrooming apartment developments on Strawberry Peninsula last night urged the Bay Conservation and Development Commission to extend its powers to control the density of shoreline construction.

The commission now has a limited say over density only to assure adequate public access when a project is entirely on the shoreline. Its powers are broader over projects on fill.

Residents of the Strawberry area made the suggestion at a public forum held at the Marin Civic Center by the commission on possible amendments to its 1969 master plan for the bay. Extension of commission powers would take state legislation.

Dwight C. Steele of Tiburon, speaking for the Bay Chapter of the Sierra Club, added a suggestion that the commission's jurisdiction be extended farther inland than the present 100 feet. He did not suggest how far the jurisdiction should be extended, but mentioned the coastal commission, which has control over a 3,000-foot-wide band of ocean coast.

Talks With HUD Chief Set Today

Protesting Marin City residents were to meet today with James Price, area director of the Department of Housing and Urban Development, to object to the way that modernization of public housing is being carried out in Marin City.

Nesbit Crutchfield, vice chairman of the Marin City Council, composed largely of occupants of public housing, led the delegation to the meeting.

Residents have complained that the Marin County Housing Authority did not involve the community in planning and carrying out the project and that an insufficient number of residents were hired for the job.

They are also asking for the dismissal of housing authority executive director Wallace K. Shepherd.

ARIZONA READING REFORMER

All-Out War On Dick And Jane

By JOHN H. VESEY
The Christian Science Monitor News Service

SCOTTSDALE, Ariz. — Oh. Oh. Oh. Look. Look. Look. See Mrs. Rubicam run. Run. Run. Run. Chasing Dick and Jane out of Arizona.

At least that's what Mrs. Bettina Hall Rubicam, Arizona's leading phonics evangelist, wants to do — get educators away from the emphasis on the sing-song Dick and Jane beginning readers. This is the "look-say" sight-reading approach.

Under the name of Bettina Hall, Mrs. Rubicam spent her early career years with the American Opera Company and later was a Broadway star in Gilbert and Sullivan operettas.

Those were her yesterdays. Now this dynamic woman who wonders aloud, "How does anyone ever get time to be boared?" is devoting her life to phonics or word decoding.

To Mrs. Rubicam, any teacher who is not willing at least to consider phonics as a reading alternative "is a brainwashed teacher." She views the "look-say" method as "look-guess" in practice.

That is why she is using her crystal-clear mezzo-soprano voice to boost phonics and further its use in the public schools.

Born in Providence, R.I., Mrs. Rubicam still has that refreshing Eastern accent, although she has lived in Arizona since school after she was married in 1940 to Raymond Rubicam, head of the world-famous advertising agency, Young and Rubicam International, Inc., and now retired. They have two children, Steve and Joan.

She began fighting for phonics in Arizona after reading Rudolph Flesch's book, "Why Johnny Can't Read." In 1960 she helped to organize and became the first president of Arizona Citizens for Strengthening Public School Education.

Then in 1961 she switched her efforts to the Arizona Reading Reform Foundation, and on July 31, 1972, she was elected president of the National Reading Reform Foundation. She became its national chairman last January, succeeding Watson Washburn, the founder.

In addition to her national chores, Mrs. Rubicam still runs the Arizona foundation out of a storefront office in Scottsdale that she opened last October and furnished entirely with items purchased with trading stamps.

"It's an uphill battle to get basic phonics in the public schools again," she said. "But the situation is improving." As an example, she said, teachers don't have to rely on "bootleg phonics" anymore but can teach it openly without fear of reprisal.

"The situation is beginning to change because publishers have had to. But universities still teach teachers to put an emphasis on sight-reading first. They still teach controlled vocabulary and memorization.

"It's this process we've got to eliminate if these children are ever going to spell and read properly," she added.

Ask her about phonics and the effervescent Mrs. Rubicam will speak volumes. For instance: Why is "Dick and Jane" bad?

"Because it has failed too many children. This is obvious when you see how many children need remedial reading," she responded.

And it has failed mainly because "the process of sight-reading isn't the initial process of reading. That process is knowing that letters have sounds and sounds make words."

Besides, the Dick-and-Jane approach requires total memorization, she contended. "The brain can't memorize all the English language," so when students come to long words they don't know, "they freeze up," she said.

Although phonics stretches back to Cicero's time, the look-say approach — personified by Dick and Jane — dates only to the 1840's, when Horace Mann tried to convince the Boston schoolmasters that if it could work in the Hartford, Conn., school for deaf and dumb children, it could be applied to normal students.

"Even back then they told him students shouldn't do sight-reading because they substituted words, got frustrated, and couldn't spell anything," Mrs. Rubicam said.

"That's exactly what we're saying today," she added. "I hold nothing against sight-reading. But I hold a great deal against it as an initial process."

Phonics and sight-reading can work together later "when a child understands his language and the linguistic construction of it. But children can get into bad habits if they start memorizing too early.

"It's far better to start reading off with phonics only and not bring in irregular memorized words until later."

Phonics is on the outside looking in educationally "because of the colleges of education," Mrs. Rubicam said, her voice bouncing off the walls in the Reading Reform Foundation office.

There is no deep-seated psychological reason universities prefer look-say to phonics; it is greed, pure and simple, Mrs. Rubicam indicated.

"Phonics isn't being taught to prospective teachers because it's the colleges of education that are making millions of dollars from the present system."

She claimed one leading proponent of the look-say approach has made $2.7 million on publication royalties, and one of its originators has probably made 10 times that amount.

That is why it is "so difficult to make the changeover to phonics," she explained. "The colleges of education are dominating the thinking of the teaching of teachers."

Many local educators don't help "because they have their foot in the camp of the university and want to be considered good boys," she said.

Those who "step out of line" and support phonics are told "if you persist in your attitude toward phonics, you may not get your doctorate," Mrs. Rubicam claimed. "That's what we're up against. This is a cabal."

Educators do not always agree with Mrs. Rubicam. She is used to that.

An official with the Arizona Education Association, which represents nearly 18,000 teachers, accused Mrs. Rubicam of "giving a one-sided approach to phonics" and using her "money and time hassling principals, superintendents, and the state board of education to push her brand of phonics."

Commented the official, who preferred not to be identified: "She sees phonics as a cure-all to education. It's not a panacea at all. It works well on some kids, but for others, it's not suited at all."

Mrs. Rubicam countered with the argument that schools make reading an almost insurmountable task by "making it out to be such a monster."

By JAMES NELSON GOODSELL
The Christian Science Monitor News Service

ATLANTA — Cuba's reincorporation into the inter-American system still appears a long way off.

Despite strenuous lobbying by a number of Latin American nations at the current series of hemisphere talks in Washington and Atlanta, there now is general agreement that discussion of the issue has been shelved for the time being.

There is simply not enough support for bringing Cuba back into the system, although probably half of the members of the Organization of American States (OAS) lean toward some sort of rapprochement.

All of this pleases the United States. Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger, leaving Atlanta after two days of meeting with his hemisphere counterparts, said flatly: "We don't have any intention of restoring relations with Cuba."

United States officials had been concerned that there might be enough sentiment with the OAS to make Cuba a major issue during the current meeting of the OAS General Assembly in Atlanta.

Speaking privately in Washington to his fellow foreign ministers, including Kissinger, he said he was convinced Cuba wanted some new contact with the rest of the hemisphere.

But there is no consensus on the part of the Latin American nations, much less agreement by the United States, that such rapprochement ought to be speeded.

For its part, however, Washington two weeks ago was forced to let down its implacable opposition to trade with Cuba when it granted export licenses to the Argentine subsidiaries of General Motors, Ford, and Chrysler to sell automobiles and trucks to Cuba as part of a $500-million Argentine credit to Cuba.

U. S. officials insisted this was a one-time concession — taken because of the duress under which the United States-owned subsidiaries were operating in Argentina.

Argentine authorities had said in recent weeks that Argentine law is soverign in connection with the sale of items to Cuba and that no foreign law could prevent the sale. There seemed an implied threat in this, and it is understood that the large Detroit-based United States firms had asked the Department of State to grant the export licenses in order to save the investments.

To some hemisphere observers, the State Department's action seemed a major breakthrough and there was feeling that Washington's action in the Argentine case would probably be followed by similar action in connection with United States subsidiaries elsewhere.

Some Latin American delegations here appear to accept the withdrawal of the Cuba issue from OAS deliberations on the basis that Washington is moving toward some sort of new Cuba policy and that the export, license issue is a step in that direction, even though United States officials deny it.

For the most part, however, Latin Americans here agree with the comment of OAS Secretary-General Gallo Palaza Lasso: "... It seems at this date that there isn't a two-thirds majority for lifting the sanction (on Cuba)."

Without the two-thirds majority most Latin American delegates agree there just is not much profit from further discussion of the Cuba issue for now.

West Germany Looks To Russia

BIELEFELD, Germany (UPI) — West Germans not only consider the Soviet Union the most important trading partner among all East European countries, but also rate Russia their number one tourist attraction.

A survey conducted by the Emnid Institute for Sociology said 55 per cent of those questioned considered Russia West Germany's top trading partner. Twenty-two per cent said they wanted to spend their holidays in Russia if they had a choice of East European nations.

How Long Will Iron Buggies Run?

MILEAGE MAKER — Opinions vary on how many miles you can coax out of that piece of Detroit or imported iron but Ford claims one customer drove his 1936 two-door sedan 1,037,000 miles.
(Christian Science Monitor sketch by Gene Langley)

By JOHN DILLIN
The Christian Science Monitor
News Service

ATLANTA — Our '68 Mustang has just rolled its 100,000th mile, which leads to the question: What's the top mileage one can squeeze from a piece of Detroit iron?

Ford reports that the all-time high — for them and perhaps for the industry — was the 1,037,000 miles that an Atlanta man drove his 1936 two-door sedan.

Among foreign-built cars, Volkswagen says its best performance was 600,000 miles rolled up by Anthony Levy of Middlesex, England. VW says Levy "is so fond of the car" that when he's finished with it, he will have it "crushed into a cube to keep in his living room."

Mercedes tells of a one-million-miler, a diesel auto, but concedes that all the car's major working parts were replaced at one time or another.

A Lakeland, Fla., insurance salesman wrote that his '65 Dodge Dart "has just passed 200,000 miles without even having to add a quart of oil between changes. . . . The oil pan has never been off the motor," he wrote, although the engine did need "a valve job about two years ago."

A Houston man sent a telegram to Dodge when his 1940 model crossed 300,000 miles. The car still has the original transmission, which he says "has never been repaired" and still performs "without the slightest sign of trouble."

From California, a quality assurance specialist with an aerospace firm wrote that his '67 Dart has logged 149,000 miles with only nine minor repair jobs for such items as a water pump, thermostat, and alternator bearings.

Despite such marathon performances, most of America's new-cars buyers dump their steeds with a paltry 60,000 miles or less, according to auto firms.

How far can you drive a car? Ford Motor company says it's "as much or more a matter of tastes and economics of repair" rather than "durability."

Which, when translated, means: You can drive it until that shiny, red Firebreather 8 in the dealer's showroom catches your eye.

Report On Bald Eagles Is Better

PORTLAND, Ore. (UPI) — While the bald eagle, our national bird, is in danger of extinction, there is an encouraging report on the bald eagle population in Oregon this spring.

The state's 47 active eagle aeries have produced 42 young. That is encouraging because the estimate for the 48 contiguous states is but a total of 1,000 nesting pairs.

Alaska, on the other hand, has a healthy eagle population and may be the last frontier for the bird. There, the population is between 30,000 and 40,000 birds.

The Deal Was Not So Good

Asked by U.S. District Court Judge Walter Craig when he found out the 1972 model truck he purchased for $50 had been stolen, Smith hesitated.

"I guess it was when my wife asked me where the papers on it were," Smith said.

"Well, Mr. Smith, didn't you think something was wrong. Didn't something light up when you were offered a 1972 truck for $50?" the judge asked.

Satellite Is Helping In Oil Search

Three oil companies are using a transportable satellite communications earth station equipped with a 10-foot dish antenna at this exploration site above the Arctic Circle to send and receive voice, data and teletype communications via the Anik Satellites. Both Anik and the portable station were developed and built by Hughes Aircraft Co., El Segundo in California.

Bill Could Cut Reading Habits

By ROBERT P. HEY
The Christian Science Monitor
News Service

WASHINGTON — In the next few days an important postal issue will come before the full Senate. What the senators decide could have a profound effect on the reading of millions of Americans who receive their newspapers or magazines through the mail.

In a narrow sense, the issue is strictly whether the Senate should slow down the schedule of steep increases in postal rates paid by the mailed publications. A bill introduced by Sen. Gale W. McGee, D-Wyo., would do this.

For profit-making publications, the increases originally scheduled for each of the next three years would be spread out over six, effectively cutting the annual rate of increase in half. Nonprofit publications would spread their greater postal rate hikes over six additional years beyond their present eight-year schedule, giving them 14 years to make the adjustment.

At this point it seems touch-and-go as to whether the bill will become law this year. Its supporters voice very cautious optimism; its opponents say they "frankly do not know." There are two key questions:

Would these steep postal rate increases — if they were not slowed — in effect, censor the news for many Americans? Some publishers and members of Congress say it would.

Their reasoning is that many publications now making marginal profits would be forced to close; others would have to curtail newsgathering.

The result, they say, would be to impinge on the quantity, variety, and quality of news being provided Americans.

Sen. Hiram L. Fong, R-Hawaii, ranking Republican on the Senate Post Office and Civil Service Committee, does not think the effects will be nearly as severe as some publishers say. (He was one of two committee members who voted against the bill during committee consideration.)

In its majority report on the McGee bill, the Senate committee said, "It has been advised that the current and anticipated postal rates threaten the quality, if not the existence, of the national weekly newsmagazines."

The committee said that "postal rates for regular-rate publications will surely be at least 217 per cent higher in 1976 than they were in 1971." Further, it added, there is the "strong probability" that by July 1976, "the rate will have increased by 300 per cent."

Congressional sources say two decisions have led to this rate hike. The first was by Congress in 1971, when it decreed that the reorganized postal service — which came into existence the following year — should pull itself out of financial red ink and break even by 1984.

The second was by the Postal Service, which decided that all classes of mail should basically pay their own costs, as part of this push toward the break-even point.

This second decision reversed an historic position of the post office, since its inception in the late 18th Century. "Our early leaders took the position," says the majority report of the Post Office Committee, "that the post office ought to provide strong impetus to the promotion of the idea of democracy and self-government... Eminent men led the post office fostering the belief that the (free) press ought to be subsidized, an idea that has persisted as a part of accepted opinion in this country until the recent precipitous increase in postal rates."

The McGee bill would not effect the eventual end of this subsidy. But it would give publishers of mailed magazines and newspapers six more years to reach the higher rates.

Particularly hard hit at the moment, congressional and publishing sources say, are nonprofit magazines and newspapers — those published by educational, fraternal, trade, and religious organizations. Their rates have been lower in the past than those of profit publications; they are being raised the most.

No one is certain when the full Senate will discuss the measure and vote on it. Estimates range all the way through the first week in May. But all agree that whenever Senate majority leader Mike Mansfield can find the time in a crowded Senate schedule, he will work this bill in.

The bill is expected to be voted on without being altered, and its backers are cautiously optimistic that it will pass. Opponents say they do not know what will happen.

What the Senate does will be pivotal. Sources in the House of Representatives say there is considerable House support for the McGee concept, embodied in an identical House bill sponsored by Rep. James M. Hanley, D-N.Y.

If the Senate passes the McGee bill, a subcommittee of the House Post Office and Civil Service Committee plans to hold short hearings during May on the issue. It is considered certain to approve the measure; the full House committee is expected to do likewise.

No one is sure yet what the full House would do, although supporters think they would probably win.

The biggest problem in the House could be that the issue would not reach the House floor for a vote until after July 6, when the next round of rate hikes take effect.

If the Senate should defeat the McGee proposal, however, the issue would be dead for this year. The House subcommittee would not hold hearings, as it would consider the cause fruitless.

WHAT NEXT? — A bill which will be taken up in the Senate in the near future could change the reading habits of Americans. At issue is should legislation be enacted to slow down the schedule of steep increases in postal rates paid by mailed publications.

Giving Things Away Is Not An Easy Task

By LUCIA MOUAT

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Hang onto those hangers! Recycle those bottles and cans! Don't even think of going grocery-shopping without bringing your own paper bags!

From every direction, the message has been coming in loud and clear: America is in short supply of everything from wheat to gas. When in doubt, save.

However, anyone who has tried to give anything away lately knows that the shortage theory is not all it's cracked up to be. Indeed, some of its loopholes are large.

Consider a case in point. Once upon a time, a few weeks ago, there was a handsome sofa frame of Danish wood, whose owner wanted to give it away. Easier decided than done.

With a smile on her face and the desire to share in her heart, she called the pick-up phone of Goodwill Industries, Inc., to make her offer.

"No — we don't pick up sofa frames," came the abrupt reply. Try your sanitation department, suggested the Goodwill contact.

"Oh no — we don't pick up anything at apartment buildings," insisted the sanitation division spokesman. "You'll have to take it to the county incinerator. You turn left on 31st Street and drive until you see two smokestacks..."

Distraught that things had come to such a throwaway pass when the sofa frame was still in good, usable condition, the owner decided to have one last try at a giveaway.

Considerably the wiser for her experience so far, she called the Salvation Army (SA) and described the furniture in glowing irresistible terms. This time there was a sign of definite interest.

"Well, it would be about 10 days before we could pick it up," came the guarded response.

Since the owner was keen on a faster transaction — the sofa frame was blocking her front door — she asked if she could deliver it herself to the nearest SA thrift shop.

The answer was positive, so she dragged the frame out to her car, got it on top with a giant heave-ho, and began the trip at a gingerly five miles an hour.

Once at the door, the owner went inside to ask for a little help in the unloading. The sales lady, standing in a sea of sale furniture, peered out the win-

A New Home Scheduled For Timber Wolves

NEW YORK (AP) — The often maligned timber wolf will be reestablished in the Huron Mountain area of northern Michigan if a conservationist project works out.

Experimenters are trapping a pack of five wolves in northern Minnesota, the one area south of the Canadian border with a comparatively healthy wolf population. After getting medical checks, rabies and distemper shots and after being fitted with radio transmitters so that their movements can be followed easily, the wolves will be released.

The project is sponsored by the National Audubon Society, Northern Michigan University and Huron Mountain Wildlife Foundation.

The 19 Years Of Mayor Daley

By RICHARD I. STONE
The Christian Science Monitor News Service

CHICAGO — Last week, Richard J. Daley started his 20th year as mayor of Chicago. "I'm just an ordinary mayor of an ordinary city," he says. "I'm trying to do an ordinary job that every mayor is trying to do throughout the country."

The role he has played has been anything but "ordinary." During the last 19 years, Daley has been elected five times by extraordinary landslides. He has been courted by presidents. And he expects to play a major role in nominating the Democratic Party's next candidate for that office.

A lot of political savvy has been put into those years. And they add up to a great deal of political power. He has built that power upon his dual role as Cook County Democratic Party chairman and mayor of Chicago.

When Daley first ran for mayor in 1955, former county chairman Jacob M. Arvey warned him that wearing both hats would lead to political suicide. But Daley chose, instead to follow the advice of former Chicago Mayor Edward Kelly, who said: "Either you run the machine, or the machine runs you."

Mayor Daley indeed runs the machine. And he has used that position to put his programs as mayor into action.

"I think you couldn't pass many of the programs unless you have a strong organization," Daley recently told newsmen. "I've said that from the very beginning — from the inception.

"If you're a leader and you have no votes behind you, how can you pass your program? This is a very vital and serious mistake many people make in this field of public service. They think they can do it all by themselves."

Through his unique position, Mayor Daley has boosted Chicago's economy in ways that other mayors only dream of.

He has seen the dream of five eight-lane expressways become reality.

He has seen O'Hare Field become the busiest jetport in the world.

He has watched the central city skyline grow to the 102-story colossus of the Sears Tower, the tallest building in the world.

He has administered the most energetic urban-renewal and health-care programs in the nation.

And he has watched Chicago's monthly cost-of-living and unemployment figures trail those of other major cities.

Those are the accomplishments landslide victories are made of —landslides that carry to the lowest local offices on the Democratic ticket. Victories that keep the Daley machine as viable as ever.

Despite challenges by independents and reformers heralded by the local media, the "Daley machine" appears to be as viable as ever. Last year, Chicago voters elected candidates handpicked by the mayor in six special off-year aldermanic elections —picking up two city council seats formerly held by independents or Republicans.

And in spite of a deluge of indictments pouring from the Chicago Federal Building offices of Republican U. S. Attorney James R. Thompson, Republican Party polls show the Daley machine picking up every political chip available in next November's general election.

Richard J. Daley, on the eve on his 72nd birthday, appears to be bigger than life. Which has led newsmen to ask the mayor whether he plans to run for an unprecedented sixth term next January.

"I'm not trying to be evasive," Daley told newsmen, "but I think it does take a lot of consideration and decision and reflection."

What are the factors you will weigh in that decision? newsmen asked. "One of the things will be a family consideration," the mayor said. "I've been discussing it with all the members of my family. And this is what we do in keeping with the close-knit family we have — what they think. And then, of course, the ultimate decision is always left to myself."

It has been a bittersweet 19 years for Richard Daley. A 19 years that saw him inherit a city council of 17 Republican members that have diminished to one; 19 years that have seen political allies like former Illinois Gov. Otto Kerner and former Cook County Clerk Edward Barrett receive convictions for bribery; 19 years that have seen the Chicago City Council enact the first local public housing ordinance in the nation. Nineteen years that have seen 2½ square miles of Chicago's West Side ghettos go up in flames.

The time also has recorded Mayor Daley's being denied a seat at the 1972 Democratic National Convention, being ridiculed for the rioting at the 1968 Democratic National Convention, and being heralded as the man who played the greatest role in electing John F. Kennedy President of the United States.

A reporter recently asked the mayor if he had ever aspired to higher office. "No," Daley replied, "I love the office of mayor and I love the people of Chicago, and this is the reason I've stayed this long as mayor."

To many political observers, Daley may appear to be at the end of the political road. But he's content to remain where he is. And there's that conspicuous hint of a sixth term that rings from his fifth-floor hall office; the reverbations that emanate from labor leaders, presidential hopefuls, and even President Nixon, who came to see him to seek his counsel.

Logging Proves Dangerous Job

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Loggers work close to nature and in the shadow of death and injury, according to a state study indicating that forests are one of the most dangerous places to work.

Injuries and fatalities in logging are not only relatively high, but they are difficult to control, the state Department of Industrial Relations said.

Disabling work injuries to California loggers in the last 12 years have ranged from a high of 1,555 in 1960 to a low of 881 in 1970. The worst year for work fatalities was 1962 when 34 deaths were reported.

Stanford Develops A Refining Process

STANFORD, Calif. (UPI) — A copper-refining process developed by Stanford University metallurgists could be just what the industry needs to eliminate air pollution from copper smelters.

The process developed by Prof. Robert W. Bartlett and Hsin-hsuing Haung, a graduate student from Taiwan, gets rid of copper ore's offending ingredient, sulfur, by combining it with lime during the beginning of treatment instead of at the end.

The saleslady, obviously torn between empathy and duty, finally relented: "Well, I could say I'd found it dumped on the back landing. . ." "Fine," said the owner before the saleslady could change her mind.

The problem is that the story is no isolated fairy tale. For a variety of reasons, charitable groups have found that they have to be much more fussy about what they take and don't take. If an item cannot be rebuilt or repaired for resale, the organization usually has to pay a dumping fee to the city to dispose of it.

Indeed, Matthew Warren, a spokesman for Goodwill, reports that several Goodwill branches around the country have invested in their own compactors, the better to whittle unusables down to a disposable size.

Although Goodwill draws 67 per cent of its revenue (used to rehabilitate the handicapped) from resale of donated goods, there are some items the agency frankly prefers to avoid altogether.

Large appliances, such as washing machines, stoves, and water heaters for instance, are expensive to repair and have limited market appeal, for instance.

Also viewed as mixed assets are mattresses — state health laws are strict, and only the cotton is saved — and upholstered furniture.

Items which Goodwill definitely wants, by contrast, include dishes, glasses, silverware, repairable radios and television sets, and cloth of almost any kind.

With some people who want to donate items no longer needed in their own homes, it's not the cold shoulder but the wait that drives them bananas.

One woman from McLean, Va., called Goodwill last January to give away three mattresses and two steel bed frames. She was told it would be two months before her suburban apartment complex could be worked into the delivery schedule. On D-day, she left the goods outside her door, but when she returned that night, they were still there.

When she called to protest the next day, she was told that the pickup people had come but that there had been no sign on the donations and that it would be another two months before another pickup could be arranged.

"I had begun the whole venture with the feeling that this would really help somebody," says the McLean donor. "But I don't have that feeling anymore. Now I steer away from it — I feel it's just a big business and a bunch of red tape. We'll probably end up putting the mattresses out in the garbage. . ."

NEW ROAD PROPOSED FOR AIRPORT

A heavy dark line marks the proposed frontage road from the Atherton Avenue-Highway 101 interchange in Novato to the Marin County Airport planned by the state department of Transportation. The proposed roadway would eliminate the connections to Highway 101 from Airport Road and a road four-tenths of a mile south, two crossings of the Northwestern Pacific Railroad tracks and two highway median crossovers. With completion of the Highway 101 bypass in Novato, the traffic flow is expected to be faster and the two existing road connections would be undesirable, according to the Department of Transportation. The department will conduct a hearing on the proposed road Monday at 7 p.m. at the Novato Community House. And anyone wishing to may comment in writing to R. R. Lammers, District Director, Information Center, P.O. Box 3366 Rincon Annex, San Francisco through May 19.

Batten Heads Homeowner Associations In Tiburon

Donald L. Batten, television engineer, has been elected to his second term as president of the Council of Tiburon Homeowners Associations.

Batten, 52, was picked last weekend to lead the group, which includes representatives of homeowners groups throughout Tiburon.

Batten has been an engineer with KPIX in San Francisco for 24 years.

In 1970 he ran unsuccessfully for the Tiburon City Council.

Since 1968 he has been president of the Belveron Homeowners Association.

He has resided in Tiburon since 1959 at 29 Mercury Avenue.

Batten is public information chairman for the Masonic Grand Lodge for the states of California and Hawaii and is a past master of Occidental Lodge 22, Free and Accepted Masons.

Previously, he has served as public relations chairman for Public Schools Week for the City of San Francisco.

He also is a member of the Sportsmen's Committee for Political Education, a group which tries to circulate the hunter's point of view on antigun legislation.

Other officers elected to the council are: J. Donald McCune, of 25 Spring Lane, vice president; Eric J. Schmidt, of 543 Silverado Drive, secretary, and Kathe I. I. Thayer, of 8 Bartel Court, treasurer.

Biggest Steam Well Reported

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The 100th geothermal steam well at The Geysers also is the biggest yet at the Sonoma County energy source. Pacific Gas and Electric Co. said today.

PG&E said the 7,721-foot well produced 225,000 pounds of steam per hour, the equivalent of 11,000 kilowatts of energy.

The Growing Government Payroll

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

Help Wanted — Male-Female Outstanding employer pays top wages to millions of blue and white collar workers. Exceptional job security, life insurance, major medical, best pensions in the country, constant advancement, guaranteed annual raise — regardless of performance — plus additional raises for merit and seniority. Swamped with applicants. Only most qualified should apply.

This could be a recruiting ad for federal employment. But its publication would add to the criticism now aimed at the United States government for spending $60 billion annually on wages and benefits.

Can the taxpayer afford the constantly rising bill for government salaries and benefits. It's doubled in a decade, says the nonprofit Tax Institute, Inc., a research organization.

Are government employees overpaid and overpensioned? Average federal pay is $9,900 annually for blue collar employes and $13,200 for white collar workers; in each case, above the national average. Pensions, after 40 years of service, are 80 per cent of the last three years' average pay. That's four or five times better than Social Security, but payroll deductions are nearly the same.

The Nixon administration's guideline for annual wage increases has been 5.5 per cent. But all federal salaries rose 12.8 per cent in 1973, a U.S. Chamber of Commerce survey reported. Big salary increases for the armed forces and for postal workers drove up the percentage and might do so again.

A new postal workers' contract, signed last summer, increases wages 17 to 20 per cent over two years. A letter carrier who started in 1962 at $4,565 now earns $11,773 plus a $146 cost of living payment this year.

The end of the draft last year and the new dependence on a volunteer Army has had a dramatic impact on an Army private's pay. He earned $78 a month a decade ago, $134 in 1971, $288 in 1972 and $326 today. And Congress decided to pay $3,000 bonuses to recruits joining the infantry or artillery. Low-ranking officers also have done well. A second lieutenant has jumped from $399 to $791 monthly in a decade, and a major from $834 to $1,524 since 1964.

Another 12.8 per cent salary increase this year would add $6.5 billion to the payroll for the nation's five million federal employes. Two-thirds are in the Post Office and military.

Add state, county, town and city employes and there are more than 14 million Americans earning government salaries — from the President to city hall janitors in small towns. They earn $150 billion in pay and benefits, or $700 for every man, woman and child in the nation. They fill one of every five U.S. jobs.

The $150 billion is 15 times higher than what experts in the '60s said would be needed to restore dying American cities. Salaries and benefits for federal employees alone use up 50 per cent of all U.S. income taxes collected and nearly a quarter of the government's operating budget, which is $269 billion this fiscal year. The money is almost enough to purchase an economy car for every American family each year.

One of the inflationary factors, on the federal level, is the Civil Service system of pay increases — sometimes referred to as "a raise within an escalator within an elevator." Secretary Susan W. went to work for the federal government in 1962 at $4,565. Since the, she's earned the normal five grade promotions, each with a pay increase. She also received raises for longevity and merit — she's entitled to 10 over 18 years — and more raises to keep base pay even with that paid to secretaries in private industry. The result today: A salary of $19,246 annually, a jump of more than 400 per cent.

Pensions are another matter. Many state and local governments have adopted the federal system of paying a retired employe 70 to 80 per cent of his average wage the last years on the job. As a result, pensions are a major reason for the spiraling taxpayer burden.

At the top of the federal pay structure is the 2,500-man executive staff. Its wages range from $60,000 for Cabinet officers and Supreme Court justices to $36,000 for heads of minor agencies. In the middle is the $42,500 paid to congressmen and senior judges, $40,000 for undersecretaries and lower-level federal judges, and $38,000 for assistant secretaries.

The next level is the most controverisal. It covers 1.3 million white collar workers. The maximum for top managers, including 150 admirals and generals, is $36,000. The maximum can't by law go higher because it would invade the executive staff pay schedule, which starts at $36,000. The minimum is $5,017 for the lowest clerk in his first year.

The third bracket covers 489,000 blue collar workers. By law, they are to be paid the same wages as their privately employed counterparts in the same city. In fact, their average pay of $9,900 annually is well above the $8,440 average for all blue and white collar workers in the private sector.

BO DIDDLEY IN SAN ANSELMO

Younger Unveils New Kidnap Laws

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Legislation designed to "take the profit out of future kidnapings" and avoid another Patricia Hearst case was unveiled today by Attorney General Evelle J. Younger and a Republican senator.

"We would be derelict if we were to allow the Hearst kidnaping to become a prototype for future crimes," said Younger. "Extortion under the guise of altruistic purposes cannot be permitted again."

The package of five bills would prohibit the payment of ransom by corporations and trusts, outlaw the possession of money for property that has been extorted and void any pardon granted by a public official to meet kidnapers' demands.

One effect of the measures would be to ban future food giveaways demanded by kidnapers, such as the $2 million free food program carried out in the Hearst case.

Sen. Dennis Carpenter, R-Newport Beach, author of the bills, told newsmen "there have been more than 25 kidnapings in the United States since Patricia Hearst was seized Feb.4 where ransom demands were made to corporations or trusts."

His bill outlawing such payments by corporations would "take the profit out of future kidnapings," Carpenter added.

However, the legislation would not interfere with an individual, such as Randolph Hearst, using his personal assets to meet a kidnaper's demands.

Hearst spent hundreds of thousands of his own money and millions of dollars in funds of the Hearst Foundation in an attempt to comply with demands of the Symbionese Liberation Army for free food distribution.

"It would be unrealistic, as well as an invasion of individual rights, to legislate against someone using their personal funds to attempt to assure the safety of a kidnaped loved one," Carpenter said.

Younger added, "that would be too drastic a measure (outlawing all ransom payments) and too difficult to prosecute."

Even if an individual did pay ransom, the recipient-including a person accepting free food — would be breaking the law if he accepted the payment.

Simpson Sees Future For Self In Movies

By BOB THOMAS
Associated Press Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Can the National Football League's Most Valuable Player become one on the movie screen?

O.J. Simpson believes so, and he is training for an acting career with the zeal and strategy he has applied to his performances for the University of Southern California-Heisman Trophy winner-and the Buffalo Bills — 2,003 yards rushing last season.

"I've been offered leading roles for a lot more money than I've been getting," says the handsome running back, 26.

"But I think it's much better for me to sit back and work with actors like Lee Marvin, Richard Burton, Paul Newman and Steve McQueen."

He recently completed a featured role in "The Klansman" with Marvin and Burton and will squeeze in the all-star "The Towering Inferno" before reporting for football practice June 17.

He had misgivings about "The Klansman" after reading the script, a ripe blend of lust, rape, murder and racial conflict in an Alabama backwater.

"The script was filled with lines like 'Kill, baby, kill!' and 'Burn, baby, burn!'" he remarked. "I couldn't see myself saying things like that, but I was assured that I could use my own verbiage, and it worked out all right."

Simpson's role in the film has been described as a black militant. Not true, says he.

"He's simply a guy who reacts when he is provoked — you know, sort of like Clint Eastwood when the heavies push him too far and he goes 'pow!' This guy I play is like that. I'll tell you this: When I kill somebody in the picture, there's going to be applause in the theaters. That's because those guys are so bad."

O.J. remarked that he had learned much from Lee Marvin, whose instructions about acting were simplicity itself: Hit the mark, convey the meaning of the words and give your fellow actor the right cue. Simpson's experience with Richard Burton was less instructive.

It is no secret that Burton was on the booze during the filming in Oroville, Calif., and O.J. admitted that he had a minor run-in with the Welsh star.

"He got onto a thing about 'brains vs. brawn," the athlete-actor said. "He kept going on, and I didn't care much for it. He's a brainy man, I guess, but I'm not all that brawny." He added that he found Burton's wife, Elizabeth Taylor, to be very pleasant and friendly.

There were sexy scenes in "The Klansman," but not for O.J. "That's one thing my wife won't allow," he said with a grin. "She doesn't want me doing any picture where I jump in bed naked."

Brown Proposes Reform Of PUC And Special Rates For Elderly

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Secretary of State Edmund G. Brown Jr. yesterday proposed a program to "reform" the Pulic Utilities Commission, including establishment of special low electricity rates for the low income elderly.

The Democratic gubernatorial contender noted the current PUC, appointed by Gov. Ronald Reagan, approved utility rate increases of $1.16 billion during the past six years.

At a news conference, he said the PUC "virtually bent over backwards to meet every whim and desire of the state's utilities, all at the expense of the California consumer."

He said in the last six years of his father's term as governor the PUC "had forced rates to be reduced by $35 million."

"What it takes is a Public Utilities Commission that is concerned about people and not just utilities," Brown said.

He noted that during the energy crisis last winter an elderly couple in New York froze to death when their electricity was cut off for nonpayment of overdue bills. In California, he said, thousands of elderly persons suffer "severe" hardships because they cannot afford rising utility prices.

"There must be a program of special low rates for minimum, basic service to the elderly," he said, suggesting he in effect, was proposing a "rate structure to provide for subsidies to senior citizens in low income categories."

He said the details would have to be worked out but before an elderly person's electricity was cut off, the PUC should notify a welfare department and seek funds for continued service, if necessary.

Brown said controversial "secret" meetings of the PUC violated the spirit if not the letter of open meeting laws and said the "injury of rate hikes should not be compounded by the insult of secret deliberations."

Under Brown's plan:

Members of the PUC and its staff would be prohibited from accepting free meals or other gratuities from utility executives whose companies they regulate.

He charged the current PUC refused to allow its staff to pay a "formal, independent" role and said a new PUC "must take a new, constructive attitude toward its staff."

Require the commission to examine the impact of rate increases on various income groups, especially the poor and elderly.

Students Invited To Open Houses

San Rafael's school children have been invited to open houses during Centennial Week at the Archbishop Alemany Library at Dominican College, the Marin County Free Library (Civic Center Branch) and the 81-year-old schooner Alma.

The Centennial Committee has urged teachers to schedule tours from their classes from May 20 through May 24.

At Dominican College's library, there will be exhibits of photos and paintings of early days on the Dominican campus, and artifacts of the first Catholic school in California, opened by the Dominican Sisters in Monterey in 1850, of the Sisters' school founded in Benecia in 1854 and of early Dominican College itself.

At the Civic Center library, visitors will see a demonstration of the library's new minicomputer, which stores all information on acquisition and circulation of books and other materials.

On display at the library will be paintings by Patricia Phillips of San Rafael of the 21 California missions; photos of Marin wildflowers taken by James A. Park, formerly associate warden at San Quentin; paintings of wildflowers on driftwood, rock and jewelry; photos of very small Marin wildflowers taken by David James, a biology student at University of California at Davis.

Also there will be historical postcards of Marin from the collection of reference librarian Jacquelyn Mollenkopf; train models prepared by the North Coast Model Railroad Society; photos of Marin dating from 1858, many from the collection of the late Philip Tompkins of San Anselmo;

Also early day Marin maps; minerals collected in Marin by Captain Girvin B. Wait of Belvedere, Salem Rice of Mill Valley, Milo Bird of San Rafael and John Schuck of Larkspur; descriptions of early San Rafael from a typescript book by James Wilkins, and a reproduction of the original music of the "March Hotel Rafael," owned by Mrs. Earl Grady of San Rafael, and presumably played at the resort hotel which was opened in San Rafael in the 1880s.

The Alma, which will sail May 18 from its berth at the San Francisco Maritime Museum to an anchorage at the San Rafael Yacht Club for the duration of the Centennial, will be open for school tours by reservation 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. as well as open to the public those hours.
